LONELY FUNERAL FOR 'TIGER'

WARREN IS DEAD AFTER 37 YEARS IN U. S. SENATE

State Funeral Will Be Held Tuesday.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Senator Francis Emory Warren of Wyoming, who served longer in the United States senate than any other man in American history, died of bronchial pneumonia at his home today. Among his colleagues Senator Warren was called, because of his extensive herds of sheep, "the greatest shepherd since Abraham."

Senator Warren's death removes one of the last three survivors of the civil war who held high office in Washington. Warren served in the Union forces with Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the Supreme court. Representative Charles M. Stedman of North Carolina served the confederacy.

Until late yesterday afternoon it appeared that Mr. Warren, the rugged old plainsman, who spent nearly 37 of his 85 years in the senate, might overcome the bronchial affection which followed a severe cold contracted about two weeks ago, but hope for his recovery was abandoned last night.

Wife at His Bedside.

The end came at 10 o'clock this morning with his wife, Mrs. Clara Warren, his son, Fred E. Warren of Cheyenne, Wyo., and his son-in-law, Gen. John J. Pershing, at the bedside.

Word of the senator's death was immediately conveyed to President Hoover, who dispatched a message of sympathy to Mrs. Warren and issued a public expression of the national regret at the passing of one of the last of a generation to which "we of this generation owe much of our splendid inheritance." The statement read:

"Senator Warren began his public service with four years as a private and officer in the civil war. Mayor of his city, governor of his state, senator for nearly 40 years, every stage of his life was marked by increasing industry and by devotion to the national welfare.

"His span of life covers a generation fast passing, among whose leaders he played a great part and to whom we of this generation owe much of our splendid inheritance."

State Funeral Tuesday.

A few hours later announcement was made that a state funeral, with President Hoover and his cabinet, Chief Justice Taft and his associates of the United States Supreme court, members of the house and the entire diplomatic corps in attendance, will be held in the senate chamber Tuesday afternoon.

The senator's body will be taken to Cheyenne, Wyo., for burial.

Born in Hinsdale, Mass., Senator Warren served as a private and noncommissioned officer of the 49th Massachusetts volunteers in the civil war, receiving the congressional medal of honor, "for gallantry on the battlefield at the siege of Port Hudson."

Served as Governor.

A few years after he was mustered out of the army, Warren went to Wyoming and before he was 30 years old, he was president of the territorial legislature. Successively, he was councilman and mayor of Cheyenne in that town's most turbulent frontier days, and in 1885, President Arthur appointed him governor of the territory.

He was reappointed by President Harrison, and when Wyoming was admitted to the Union in 1890 he was elected the first governor of the new state.

In November, 1890, he was elected as a Republican to the United States senate to serve as one of the state's first senators, and with the exception of slightly less than two years, when the state legislature was deadlocked and could not make a choice, he represented his state in the senate continuously until his death. Only three other senators in American history—William B. Allison of Iowa, who served more than 35 years; John Sherman of Ohio, who served 32 years, and Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, who served 31, approached Senator Warren's record.

State's Wealthiest Citizen.

When he reached Wyoming 61 years ago, Warren, according to his own story of his early struggles, had a "total grub stake" of $50. He died Wyoming's wealthiest citizen, owning or controlling upward of 350,000 acres of the finest land in the state, valued, with flocks of sheep and herds of cattle, at many millions of dollars, in addition to other vast interests.

Before succeeding to the chairmanship of the appropriations committee Senator Warren served for many years as chairman of the senate's committee on military affairs.

FRENCH CANNON BOOM IN TARDY BURIAL HOMAGE

BULLETIN.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—(Monday.)—(AP)—"The Cannon of the Armistice" at noon today began the 101 gun salute which was notification to the populace that the body of Georges Clemenceau, Father of Victory, had been lowered to its last resting place in the hills of his native Vendee, near Mouchamps.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 25.—[Monday.]—The strangest funeral cortège that ever took a great man to his grave left at 1:45 o'clock this (Monday) morning from the little apartment on the Rue Franklin, the Paris home of Georges Clemenceau, France's wartime premier and "father of victory." There were no flowers, no marching, no trumpets and drums, no pomp that marked the funeral of the other great national hero of France, Marshal Foch. The man whose relentless courage led France to victory, only to be cast aside when he sought the highest honor he could have, the presidency, was being buried as he had ordered.

Hearse a Rumbling Truck.

The hearse was a big, rumbling truck, resembling a moving van. The pallbearers were ordinary undertaker's assistants, aided by the truck's chauffeur and a couple of mechanics in overalls.

The casket was of plain oak with a lead lining, covered with white satin. The coffin was swiftly and matter-of-factly hustled into the auto truck hearse for the trip to Vendee, followed by four automobiles, containing a handful of the closest mourners. The chauffeurs and undertaker's staff rode in the big truck and carried big lunch baskets and bottles of wine, indicating they were preparing for a long, cold drive through the night.

Grave Far from Paris.

According to best advices, the remains are to be transported to the village of Mouchamps, near La Rochesur-Yon, 30 miles from the sea, where the Clemenceau family owns a small burial plot, and where the "Tiger" asked to be buried alongside his father "standing up."

It was even stated that the chauffeur, Brabant, left yesterday morning by automobile with instructions to dig the grave and have everything ready for the burial.

The government of France in the meantime began making heroic and clever efforts to repair the damage of its neglect to the nation's greatest statesman by paying a tardy homage. Barred by Clemenceau's wishes from staging a national funeral, such as was accorded Marshal Foch, Premier Tardieu last night announced he had persuaded the General Veterans' association—remembering the "Tiger's" phrase regarding the world war veterans, "they have precedence over the rest of us"—to stage a big demonstration at the tomb of the unknown soldier next Sunday. The veterans responded promptly to the suggestion of the premier.

Orders 101 Gun Salute.

Premier Tardieu then officially announced:

"Respecting the last wishes of Clemenceau, the government must give up a national funeral, but orders all government flags at halfstaff. At the moment of the interment the government orders the firing of a salvo, a 101 gun salute, such as was fired on Nov. 11, 1918, in honor of the armistice. The salvo of the artillery is to be fired at the same hour everywhere by land and sea forces of France."

President Doumergue, parliament, and other national officials will be present at this ceremony.

On the deathbed where he had expired a few hours before the remains of Clemenceau were placed on view yesterday for a few privileged friends.

Following the desires of the dead "Tiger," a confirmed atheist, no cross was placed above the bier, no candles shed a flickering light, and no black draperies hid the walls.

Only a few fresh cut flowers, shipped from Monte Carlo by Sir Basil Zaharoff, gave a touch of life to the room. The flowers were strewn over the coverlet of the bed.

Wears Familiar Trench Cap.

The electric light from the table beside the bed cast hard, brilliant rays on the marble-like features of the dead man, already sunken and shriveled, but calm in his final repose. His hands, encased in the gray suede gloves that he always wore to hide the ravages of a stubborn eczema, were folded, and the faded, battered

60,000 Reds Take Towns; Flank Enemy

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(AP)—A Reuters dispatch from Harbin today said soviet forces are reported to have captured Hailar and Muling. The Chinese commander on the western front is reported to have been killed.

It was thought probable that a state of seige in Harbin would be declared tomorrow.

China's Army in Panic.

TOKIO, Nov. 25.—[Monday].—(AP)—Dispatches today from Harbin to the Japanese news agency, Rengo, said that Chinese resistance was fast breaking down under a concerted rain of blows by soviet forces in both eastern and western Manchuria.

All dispatches indicated that Russia had at last launched a real invasion of Chinese territory. Dispatches this morning confirmed reports that Russia dominated the territory west of the Hingan mountains, while in the eastern sector Red troops occupied Mishan, surrounded Muling and Russian cavalry had appeared south of the town of Ninguta.

Chinese in Retreat.

Chinese everywhere were reported as retreating without offering any resistance. Refugees were pouring into Buchatu, 100 miles east of Hailar, where Chinese forces had attempted to establish headquarters. Dispatches said the refugees were in utmost confusion and panic, a majority of the troops failing to halt at Buchatu and fleeing toward Tsitsihar.

Further reports said soviet cavalry and tanks had penetrated behind the Chinese army's position at Hailar, in Manchuria, cutting off the Chinese retreat. Severe fighting was reported.

Seeming confirmation of reports that Mukden will sue for a separate peace with Russia was included in the dispatches, which said the Chinese already were negotiating with M. Melikov, former consul general at Harbin, now at Chita, in Siberia.

Russia Storms Chinese Towns.

The reported Russian occupation extends 100 kilometers east of Manchouli along the Chinese Eastern railroad. Considerable Russian forces were understood to be in possession of the stations Dalai Nor and Zagan, but information concerning regions beyond Hailar is admittedly untrustworthy. It is therefore impossible to determine how far the Chinese retreated or whether it was due to panic or actual soviet military pressure.

Moscow dispatches claiming the Russian troops disarmed 8,000 Chinese and captured 10,000 rifles have been supported by Chinese accounts of a military disaster in the northwest in which Chinese garrisons at Manchouli, Dalai Nor, and elsewhere simply melted away.

The loss of men and materials during the last week has been considerable, undoubtedly, while troops remaining to confront the Russians were described as lacking sufficient food, ammunition, or winter clothing, although it is already bitterly cold in northern Manchuria.

Japanese Civilians Flee.

In the absence of any information from Manchouli during the last week Japanese Consul General Yagi at Harbin said he was anxious concerning the safety of Japanese residents, although the Chinese governor of Harbin informed him they were being escorted in safety around Dulai lake. This route was necessary because the railroad was cut.

In view of the possibility of a general soviet invasion, Yagi sent agents to Pogranichnaya on the eastern frontier of Manchuria, to order evacua-

HOSTESS FACES DILEMMA OVER CAPITAL LIQUOR

Recent White House Attitude Is Cause.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—On the eve of the opening of the Washington social season next week, when congress convenes in the regular winter session, the burning question among the hosts and hostesses is liquor.

Whether to serve or not to serve the unlawful cocktail and the no less contraband champagne, burgundy, Scotch, "corn," or what have you, is the problem agitating many a corsage in the world of the elite.

In that world it is an immutable law than a dinner without liquor is no dinner. That official Washington regarded this a higher law than the prohibition act, the ten social seasons that have run their course since the beginning of the Volstead era have borne impressive testimony.

Various Standards of Conduct.

The degree of wetness of a Washington dinner party has been determined only by the resources of the host and hostess. Only a small minority of guests turned down the glass, about the same proportion as in pre-prohibition days. Statesmen who vote dry and drink wet cynically joined the honest felons in toasting Saint Volstead, while consistent drys, though declining the proffered cocktails, regarded the serving of liquor with indulgence.

Foreign visitors, after entertainment at Washington tables, were able to go home and give interviews to the effect that, while they understood America was dry, they had not noticed it.

Capital Officially Dry.

Now all is changed. The higher ranks of the administration have been on the water wagon ever since the inauguration, when the word went forth that Mr. Hoover was determined to put none but drys on watch. A number of officials hastily reformed their ways.

Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont resigned from the board of directors of the Association Against Prohibition. It would surprise no one to hear that Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, chief prohibition enforcer, has padlocked his remaining supply of whisky from his Overholt distillery.

What is now worrying the hosts and hostesses particularly is the fear that continued violation of the prohibition law may be at the cost of social ostracism by the White House. The possibility of being dropped from White House invitation lists without being able to console themselves with the assurance of "inadvertence," that was given to Hiram Johnson, is sufficient to give them pause.

Then, too, there is the horrendous possibility that the numerous mute, inglorious Brookharts who hitherto have viewed the drinking in the official set but held their peace, will break forth in an orgy of tattling that will lead to the grand jury room.

Felons and Tattlers.

And most palsying of all is the decision of United States Judge Louis Fitzhenry that those having guilty knowledge of infractions of the Jones act are themselves felons under the ancient misprison of felony act. There is the fear that this decision will breed Brookhartism with disastrous results for hosts and guests at wet dinner parties.

Small wonder that social Washington, which, up to date, has not been appreciably inconvenienced by a decade of Volsteadism feels the billows rising and its anchor dragging.

Things may come to such a pass that the prohibition enforcers will cease to protect the supporters of the Anti-Saloon league in congress who are subject to indictment for violation of the prohibition laws. Two dry voting congressmen have been indicted up to date, though with the utmost reluctance, by the dry unit. Representative Alfred Michaelson [Rep., Ill.] was indicted as a result of the liquor leaking baggage he brought home from the West Indies under freedom of the port, though more than a year elapsed between the alleged offense and the indictment. He is a faithful supporter of the Anti-Saloon league on prohibition legislation. He was acquitted, his brother-in-law pleading guilty to the offense and paying a fine therefor.

Then there is Representative Ed-

Crowd in Cafe Sees Official of Union Slain

While an orchestra played a medley of college football songs in the Club Arlington, a night club at 2418 West North avenue, early yesterday morning, Melville Purves, 35 years old, fired four shots into the head of his boyhood companion, Edward Tracy, 31 years old, business agent for the Sign and Bulletin Board Hangers' union. Tracy died an hour later.

Purves was captured by Sergt. Thomas McCaffrey as he attempted to flee in a taxicab. In a cell at the West North avenue station yesterday he maintained a mocking indifference to questioners. Despite his silence, police believe his motive for the murder was jealousy because Tracy succeeded him as business agent of the union.

Walks Into Night Club.

There were about 60 persons in the café when Purves entered with his brother, William, shortly before 5 a. m. The orchestra was playing and the patrons were singing. Unnoticed amidst the noise, Purves walked across the small dance floor to where Tracy sat at a table near the wall.

Tracy was talking to a man companion who later disappeared. Without a word Purves drew a pistol from his pocket and leveled it at Tracy's head, firing once. Then, as Tracy slumped in his chair, Purves fired three more shots, all the bullets entering the victim's head.

While women screamed and their escorts shouted, Purves and his brother slipped quietly to the door of the club. They unlatched the steel door which guarded the place and started to rush down a flight of stairs. A waiter followed and deftly tripped the two fugitives so that they tumbled down the stairs.

Caught Fleeing in Cab.

Sergt. McCaffrey, who had stopped in the place with his wife for a sandwich, came running out of the door with his gun in his hand. He was in time to see the Purves brothers jump into a taxicab. The cab was forced to stop at Western avenue, a few doors away, for a red light, and the policeman jerked open the cab door and ordered the two to step out. They submitted.

Purves laughed in the faces of those who tried to question him.

"You're smart detectives," he jeered. "Find out all about it. You don't get me talking."

Capt. John Ryan said he had known both Purves and Tracy from their boyhood days. Both had been members of a neighborhood gang which congregated at Grand avenue and Paulina street. Both became known in labor circles and Purves became business agent of the sign hangers' union.

Two years ago, Capt. Ryan said, members of the union complained about Purves' high handed methods in ruling. His home was bombed. Six weeks later he was ousted as agent and Tracy succeeded him. He is believed to have blamed Tracy for all his troubles.

Tracy was a widower, living with his mother and a 5 year old son at 417 South Homan avenue. Purves lived at 3842 Fillmore street.

Capt. Ryan issued an order after the shooting directing that the club be closed. He said a policeman had been detailed regularly at the club to see that no gambling took place, but that this guard had left shortly before the shooting.

WARMER TODAY, COLD TOMORROW, FORECAST SAYS

A brief reaction from the cold weather of the last week is expected today in Chicago. J. R. Lloyd, weather forecaster, last night predicted rising temperature and fair skies. Tomorrow, however, will be colder, probably with rain turning to snow, according to the forecaster.

With pools and artificial rinks frozen in many sections of the city, skating became the chief sport of Chicago yesterday. The parks, however, have not yet flooded their rinks.

R. Hitchcock, the Comedian, Dies Suddenly

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 25.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Raymond Hitchcock, 64 years old, actor and musical comedy favorite, died here suddenly early today from a heart attack.

The veteran actor and his wife, Mrs. Zabelle Mangasarian Hitchcock, were returning to their Beverly Hills home from a short automobile trip. As they reached the driveway Hitchcock gasped and fell over on his wife's shoulder. Death was believed to have been almost instant.

Hitchcock, who came to Hollywood several years ago to enter motion pictures, has been subject to heart attacks for several years, friends said.

STRICKEN ILL IN CHICAGO.

Mr. Hitchcock became ill of heart disease in Chicago on May 29 of this year. The actor was taken to St. Luke's hospital and his show, "Your Uncle Dudley," was canceled. Six weeks later, his condition apparently improved, Hitchcock left for Colorado Springs. From there he went to Kansas City for treatment. He returned to his California home about three weeks ago.

Mr. Hitchcock was born on Oct. 22, 1865, in Auburn, N. Y., and made his first stage appearance in 1890. He remarked once that he learned to be an actor selling shoes in his home town.

He started his theatrical career as a substitute player in the W. T. Carleton Opera traveling show. Later he played end man in minstrel performances and appeared in comedies of the "ten, twent, thirt" circuit. In 1899 he appeared as David Tooke in "Three Little Lambs" and in 1901 in "King Dodo."

Stardom Begins in Boston.

Hitchcock's stardom began at the Tremont theater in Boston in 1902 where he took the part of Abijah Booze in "The Yankee Consul," a success that carried him permanently to Broadway. "The Yankee Tourist," "The Red Widow," "The Merry Go Round," "The Beauty Shop," "Betty," "The Man Who Owns Broadway" and "Hitchy-Koo" brought increasing fame down the years.

His widow, known on the stage as Flora Zabelle, was a musical comedy star of several years ago. She is a former resident of Chicago and the daughter of M. M. Mangasarian, once the leader of the Independent religious society here.

ward E. Denison [Rep., Ill.], another faithful supporter of the Anti-Saloon league, the liquor leaking baggage from the West Indies under freedom of the port consigned to whose office in the house office building led to his indictment within the last week. Nearly a year elapsed between the alleged offense and the indictment.

How many other instances of the alleged violation of the prohibition laws by the minions of the Anti-Saloon league in congress have been hushed up by the prohibition enforcers, most of whom have been appointed on the recommendation of the league, nobody knows. An investigation by congress might reveal the precise number, but, of course, congress is not going to investigate either itself or the league by which it is controlled.

Now that Senator Smith W. Brookhart [Rep., Ia.] has told a grand jury the names of the other senators and other guests at the famous wet dinner given by Walter Fahy, Wall street broker, there is speculation as to whether Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt will be requested to tell a grand jury about what she knows of the violation of the prohibition law by statesmen and others in high places.

Will Mrs. Willebrandt Repeat?

"I have not lived in Washington all these years," says Mrs. Willebrandt, "without becoming well acquainted with the fact that many congressmen and senators who vote for bills designed to aid prohibition enforcement are persistent violators of the Volstead law.

"Senators and representatives have appeared on the floor of the senate and house in a drunken condition. During the closing days of a recent session of congress one senator objected to and prevented the passage of important legislation while in such a condition of intoxication that he had to hold to his desk to keep himself upright. Colleagues argued with him in an effort to persuade him to leave the chamber but he refused. His condition was apparent to every member of the senate who was present and to hundreds of people in the galleries."

Denison Inquiry Today.

Congressman Denison is expected to arrive in Washington tomorrow to give bond for his appearance to answer the indictment for violation of the prohibition law. Additional information on what took place when the liquor was found in Mr. Denison's office was obtained today.

Basil N. Quinn and another prohibition agent called on the congressman and informed him they had reason to believe a trunk in his office contained illegally transported liquor. Mr. Denison was asked to open the trunk. Mr. Denison replied he had left the key at home. According to the agents, he explained that it was not liquor, but a set of dishes from Panama that was in the trunk. The agents were skeptical. Finally, it was arranged for a meeting in Room 411 that evening, when Mr. Denison said he would have the key.

That night about 8 o'clock the agents and Mr. Denison met for the second time. There was a key, but, according to the agents, it would not open the trunk. Mr. Denison, it is alleged, told them that if the trunk was his it would have his name on the end of it. They raised the trunk and glimpsed the end. The name on it was "B. B. Dawson."

The Changing Trunk.

One of the agents thereupon declared that on the morning visit when they looked over the trunk there was no name on the end. The name of "B. B. Dawson," they said, had been painted on the trunk in the interval between the two visits.

Mr. Denison showed anger and demanded to know if he was being accused of printing "B. B. Dawson" on the trunk. The agents said they were not accusing him, but they insisted that "somebody" had painted "B. B. Dawson" on the trunk in the course of the afternoon. When the key failed to turn and it began to look as if the secret of the trunk was safe, the agents suggested it might be opened in some other way.

Mr. Denison stood by. It is said he did not protest. One of the agents produced a screwdriver and a plier. He tinkered with the lock for a few minutes, then something snapped and the trunk was open.

Mr. Denison, as the story is told by the agents, expressed great surprise. He denied ownership of the liquor and suggested that the express company had delivered a trunk belonging to somebody else.

COUNTY OFFICIAL ANSWERS ATTACK ON HIS SOBRIETY

County Commissioner Frank Wilson, whose sobriety at county board meetings was questioned on Saturday by J. L. Jacobs, economy adviser of the board, yesterday replied to Jacobs. Wilson has introduced a resolution calling for the cancellation of Jacob's contract with the county.

"Jacobs took occasion to say that I have attended few county board meetings and intimated I was not sober when I did attend," said Commissioner Wilson. "The record will show that my attendance at the board meetings ranks very high. As to being strictly sober, I might quote Abraham Lincoln, who, when answering a criticism of Gen. Grant, said: 'I would like to know the brand of whisky he drinks.'

"When I drink, I have done so openly and I like lots of company. I am not a hypocrite. I want to ask Mr. Jacobs if he was strictly sober the night Johnny Gibson [Commissioner John Gibson] poured the catsup on his shirt and face?

"Mr. Jacobs, by his constant bickering with county officials, has destroyed any efficiency he might have, and it is time to do away with his services. I want everybody to know that I dictated this statement myself and I couldn't have done that if I had not been sober."

Jacobs, in reply to this, said: "This is no time to start muddying the waters."

SNATCHES PURSE FROM BABY, BUT BRINGS IT BACK

Genevieve Glauner, 3 months old, was prattling in her carriage yesterday afternoon in front of her home, 1562 Florence avenue, Evanston, when a shabby, middle aged man, came by and snatched from the baby a purse containing $13. Her mother had left it there to amuse Genevieve.

Deprived of her plaything, the infant wailed a protest which brought the mother, Mrs. Fred W. Glauner, to the window in time to glimpse the thief in flight. Mrs. Glauner summoned the police, went out to soothe Genevieve with a rattle, and then returned to the house.

Genevieve fell fast asleep. She was wide awake and cooing when the police returned half an hour later after a futile search. In the baby's hands was the purse from which the $13 had not been taken.

DRY LAW ARGUED BY GRAPE MAN AND DR. WILSON

Prosperity and Hypocrisy Issues Stressed.

New York, Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church, debated today with E. Clemens Horst of San Francisco, wealthy grower of wine grapes, malt and grain, the proposition, "Resolved: That the Eighteenth Amendment and Prohibition Are a Success and Should Be Continued."

The halls and corridors surrounding the ball room of the Astor, where the debate took place, were clogged for an hour after its conclusion by excited partisans, conducting a dozen impromptu debates among themselves.

Each Side Feels Insulted.

Although the featured debate took place with every show of decorum and courtesy on the part of the contestants, some members of the audience, comprised largely of delegations from organizations that take a stand for or against prohibition, declared loudly that Mr. Horst had "insulted" Dr. Wilson while others replied with equal conviction that Dr. Wilson had "insulted" Mr. Horst.

"Prohibition at its worst has proven itself to be better than the liquor traffic ever was at its best," declared Dr. Wilson, the first speaker.

Prohibition, he asserted, was the cause of American prosperity after the war, as contrasted with hard times in other countries. The United States, he said, "was the nation that had the foresight to shut down on the liquor traffic in the nick of time and save $2,500,000,000 that had been spent for booze every year before, and turned it into the legitimate channels of trade and it kept these channels full and overflowing."

Alcoholism Deaths Cited.

Mr. Horst, in answer, asserted there were more drunkards today than ever before in the history of the country.

"Merely putting a law on the books that has resulted disastrously is not an accomplishment for prohibition or anything else," he said.

He declared that prior to the debate he had furnished Dr. Wilson with United States government statistics showing an increase in savings bank deposits of only one-tenth of a cent per capita per day, while there had been a 69 per cent increase in wages, an increase in the death rate from alcoholism, an increase in the general death rate, an increase in social and other diseases, and an increase in penitentiary commitments, largely among youth.

Dry Chief's Offer Bared.

"Thanks to the influence of California in Washington," Mr. Horst said, "the prohibition director, an appointee of my reverend opponent, was in San Francisco a few weeks ago and had a meeting of the grape growers and shippers, and fixed it up with them," he continued.

"He said, 'Gentlemen, if you will help us put a stop to the wholesale bootlegging of wine, we will let you make all the wine you please at your home, and we guarantee you against any interference at home with home made wine.' And yet these people talk about respect for the constitution. The hypocrites!"

He went on to condemn "political churches," and "political preachers."

IF I WERE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The Tribune invites pithy, brief statements describing what you would do if you were President of the United States. The invitation is to Tribune readers everywhere. Address Government Editor, The Tribune.

Editor: In my public utterances I would repeatedly call the attention of the people to the fact that a faulty system of election is the greatest danger that our institutions are facing. I would urge to repeal all primary election laws and return to the convention system of making nominations for public office. ARTHUR BARRITT, Livingston, Mont.

Editor: If I were President I would order a thorough investigation of the War Finance corporation and ascertain why practically all of the stockmen of the southwest lost their lifetime savings through its dealings. L. M. ARRS, Clovis, N. M.

Editor: I would, for the benefit of the future generation, make it impossible for newspapers to give front page or detailed accounts of murder, rape, and divorce cases. P. A. C. Mc.

Editor: I would urge the married ladies of America to begin an immediate campaign for contributions toward erecting a monument honoring the discoverer of toast.—Evanston, Ill.

Editor: If I were President I would have congress modify the prohibition law and then adjourn congress for the next ten years, as this is the only way to give stability to business.—Martin Adler, 921 Eastwood avenue.

Editor: If I were President I would most certainly see to it that government bonds were kept up to par.—H. J. Decker, Delavan, Wis.

Editor: I would try to borrow from Italy Dr. Mussolini and bring him here to diagnose our stock exchanges, prohibition, and a few other sores and treat them with his own justly celebrated patent medicines.—I. E. Canini.

2 FISTED DRINKER IS TOO HONEST TO STAY OUT OF JAIL

Consider the case of J. R. McGinnis of Akron, O. The Evanston police did, and voted Mr. McGinnis as upright a citizen as ever came out of Ohio.

Mr. McGinnis came to Dyche stadium on Saturday to watch Notre Dame overwhelm Northwestern. Flushed with confidence and with a beverage in a speakeasy, Mr. McGinnis began to celebrate before the game began.

So vociferous were his cheers that Policeman Atwood was constrained to take him into custody. Mr. McGinnis mourned in a cell over his unused football ticket until Lieut. Frank Weideling, moved to pity, bade the prisoner go see the game, but return afterwards.

Half an hour after Notre Dame's last touchdown Mr. McGinnis returned to the station and entered his cell. He remained there docilely until yesterday, when Justice of the Peace John Russ held a special court session, imposed a $5 fine, and sent Mr. McGinnis back to Akron.

REPORTS HUSBAND MISSING.

Mrs. Corinne Newman, 1106 30th avenue, Melrose Park, yesterday asked the police to find her husband, John, who disappeared from his home on Thursday.

MINNEAPOLIS CHICAGO ST. PAUL

WOMEN BUYERS SWELL PARADE TO PROSPERITY

Rush to Chicago Shops for New Styles.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Women are no more sensible than they were in the gay '90s, despite years of earning their own living, for not since the '90s has women's apparel assumed the importance that it has this fall, concrete proof of which is supplied in the amount of clothes they are buying.

Despite mournful forebodings of fireside philosophers that the country is going straight to the dogs because of a tricky stock market, Chicago women have turned utterly shop minded and are going in for clothes as they have not done since the days when women were supposed to be helpless and ornamental.

Loop department stores and shops, which expected November buying to dwindle, report that in the last two weeks business has mounted steadily, and several reported that it was appreciably larger than the corresponding period of a year ago.

Here's Store Head's Answer.

"The answer? It's simple," one department store president said. "The period of trepidation which followed the introduction of the new styles in women's clothes—the period of resentment, I might say—has passed.

"The women who liked the long, trailing skirts on others, but couldn't visualize themselves getting away with them, have become self-conscious in the short skirts they formerly took such pride in. Those who have held out against long skirts to the end are coming around and buying them now.

"Frankly, the new styles were difficult to put across at first. The older women were the last to change over. They hated to give up the straight line short dresses."

Women executives agreed with him, an informal survey showed. The older women loved being modern and free—free from stays and rustling petticoats yards wide, free from sentiments concerning maidenly modesty and the restrictions of being a lady, free from the convention that men were to be charmed and served. These older women were the ones who resented the return to trains and waistlines and corsets, and all the age old signs of femininity.

They Return to Romance.

The younger women who were brought up on Freud rather than Elsie Dinsmore, and instead of languishing over Tennyson read Dorothy Parker or other advocates of hardness—these young women were the first to adopt the old-fashioned styles this year. They love being quaint, according to women executives of stores.

"The stock market seems rather remote when a woman looks at herself in a mirror clad in one of the new gowns or suits," said a woman official of a loop store.

"They give a woman a chance to be more romantic. Do you know, I think we are tired of being so matter-of-fact about everything. Of course there still is a lot of controversy over it, but it seems to me women are glad to abandon the uncompromising austerity, the lack of non-essentials, which our war-jaded senses demanded for a while."

"There is a piquancy and distinction to the new styles which women have been starved for," said one store owner, a man. "For years women have reduced dress to a uniform, almost less ornamental and less varying than men's clothes."

Day of Charmer Is Back.

Just when women almost had convinced men that they had minds, that they could make as much money and be as self-reliant as men, they have abandoned the hard brilliance of being intellectual and turned right about face, several persons interviewed agreed. They have set out again to charm.

The buying of the new long dresses, with flaring hemlines, clinging bodices and high waist-lines, is not limited to any one class of women. The $12.75 dress has the same lines, the same appeal of softness and slinkiness that the $195 dress has.

At the opera embarrassed gentlemen stumble over trains of their ladies as they promenade, and many a debutante returns from a dance with her trailing gown a complete wreck. Many husbands, dazzled by the dignity and haughtiness of their wives, are reminded of the days when they tried by subtle means to entangle them in their trains while waltzing.

Like Ladies from "Graustark."

With long white gloves, high-busted, décolleté gowns and even long petticoats under their swishing skirts, the opera-going ladies might have stepped out of the pages of "Graustark" or Du Maurier's "Trilby."

"Somehow, the new evening dresses are much more wicked than the old," one woman said. "I have one with a high Romanesque bodice in front and no back at all, and a slinky skirt, and I feel positively melodramatic in it."

Not only at the opera but at the movies as well are the new styles displayed. If anything, merchants agreed, the Chicago girl who works is more apt to be up to the minute in dress, and more eager to don the exciting long skirts than the society woman.

SKIRT STYLES DEBATE CONTINUES IN CITIES; HERE'S SURVEY RESULT

New York, Nov. 24.—[U.P.]—The United Press, in a nation-wide survey, has found that the shop girls, stenographers, and manicurists are for short skirts. The Junior leaguers, debbies, and co-eds are equally determined in their conviction that their knees are nobody's business.

The survey, tabulated by cities, tells its own graphic, foreboding story.

NEW YORK.—Long skirts are in ample evidence on Times square during the evening theater rush hours, but knee lengths still are predominant even then.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Most of the women are swinging over to the longs.

MEMPHIS.—The girls in Dixie are wearing them longer for formal attire, with perhaps an inch added to the old length for street, sports, and business.

ST. LOUIS.—Society favors long skirts, but department stores say the shorts still are in demand.

BUTTE, Mont.—They're still wearing them short here, with a few long skirts at formal affairs.

SEATTLE.—Short on the streets and long in the evening.

WASHINGTON.—Afternoon and evening attire features long skirts, but the shorts are as popular as ever for street wear.

COLUMBUS, O.—Those who can afford to buy the long ones are wearing them, but the general sentiment seems to be against the new style.

CHICAGO.—Most Chicago girls like them knee length or even higher, but a few long ones are seen on the streets.

DES MOINES, Ia.—Long skirts are being adopted for evening and afternoon wear, but not for street and office. More shorts than longs at dances.

KANSAS CITY.—Society wears them long in the evening, short in the daytime, and the shorts have it.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Long skirts are rapidly gaining headway here. Those who can afford them are wearing them.

VETS MARCH AT GRAVE OF THEIR WAR COMMANDER

Veterans of the 33d division yesterday, at the conclusion of their third annual convention passed in review before the last resting place of their wartime commander, Maj. Gen. George Bell Jr., at Rosehill cemetery. The ceremonies were held at 2 p. m. and most of the high officers of the division, adjudged by the German general staff to be one of the "five most effective divisions" at the French front, were in attendance.

After a day of meetings on Saturday a banquet was held by the veterans at the Palmer house. There commissioned officers joined with privates and non coms, in recalling incidents of their world war experiences and in singing wartime songs. A message was sent to Mrs. George Bell Jr., widow of their commander.

Among the officers of the division participating in the reunion were Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin, Brig. Gen. John J. Garrity, Col. Charles Roth, and Col. Charles Green of Aurora. The Rev. N. B. Clinch, 4600 Ellis avenue, is chaplain of the division.

JERUSALEM ARAB SHOOTS BRITISH COURT OFFICIAL

[Copyright: 1929 By the New York Times.]

JERUSALEM, Nov. 24.—Norman Da Mattos Bentwich, attorney general of the Palestine government was shot at three times and wounded in the foot by an Arab youth early this afternoon as he was about to leave the government offices.

This was the first attempt on the life of a British official in the disorders that began last August. The assailant himself was wounded by one of his own shots.

WASHINGTON'S BLOOD RELATIVE BARRED OUT OF U. S. AS FOREIGNER

New York, Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Congress is going to be asked shortly to correct an ironic quirk of the immigration laws by which a blood relative of George Washington, the first President, has been ordered to leave the United States, the circumstances, however, being their own odd twist in that this particular Washington is a Belgian, although his grandfather fought for the Union in the civil war.

Leon Jules William Washington, 24, accountant, born in Brussels, arrived in New York in August, 1928. He had a visa which permitted him to remain here six months as a visitor. He spent the time visiting his brother Robert in New Jersey and continuing his studies in accountancy.

According to John J. Curry, former Republican candidate for congress, who has interested himself in the case, Leon Washington was ordered to leave the United States by Feb. 8, 1929. He went to Toronto and still is there, hoping to find some way of reentering this country.

Raiders Find Man Fatally Stabbed; Hold Assailant

New York, Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Police making a liquor raid in an east side house stumbled upon tragedy. They found Andrew Benovich fatally stabbed and arrested Edward Rogers. They two are said to have fought with knives and chairs.

COUPLE ROBBED ON SOUTH SIDE.

OUSTED PASTOR'S SUIT FOR $50,000 TO START TODAY

Trial of the $50,000 slander suit brought by the Rev. John A. L. Warren, unfrocked Methodist minister, against six leading citizens of Durand, Ill., is scheduled to begin this morning before Circuit Judge Arthur E. Fisher at Rockford.

The defendants are Judd Van Sickle, former Durand supervisor; Albert Fritz, A. E. Swinson, Mrs. Sylvia Sodaman, and Wallace and Edgar Best. All are members of the congregation from which the Rev. Mr. Warren was ousted as pastor two years ago following charges made by Miss Hazel Lamb, a domestic in his home.

Whether the girl, now Mrs. Hazel Lathery, will appear to repeat the story she told before the Rock River conference that resulted in the minister's unfrocking, was not disclosed last night by counsel for the defendants, who had previously promised to produce her as their star witness. The Rev. Mr. Warren, a married man, has been working as a laborer in a Rockford foundry.

Aged Brooklyn Pair Die, Leaving List of All Kin

New York, Nov. 24.—[Special.]—John Vogel, 70, Brooklyn church sexton, and his wife, also 70, but still a public school janitress, had expressed fears of older age. They were found dead today from gas. On a scratch pad in their room had been written the addresses of all their relatives.

TAKE TO ROOFS AS STORM HITS PORTUGAL COAST

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Relief trains with food and clothing from neighboring districts tonight were sent to the northeast coast, where a fierce Atlantic gale did great damage.

Torrential rains and floods hit the coast city of Vienna do Castello. At the nearby town of Arcos Valle de Ves the Lima river burst its banks, swept away bridges, uprooted trees, and carried off cattle. The populace fled in panic before the swirling waters. Early reports described peasants marooned on cottage roofs screaming for help.

Enormous damage was done to crops and two factories were blown down. The local power station was submerged and the town plunged in complete darkness, making the rescue work more difficult. The floods subsided tonight and families returned to their homes to find much of their belongings destroyed by mud and water.

Woman Called Embezzler for Failing to Deposit Cash

Logansport, Ind., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Mary Winegardner, 34, is held in the local jail charged with embezzlement of $1,800. The money was turned over to her by Fred Byers, who says he asked that she deposit it in a local bank. Three days afterward the woman disappeared with the money. She was arrested at Kokomo for local authorities.

FAKES HIS OWN DEATH TO SEVER ALL FAMILY TIES

Then Fearing Real Death He Reveals Plot.

BY STANLEY JACKSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 24.—The story of a man who sought to cut adrift from unsatisfying surroundings and start life afresh in a new country but was thwarted in doing so by fate, has just come to light here. Illinois and Montreal supply the two important scenes in the exploit.

John E. Donovan, 32, successful contractor of Decatur, Ill., decided about three months ago to quit the community in which he lived and to leave his wife and start life afresh in a new country.

On Sept. 5 he arranged a fishing party, including his wife, and Jack Mulligan, state mining inspector, and Mrs. Mulligan, the party going to Beardstown. That night, on pretense of rowing out to fix the fishing line, Donovan overturned his boat, let out a cry for help, and under cover of the darkness swam downstream with the current of the Illinois river to a spot where previously he had placed some clothes and money, about $1,000 in all. He walked to the nearest small town and took a train to Jacksonville and thence to Detroit, Toronto and Montreal. Meanwhile his wife and the Mulligans thought him drowned. There followed a vain search for his body in the river.

Revealed by Illness.

"Donovan might have remained undiscovered but sickness overtook him. He contracted a severe case of arthritis, necessitating his removal to the Homeopathic hospital here. But the pain was so bad he thought he was going to die. He figures his property in Decatur as worth between $100,000 and $200,000. This would not go to his wife until seven years after his disappearance. Some were also blaming Mr. Mulligan for his death. So he wrote a letter to his wife, told her where he was and urged her to bring the necessary papers for him to sign so that she could become possessor of his property at once. She came here and the papers were signed in the presence of a notary.

"Now Donovan is on the road to recovery. His sickness was not as serious as he thought, although very painful. When visited at the hospital here today, he was constantly groaning. The arthritis has affected many muscles of his body and legs. The physician in charge of the case said that Donovan is now on the road to recovery and the arthritis should be out of his system in a week or two.

Refuses to Return Home.

"Donovan has been in the hospital under the name of J. P. Somers, a name assumed on leaving Decatur. His plans never to return to Decatur or his wife. Montreal he finds too cold and says he will go south where it is warmer when he leaves the hospital.

"My wife can tell the reason I left Decatur if she wants to, but I am through with her and Decatur. A woman can get a divorce easier than a man in Illinois, and if she wants to get one she can go ahead—I am through with it, and as soon as I can get well enough to travel I am going to go down south."

RAT, THEN ROB DELICATESSEN.

RUSSIANS START NUTCRACKER DRIVE

In a concerted attack, 60,000 Russian troops are pushing their way into Manchuria with China's troops in disorderly retreat. The objective of the Russian army, which is moving in from east and west, is Harbin.

Dispatches report that soviet forces have captured Hailar and Muling, two important towns on the Chinese Eastern railway. Hailar is at the western end of the railway and Muling at the eastern end.

In the drive, the Russian army penetrated behind the Chinese army's position at Hailar and Muling, cutting off the Chinese retreat. The arrows point to Hailar and Muling, the captured cities, while the shaded semi-circles show the areas occupied by the Russian army.

BILLY SUNDAY'S SON TAKEN INTO CUSTODY ON THEFT ACCUSATION

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 24.—(AP)—George M. Sunday, son of Billy Sunday, the evangelist, was arrested at Ben Lomond, in the Santa Cruz mountains, last night, on a charge of grand theft. He was taken to Santa Cruz, where he filed $500 cash bond.

Sunday, who gave the name of C. I. Castleman, immediately left for San Francisco in a taxi. With him at the time of his arrest was a woman believed to have been Mrs. Mauryne La Salle, Hollywood cloak model.

Sunday recently rented an automobile in Oakland. The car was supposed to be returned Nov. 17. After a lapse of several days the Oakland firm sought aid of police in recovering the machine.

Mrs. Harriet Sunday has been reported as preparing to file papers for a divorce in Los Angeles. She has stated she surprised her husband and Mrs. La Salle in her home on the night of Oct. 26. Warrants based on the allegations of Mrs. Sunday are awaiting service in Los Angeles.

WIFE FINDS HER HUSBAND SLAIN IN NO. CHICAGO

With a bullet wound in his head above the right eye, Peter Mahoric, 41 years old, 298 West 16th street, North Chicago, was found dead in his garage at 2 o'clock yesterday morning by his wife, Pauline.

The woman told North Chicago police that Mahoric, hearing a noise outside about midnight, had gone forth hoping to catch the thieves who had stolen two tires two nights before.

The police said Mahoric had been arrested twice for selling moonshine. They held it more probable that Mahoric had been killed by alcohol dealers than by thieves. He had four children.

Gang Holds Up 2 Women; Takes $3,875 and Auto

Mrs. Evelyn Miller, 50 North Long avenue, and Miss Fannie Hillman, 3111 Douglas boulevard, reported to the police last night that three gunmen in an automobile robbed them of jewelry and fur coats valued at $3,875 after forcing Mrs. Miller's car to the curb at Belle Plaine and Kedzie avenues. After robbing the women, two of the bandits drove away in Mrs. Miller's car, the third following in the bandit machine. Mrs. Miller lost a mink coat valued at $2,225 and a $500 diamond ring and Miss Hillman a fur coat valued at $1,150.

Mrs. Miller is the widow of Max Miller, brother of Davey and Hirschie Miller.

RUSSIA FIXES TERMS

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Nov. 24.—The soviet broadcasting station at Khabarovsk, Siberia, announced tonight the terms which soviet Russia demands as condition for cessation of hostilities against China. The terms are:

1. The Chinese Eastern railway must be restored unconditionally to the status existing prior to July 11, when the Chinese ousted the soviet officials.
2. The Chinese army must be withdrawn from the frontier.
3. All of the white Russian troops on Chinese soil must be disarmed.
4. All soviet citizens arrested and interned in China must be released.

The Russian spokesman declared these fundamental conditions must be accepted before any formal negotiations can eventuate.

"Otherwise, if China continues to use the Chinese eastern railway as an instrument of oppression and exploitation of Soviet Russia," the radio statement said, "then the Soviet government intends to create a more serious situation than now exists and more serious steps will be taken by the Soviet government for the purpose of enforcing its viewpoint."

The spokesman said the recent Soviet military action resulting in the occupation of Manchouli and Dalai-Nor as well as most of the Barga district of Manchuria was taken because the Chinese were making preparations to occupy the Russian towns of Chita and Vladivostok.

Deputy Sheriff Looks Out of Window; Sees Robbery

Fred Schultz, 40 years old, 919 Rush street, spent most of yesterday morning loading merchandise from the Friedman department store, 5319 North Clark street, on a truck, and had carried out $2,000 worth of loot when Deputy Sheriff John A. Smith, 1473 Summerdale avenue, looked out of his rear window and saw Schultz at work in the alley. He arrested Schultz, who confessed he was robbing the store.

Mr. P. J. Anderson of 987 Raymond Ave., St. Paul, Minn., is proprietor of a butcher shop. In his work he must undergo many sudden changes of temperature—for each trip into the ice box is like venturing into the Arctic regions. That was the way he caught a bad cough not long ago that kept him coughing "day and night." A salesman from his wholesale meat house heard him coughing and told him he ought to try REM. He did—got a bottle at Harm's Pharmacy, Raymond and Hampden—and soon his cough was a thing of the past. In his own words, "REM relieved me very quickly. Now whenever I get a cough, I stop it quick with REM." Try REM yourself—you'll be surprised and pleased.

REVEALS STATE CONFISCATES 64 MILLIONS AS TAX

Central Levy Authority Is Urged After Survey.

Elimination of unequal and discriminating taxation by centralization of administrative responsibility to force adjustments of tax valuations to a state-wide uniform level, is recommended by Herbert D. Simpson, associate professor of economics at Northwestern university. The recommendation is made in an exhaustive survey of the tax situation to be published shortly.

The present taxing system is viewed by Prof. Simpson as disheartening with some tax payers suffering confiscation and others enjoying favoritism. It is estimated that of the total amount of taxes levied on real property in Illinois in 1927 ($334,597,450 by state and local governments) 19.1 per cent, or $64,000,000, constituted confiscation. This means, according to Prof. Simpson, that this sum was paid by persons shouldering the just burden of those who obtained unwarranted exemption.

Condition Called General.

The condition is not peculiar to any locality, political administration or group of officials, the survey shows. The same results emerge amid the skyscrapers of Chicago, the miners' homes of Williamson county, the farms of Marshall county, and the industries of St. Clair county.

Chicago, hitherto considered the home of tax corruption and fixing, was no worse than the rest of the state, according to the survey. In fact, the deviation from uniformity in Chicago was only 36 per cent in the 1927 assessment while that for the rest of the state was 51 per cent.

Prof. Simpson presents an index of equality for Chicago and ten representative counties for the 1927 assessment. The computation is made by figuring the average level of assessment in each district with its divergence from the state level and the average deviation of individual assessments in the community.

Chicago in Second Place.

	Percentage.
Marshall county	68.9
City of Chicago	63.5
DeKalb county	60.9
Alexander county	60.8
Boone county	55.6
Tazewell county	53.5
LaSalle county	52.4
St. Clair county	51.5
Williamson county	49.9
Bureau county	49.9
Lake county	37.0

The present tax system, practically unchanged since Illinois was a community of settlers and when Fort Dearborn still guarded the shores of Lake Michigan against British invasion, is obsolete, the report declares. The cause of the inequalities are listed as diffusion of responsibility, political personnel of assessing bodies, lack of scientific methods, abuses of the present personal property system, and lack of adequate judicial remedy. It is pointed out that Chicago is now undergoing a scientific adjustment in its reassessment.

Cites Public's Confusion.

Prof. Simpson declares that the public confuses an adequate tax system with a vague idea of relief from taxes in general and high taxes in particular. Students of taxation agree that there is no serious prospect for any reduction in aggregate tax burdens, but, on the contrary, suggest continued increases, he writes.

Taxpayers, he says, must object to paying taxes for which they see no corresponding return, based on arbitrary and capricious assessments to support a system of political or personal racketeering. In achieving this the taxpayers will find relief from inequalities and dishonesty, which will incidentally bring reduction to those paying the burdens of others.

The first essential to this object is held to be denfiite location of responsibility throughout the tax system, not only by merely changing a few titles but by conferring authority so that there can be no doubt who is responsible for results. Prof. Simpson suggests placing more power in the hands of the state tax commission, but urges a reduction of the personnel from five to the former number of three, holding that the increase of 1921 was purely political.

Plan to Remedy Situation.

This commission, Prof. Simpson says, should be given general supervision over local assessment, authority to order a reassessment in any district, authority to make such a reassessment where local officials are unable or unwilling to do so, and the power to hold local agencies answerable to the new figures. He would also give the state commission authority to assess public service corporations and "corporate excesses," securities over and above tangible property.

The next step in the reorganization is listed as the abolishment of multiple boards of assessors. They should be replaced by a single assessor who would also be a member of the board of review, the report says. It suggests that this official be appointed by the county board, since the power conveyed should be above political buccaneering.

Prof. Simpson says that the county board would not dare to appoint an irresponsible individual, and that while an elective official can scarcely lose sight of political angles, an appointee may do so.

Would Change Review System.

The board of review, as it functions at present, would also be discarded. In its place the report pictures an appellant body composed of the appointed assessor, a Circuit judge, the president of the county board, the county clerk, or a similar arrangement of officials.

The survey also suggests the removal of the quadrennial limitation, pointing out that it has never equalized burdens in the past, and asking that it be replaced by a system kept up to date from year to year. Prof. Simpson urges publicity of the assessments each year so that any mistakes might be speedily adjusted on complaint of affected individuals and as a safeguard against repetition of the worst features of the old system.

Prof. Simpson declares that no element of taxation has accumulated more confusion, incompetence and dishonesty than the taxation of personal property. It is general belief, he writes, that the general property tax is impossible of enforcement and should be abolished.

Discusses State Income Tax.

The report mentions that the excessive burden on realty and other tangible property has compelled fifteen states to have some form of individual or corporate income tax. If this is to be adopted in Illinois, Prof. Simpson holds that the authority to levy should be given to the state tax commission to insure just and equal imposition on all.

"There need be no utopian illusions about the results that these measures may be expected to accomplish," Prof. Simpson concludes. "They will not eliminate tax burdens and will not by any means constitute a complete solution of the tax problem in Illinois. But they will mean the elimination of the most vicious types of political exploitation and personal racketeering in connection with taxes; they will shift a part of the burden from real estate and tangible property to income, where it will correspond more nearly to the ability to pay; and, by spreading the remaining taxes on property more equitably, will greatly reduce the friction, irritation, and the 'real burden of taxation.'"

A police ambulance took the child to the Evanston hospital. Dr. Harold A. Quint said her condition was serious.

SHAKESPEARE IS ON PAYING BASIS AT CIVIC THEATER

Harley L. Clark Tells of His Venture.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

"Shakespeare spells ruin," said old-time managers.

That saying founded a gloomy tradition which still functions.

But Harley L. Clarke, head of the Utilities Power and Light corporation, which operates from South La Salle street, has made Shakespeare pay in a week.

The first week—which was week before last—of the Shakespeare repertory company that Harley L. Clarke has installed at the new Civic theater showed a profit which, if not gaudy, was emphatically neat. The play was "Hamlet."

The second week, ending last Saturday night, showed another profit. The play was "Julius Caesar."

Those facts made Harvey L. Clarke unique news.

Many Predicted Failure.

A fortnight ago persons who account themselves expert in management were saying that the Clarke venture in Shakespeare would be "just another of those things"—a desolating, desultory experiment that would speedily consume a great many thousands of dollars of the Clarke millions.

"I doubt that," said Mr. Clarke—"and anyway I'm awfully fond of Shakespeare."

He's Little Known.

The man became a Chicago mystery. Few outside La Salle street knew much about him, his career, or his personality.

And in La Salle street they were asking, "Why does the head of U. P. & L. C., with its gross of forty-nine millions, and of the largest brick plant in the world, and the manufacturer of ninety-two per cent of all the motion picture machines, want to be toying with a Shakespeare repertory company, 'organized not for profit?'"

He Dispels the Mystery.

Saturday morning this strange being, who is round and bald, chronically cheerful, and forty-seven years old, bounced off a Pullman from New York and by ten o'clock was in his office, full of steam and Shakespeare.

He shooed away exigent secretaries in order to talk Shakespeare—and to

IT IS THIS PERSON'S FIXED OPINION— AS THE SUN DISPELS DARKNESS SO CAN GOOD BOOKS DISPEL IGNORANCE—
CHING CHOW
Copyright, 1929, by The Chicago Tribune.

dispel the mystery. (You know how ardent you feel about Shakespeare after a night in a sleeping car.)

Why, then, had he gone into this project? What was the mainspring and what the motive?

While he was answering he kept chuckling and twinkling, and he made hitting gestures with his clenched fists. He talked about Shakespeare as if the plays were as alluring as golf—and he was perfectly unself-conscious about his passion and he spoke in slang when slang made it possible for him to be instantly forcible.

Two Great Writers in World.

"I always liked Shakespeare," he said. "I think there have been two great writers in the world.

"One was Jesus—though of course others put the words of Jesus into writing.

"The other writer was Shakespeare.

"So I thought it would be fine if I could do something to help keep Shakespeare regularly before my country and community."

He began making the hitting gestures, saying:

"I'll bet there isn't a page, however intricate, in Spinoza or Nietsche—no, nor in any of the philosophers from Socrates down—that you can't turn to Shakespeare and find that he packed the same thought into about so much!"

With that the utilities man unclenched and measured off an inch with thumb and forefinger.

"Why could he do that? Because he knew human nature.

He Knew Human Nature.

"Never was a man who so knew human nature. I think he's the greatest delight in that way that ever—well, anyway I budgeted it all out, and I figured that the whole thing's a practical matter and that if it goes it must go as a practical matter.

"And if it goes as such it will go on and on, and the great, human Shakespeare'll always be before the people for them to hear and rejoice in.

"Now if it goes on a practical basis—I don't mean profit-making—for three years, then I'll put it on a permanent basis.

"This year the repertory will be exclusively Shakespeare because that will be a thorough test of mistakes and successes and of the company. If we meet the test we'll add other plays to the Shakespeare repertory—but always classics."

Possible Intake $168,000.

Mr. Clarke seized a pad and began figuring.

"Budgeting," he said, "is the thing. Know where you stand. The possible intake of the Civic theater during the Shakespeare season of twelve weeks is $168,000. Today, when we are only two weeks old, 62 per cent of that intake is in already in tickets sold and advance sales. Our Wednesday matinées were sold out weeks in advance.

"All the plays as presented by this company are to go into the talkies for wide distribution to school children. Revenues from that source will also go into the company's treasury and they will be used in strengthening it."

The founder of the company has no illusions about it. "I know," he said, "that it can be strengthened both at key points and in ensemble, and it will be until it is the best to be had in this country. Every mistake we may make now will teach us what to do next season.

Hopes for Rivals.

"What I'm hoping is that New York, Philadelphia, and Boston will try to rival us in the organization of Shakespeare repertory companies. That would be the finest thing that could happen for the cause of Shakespeare in our time. Let 'em compete—the rival companies going on tour to the homes of their rivals. It would be like baseball! I mean, what a stimulation!

"I think some of the things we ought to do will be for the public to say, I hope it will say.

"What pleases me much is that Erlanger and the Shuberts are already bidding against each other for us when we go on tour with six of the tragedies and four of the comedies in February—and nobody can say they're not practical men. I believe they believe in this thing."

Thus he steamed along, brisk, eager, unassuming; as engaging a combination of go-getter and idealist as ever I interviewed; loving the pomp and splendor and the pith of Shakespeare, but his own speech wholly undecorated and all his sentences brief.

He was born in Detroit. His father is a physician, now 88 years old. When I asked Dr. Forest Ray Moulton, now Clarke's assisting go-getter, and idealist, but until 1927 professor of astronomy at the University of Chicago, and author of "Celestial Mechanics," what university the father sent his son to, the assisting go-getter replied, "Nobody ever sent him anywhere. He went to the University of Michigan and worked his way while there, I believe."

He added musingly:

"A bundle of contradictions. Keen in a deal, but when he's generous—and that's most of the time—tremendously so. At his desk at eight in the morning. An awe-inspiring gift for hard work. He couldn't do it but for his physical vitality. Tennis is his best game—and some golf."

Broad Vision of Chicagoland.

Clarke and Moulton have a game. They like to draw a circle with Chicago as its center and with an imagined radius of 500 miles. They call the radius "a night's ride" that takes you on the north beyond the Lake Superior iron region, on the east beyond Buffalo and Pittsburgh, on the south to northern Alabama, on the southwest to the edge of Oklahoma, on the west into one-third of Kansas and Nebraska, on the northwest into most of Minnesota and a little of South Dakota.

That is their vision of Chicagoland. They say their circle has an area of 784,000 square miles and that you could put England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, France, Belgium, Holland, and Denmark in it, and have 60,000 miles left empty. They say their Chicagoland circle contains one hundred times more petroleum, five times more timber, three times more fertile soil, and "enormously more" iron, copper, coal, and salt than do the twelve European countries which their circle would more than hold.

Then they set down what they call "other advantages." To wit: One language spoken by fifty million people, one system of money, no barriers to commerce and communication, few hampering traditions, no menace of foreign interference, a stable government, and an intelligent, ambitious people—never in history a people so well housed and clothed.

"If we could live a hundred years from now," say Clarke and Moulton, "we would find this the most interesting area in the world to live in. As we can't, let's help to make it interesting now." Shakespeare is one of their ways to help.

Out of that kind of circle drawing and visioning grew Clarke's dream of taking Shakespeare to the people. But his love of Shakespeare goes back to the days of his youth in Chicago when he and Fritz Leiber, present head of and Shakespeare repertory company and Doris Keane were fellow members of student dramatic organizations.

His Dream Come True.

Ten years ago Clarke dreamed of establishing a permanent company for the presentation of Shakespeare. But until he could work out his dream he said nothing. When he worked it out he said little. On Saturday he talked reluctantly until his enthusiasm got the better of him. Then he was a torrent.

The man is publicity-shy. He is not in "Who's Who." His envelope in THE TRIBUNE'S morgue contains five short clippings for a period of nine years. One tells how in 1924 he bought the Webster building in La Salle street for two million eight hundred thousand dollars; another how in 1927 he was building a two hundred thousand dollar home in Evanston, and a third how in the same year his U. L. & P. corporation bought a controlling interest in the fifty million dollar Laclede Gas and Electric company of St. Louis.

He would much prefer that this article should be about Leiber or Tyrone Power than about himself.

But they get more publicity in one month of a theatrical season than he has had in his whole career. Besides, they are not mystery men. Nor are they paying the bills.

Mother Reads Note and Police Are Waiting.

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Angus Cox, 20 year old convicted auto thief, met out on Saturday night to aid in the bringing about of a secret rendezvous between his gang chief and the latter's sweetheart, a sixteen year old Muncie girl.

As a result the bandit gang drove into an ambush set by law enforcement officers of three counties, and Cox was shot to death, while his two companions are being widely sought throughout Indiana and southern Illinois.

The ambuscade was laid about an old abandoned store building near the village of Hartford City, thirty miles northeast of Muncie. One story is that the gang was betrayed into the hands of the posse by the mother of the gangster's sweetheart who intercepted a note from the gangster to the girl and turned it over to Chief of Detectives William H. Everson of Muncie police.

Note Locates Trysting Place.

This story has it that Albert Nickerson, 23 years old, leader of the gang, and one of the two sought, directed in the note that the girl meet him at the storehouse over which Nickerson's sister lives.

Chief Everson, acting upon this information, summoned Sheriff James McDonald of Blackford county and Sheriff Forest McClain of Wells county and the three, with a posse of police and deputies, set out for the trysting place.

For weeks the gang has preyed upon stores and gas stations in the Muncie district, defying capture. So the officers determined that this time the gangsters would not elude them. The third man in the gang is said to be Ervin Jones, 21 years old, and he, in common with Cox and Nickerson, has been convicted for robbery, police declare.

Gang Appears at Midnight.

Finding no one about the old store, the posse made its way to the roof of the structure and, despite the cold, sat down to wait for their prey. This was at 8 o'clock last night. At 11 o'clock the bandit car appeared and the three youths leaped out.

Sheriff McClain stepped to the edge of the roof, and leveling a repeating shotgun at the little group below, shouted:

"Stick 'em up! You're under arrest."

With one spring the fugitives were back into their car, and as the machine shot forward toward Muncie the posse opened fire. On sped the bandit car, quickly outdistancing pursuit.

Two hours later a nurse at the Grant county hospital, miles away, at Marion, Ind., answered a knock at the door. Two men dumped the dead body of a third into the doorway and fled.

It was the body of Cox. He had been shot through the back of the head, the bullet emerging at the right eye. Hours later still, police at Danville, Ill., two hundred miles from Muncie, found the bandits' car abandoned on a residence street.

Finding of a vanity case and several strands of a woman's hair in the abandoned car led to the belief that the bandits may have been accompanied by a girl in their flight.

Nickerson and Jones are believed to have fled in the direction of Wabash, Ind. Muncie police are carefully guarding the identity of the mother who brought about the gang's downfall. She is of a highly respected family, they declare.

Cox recently was released from the Indiana state reformatory, officials say. Nickerson served a jail term at Elwood, Ind., and Jones at Anderson, Ind., both for auto thefts, it was said.

7 AND 9 YEAR OLD 'THRILL SLAYERS' TO BE SENTENCED TODAY

Milford, Conn., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—After a 30 day respite during which they were subjected to examination by experts of the Yale institute of human relations, John and James Mulligan, Milford's young thrill slayers, will appear in juvenile court here for final sentencing tomorrow morning.

It is understood that Dr. William C. Healey, noted child psychologist of the Yale institute will recommend that John and James, aged 7 and 9 respectively, be sent to an institution or placed in a private home under careful supervision.

Although the Mulligan boys have confessed that they brutally murdered Albert Mikenas, 3, in Milford last summer, they cannot be charged with murder. The only charge under Connecticut law that can be brought against them is juvenile delinquency.

Poison Given to Girl by Mistake Results in Death

Five year old Virginia Waytula, 3042 North Hoyne avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital from poison mistakenly administered by her mother last Friday. Virginia had been suffering from tonsilitis and her mother, mistaking a bottle of phenol for a mouth wash, gave her the acid to gargle, the police said.

200 OF NATION'S BUSINESS CHIEFS TO HELP HOOVER

President to Open Meeting on Dec. 5.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Two hundred or more of the country's leading business men are expected to attend the special conference of business groups to be held here December 5 in response to the request of President Hoover made when the industrial leaders met at the White House last week.

Telegraphic invitations to the conference, dispatched by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, are to be supplemented, officials of that body announced today, with letters presenting in more detail the purpose to study "the strong and weak spots in American business."

President Hoover, according to the letters signed jointly by William Butterworth, president, and Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the board of the association, and mailed today, will open the business conference, emphasizing "his conviction that American business is so organized as to be fully capable of mobilizing its forces in coöperation with government."

Business Sound.

"The preliminary conferences which the President has held this week with individual business leaders indicate a situation that has no fundamental weakness," the letters say, and "in the absence of weak factors and the presence of strong ones contribute to the high standards and the wise practices of American business men. There are no burdensome stocks of commodities, and this is owing to far sighted manufacturing plans and to prudent merchandising efforts, aided by striking efficiency in transportation.

"With no commodity price inflation there is no menace of inventory losses. There is a strong banking situation with enlarged reservoirs of credit available for industry and commerce on reasonable terms. Weak spots which have heretofore existed in American industry are showing signs of improvement.

1929 Prosperous Year.

"American industry generally is approaching the close of one of the most active and prosperous years in its history. The problem now is, fortunately, not one of starting a stalled machine but of facilitating a present momentum on which employment and earnings and buying power have arisen to high levels. It is our belief that proven ability in practical business leadership can define weak spots and bring forward remedial measures, and thus justify a high spirit of confidence and enterprise.

"In preparation for practical steps based on accurate information we would like to have an analysis of the strong and weak spots in your own field, both as to the present situation and the next six months."

Trade, Industrial Leaders Praise Hoover Move to Spur Business

New York, Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Leaders of trade and industry in all parts of the United States, representing a wide range of business activity, have come forward in praise of President Hoover's move to coördinate business, labor and government and keep the country on a prosperous level.

Executives of large railroads, banks, mail order houses and other huge industrial enterprises express the opinion that the President's energetic action has helped reëstablish confidence.

In the words of one of those commentators, his assistance has eliminated "the tendency toward unwarranted steps urged upon the individual through fear" and has "stimulated courage in industrial managers to take only those steps which are constructive and helpful."

Here Are Their Statements.

Their statements follow:

W. B. Storey, president, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé—I feel that President Hoover's conferences have been reassuring to leaders of industry and that they will go forward with much greater confidence with projects which otherwise would have been held in abeyance because of uncertainty as to the future.

Lammot Du Pont, president, E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co.—President Hoover's conferences have been constructive and helpful, resulting in getting together facts, exchanging views and defining weaknesses that exist. The beneficial effects resulting will be the elimination of the tendency toward unwarranted steps urged upon the individual through fear and the stimulation of courage in industrial managers to take only those steps which are constructive and helpful.

A. W. Robertson, chairman, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company—The outcome of President Hoover's conferences is a determination on the part of government, business and labor to carry on as usual for the very good reason that nothing was found that would lead any one to expect anything unusual except the decline of stock prices.

F. O. Watts, chairman, First National bank of St. Louis—Conferences such as President Hoover is holding with trade and labor groups will have a good effect. Such coöperation should enable business to institute sound measures which will moderate any tendency toward an unnecessary curtailment in industrial activity.

L. F. Loree, chairman, Delaware and Hudson railroad—We have authorized the construction of 600 freight cars and further budgets will be considered at the November or December meetings. There are many cases involving elimination of grade crossings which will be dealt with as approved by the public service commission.

D. D. Tenney, president, Minneapolis Civic and Commerce association—Business leaders throughout the northwest are watching with great interest the conferences called by President Hoover. We are hopeful and believe that these conferences will develop a program which will stabilize conditions in the manufacturing centers of this country. In the northwest there is a growing feeling of confidence and an awakening of a feeling of prosperity among our farmers.

C. E. Denney, president, Erie railroad—The Hoover conferences have, in my opinion, accomplished a great deal toward restoring confidence and stabilizing business.

Edgar H. Sensenich, president, West Coast National bank, Portland, Ore.—President Hoover's conferences already have inspired the public with confidence that the country can avoid serious after effects from the recent stock panic and prevent a severe or long business depression. It would be most unfortunate if the purchasing power of the people were materially reduced at this time.

H. D. Ivey, president, Citizens National Trust and Savings bank, Los Angeles—President Hoover is doing the country another real service in gathering together the leaders in industry and finance. Well informed business men and bankers do not question the underlying soundness of industrial and financial conditions.

Charles Donnelly, president, Northern Pacific railroad—I believe that the conferences called by President Hoover have contributed, in a most direct and important way, to restore public confidence in the essential soundness of business conditions throughout the country.

Shannon Crandall, president, Los Angeles chamber of commerce—We believe the conference of all business interests called by President Hoover can only result in stabilizing conditions and restoring the consciousness of the people that American industry and business is sound.

Conrad H. Mann, president, Kansas City chamber of commerce — Mr. Hoover's conferences will first reestablish confidence, which has been seriously impaired. Second, it has been made clear to leaders of industry, finance and business in general that they cannot escape responsibilities for unemployment and correct economic depression. These conferences carry messages to all classes of our people that only through coöperation and regard for one another can we hope to maintain our present prosperity.

L. A. Downs, president, Illinois Central railroad—It is my view that fundamental business conditions are sound and the physical situation stands in no particular need of improvement. What the country most needs at this time is confidence in the future and willingness to work to achieve prosperity. The Hoover conferences made a significant contribution to the economic health of the nation.

Almer W. Newhall, president, San Francisco chamber of commerce—Never in the history of business has there been such a masterful handling of an economic crisis as that displayed by President Hoover in piloting the nation through the present situation.

PRISONER'S CRY FOR HELP NEARLY MOBS' DETECTIVE

New York, Nov. 24.—[U.P.]—Detective Thomas J. Burke of the Brooklyn pickpocket squad narrowly escaped being mobbed by 200 persons today when a prisoner in his custody set up a cry of "Gangster! Gangster! He's taking me for a ride."

Burke arrested Morris Cohen, 35, on a bus after he had seen Cohen jostling passengers. As he stepped from the bus with Cohen, the prisoner started shouting frantically. The crowd gathered rapidly and menaced the detective even after he had displayed his badge.

The timely arrival of a uniformed patrolman, who identified Burke as a detective, prevented any violence.

SENATORS STEP ON PROPOSAL TO REALIGN STATES

But They Admit Tribune Contest Is Fine Idea.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—If congress were to undertake the task of realigning the boundaries of the states, a controversy would ensue on virtually every new suggestion, judging from the views expressed by various senators today.

With this week's prize entries in THE TRIBUNE'S state boundary contest before them, each of the senators interviewed proposed changes in the new states carved out by the winners.

About the only point upon which they agreed was that the present boundaries, in many cases, are obsolete and that it would be for the good of the country to rearrange them scientifically. As to the arrangement they were far apart. All of them, however, manifest keen interest in the contest as a thought stimulating plan to awaken the voting public to important political and economic questions facing the country.

Glass Sees Difficulties.

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] emphasized the myriad difficulties which would attend any attempted rearrangement of state lines, and pointed out that such a method of remedying existing inequalities might produce others.

"Undoubtedly the existing arrangement of state boundaries produces many inequalities which could not have been foreseen when the lines were drawn, and it is interesting to speculate on how many new inequalities or inequities would result from any attempt to correct those now admitted to exist," said Senator Glass, adding: "However, I don't intend to speculate."

The only state ever carved out of another, the senator pointed out, is West Virginia, which was admitted to the Union during the civil war, when its split away from Virginia was approved by a so-called "rump" legislature of the latter state.

Carve Five States Out of Texas.

As a matter of incidental interest, Senator Glass recalled that the treaty under which Texas entered the Union in 1845 that state may be split into as many as five separate states, at the will of its citizens.

"Joe Grundy's assertion that Pennsylvania contributes much more to the federal treasury, in the way of income and other federal taxes, than numerous western or southern states combined is not alone true of Pennsylvania," declared Senator Glass.

Virginia was included by Grundy in his list of "backward states" which, the Pennsylvania lobbyist asserted, should be allowed to participate in the framing of national policies only in proportion to their contributions to the federal upkeep.

Shows What Virginia Pays.

Virginia, Senator Glass pointed out, paid a total of $87,484,287 in federal income and miscellaneous taxes into the national treasury during the fiscal year ended June 30 last—$11,353,679 more than was paid by twelve western and northwestern states, as follows:

Arizona	$ 2,398,878	N. Dak...	709,885
Colorado	11,589,334	New Mex.	965,354
Idaho	1,089,618	S. Dak...	837,704
Minnesota	29,069,411	Utah	3,568,168
Montana	4,427,782	Wash'gton	14,178,024
Nebraska	6,179,660	Wyoming	1,166,890

Individual Income Taxes.

In individual income taxes, Senator Glass added, Virginia paid a total of $20,177,390 in the same fiscal year—nearly $1,000,000 more than was paid by nine other western or northwestern states, as follows:

Utah	3,478,963	New Mex.	933,541
Arizona	2,310,604	S. Dak.	793,687
Wyoming	1,110,323	N. Dak.	665,134

"But why go on," concluded the senator, "other comparisons could be made and perhaps used to justify suggested changes of state boundaries, but the fact remains that any proposal to change state lines for whatever reason is fanciful and utterly impossible of accomplishment."

Two senators from the Rocky mountain states which were consolidated into larger units by each of the winning contestants, vigorously opposed any plans to cut down the representation of their states in congress. These were Senators John Thomas [Rep., Idaho], and Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.].

Senator Thomas took the stand that the preponderance in the number of western senators now as compared to population assures a balance of power that is "a safeguard to the best interests of the country as a whole." He frowned over each of the prize winning maps, especially those which split up the state of Idaho, and said he didn't think he could be expected to approve of any of them.

Although expressing his belief that the number and the ratio of senators should be the same, Senator Wheeler saw some advantages in boundary changes.

Favors Realignment in East.

"If any plan contemplated to divide the United States as suggested in the prize winning map should be put into effect, I think most of the people living in states J, K, L, and M would not object to a realignment of the states in the east, but I am inclined to think they would want to have a separate entity of their own," he said.

The new states referred to by Senator Wheeler were arranged in the H. M. Le Tissier map to incorporate the bulk of the area west of the Mississippi river.

"Limitation of the number of senators from these states, of course, would be a violation of the United States constitution and I do not doubt that if some liberal or so-called radical had made the suggestion instead of Joe Grundy, the lobbyist, he and his ilk would seek to have them prosecuted for sedition or treason."

Takes Whack at Moses.

Senator Wheeler expressed fear for the future of the western states if the views of Mr. Grundy or those of Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], who recently called the insurgent Republicans "wild jackasses," should prevail.

"Many people of the west," he declared, "while not entirely agreeing with Moses' conception of these representatives, do agree with him in thinking that they have been jackasses themselves in voting for a party which is dominated by those whose only purpose in our scheme of government is to make the west pay tribute to the east."

Senator Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.] was enthusiastic over the idea of moving the capital west, pointing out that if eastern congressmen and officials were compelled to travel across the country now and then they would have a broader view of the country's needs. Although he said he "naturally" believed Kansas would be the best place for the capital, he admitted that Chicago or St. Louis might be more satisfactory than Washington.

Geographic Center in Kansas.

The geographic center of the United States, he observed, is near the town of Ellsworth, Kas.

"I don't for one minute agree with the proposal of Mr. Grundy," he added. "I think he is entirely wrong. And as for shifting the boundaries of the states, I am of the opinion that even were it possible it might cause more confusion than benefit. The residents of Kansas, for example, are so well satisfied with the state as it is that they would not stand for its merger with other states or its dissection."

If he were going to realign the state boundaries, Senator Capper said, he would do quite differently from Mr. Tissier, THE TRIBUNE prize winner of last week.

"The thought that the 'industrial' east is distinct in its characteristics from the 'agricultural' west just now may be timely, but will it be a few decades from now?" he asked. "I don't believe it will. The trend of industry already is toward the south and west, and eventually the one-sided situation will balance itself up. We in the central west will find ourselves as much interested in industry as in agriculture.

"It is a logical thing for industry to come to the central states. Now we are shipping a vast amount of our products to the east and having them shipped back to us in altered form at great expense. In time more and more industries are going to push west, where they will be closer to the producers and to a large section of the consumers.

"To try to separate and segregate agricultural and industrial regions, therefore, would be only temporary at best, I believe. If I were changing the boundary lines I would leave industrial and agricultural sections in the same states."

'TIGER,' NOT U. S., WON WAR, SAYS GERMAN PRINCE

Never Knew When He Was Beaten—Hohenzollern.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Nov. 24. — Frederick William, former crown prince of Germany, made the most sincere eulogy of Georges Clemenceau I ever heard when I visited him in the summer of 1930 on the lonely island of Wieringen, Holland, where the exile remained from the time of the armistice until a couple of years later, when he dashed across the frontier to his fatherland.

I asked the ex-crown prince what he thought was the principal factor which caused the defeat of the imperial German armies. I fully expected him to blame the debacle on three factors—the entry of the United Setates into the war with huge supplies of men and material; the blockade of Germany, cutting off its supply of foodstuffs, munitions, and war supplies, and the revolution at home with the moral breakup among the civilians throughout Germany, which gradually permeated the armies right up to the front line trenches.

Gives Clemenceau Credit.

To my surprise he did not hesitate a moment, but said:

"Georges Clemenceau was chiefly responsible for the allies winning the war. President Wilson's fourteen points—your great country entering the struggle and pouring masses of troops against us on the western front and sending millions of tons of supplies to all the allied armies—David Lloyd George and the British fleet—the tenacious French poilus—none of these elements counted against us like the indomitable old man heading the French government.

"In 1917, when my group of armies repulsed the Chemin des Dames and Champagne offensives, inflicting terrible losses on the French and capturing an enormous amount of prisoners and material, Clemenceau remained an optimist. He whipped the French parliament into the same frame of mind and forced them to support his policy of fighting, fighting, fighting when a less great hearted man would have been crushed by the tremendous blows we inflicted.

Never Knew When He Was Beaten.

"The same thing in 1918 after our colossal attacks on March 21 against Amiens and then later in Artois and again against Mount Kemmel, and then again against Chemin des Dames when we surged through Chateau-Thierry to less than sixty miles from Paris.

"Clemenceau never knew when he was beaten.

"It is true that the unified high command of the allied armies reacted powerfully against us by securing coordination hitherto lacking, but Foch's selection as generalissimo was imposed by Clemenceau, and he deserves all the credit.

"It was not even the endless new drafts of fresh young Americans which broke the hearts of our troops, but the knowledge that no sledge hammer stroke, no matter how mightily it was delivered, sufficed to crush this grizzled old man sitting as minister of war in Paris and making almost daily trips to the front, going right up to the front, line trenches and heartening the poilus."

Calls France Ungrateful.

We discussed how shabbily Clemenceau had been treated politically after the armistice, when he had been assured the presidency of the republic to succeed Raymond Poincare, and then was double-crossed at the last minute and Paul Deschanel named instead.

"Some day the French people will realize their shame in thus casting aside the man who, above all others, deserves the credit for their victory," said the ex-crown prince. "If Germany had had a man as great as Clemenceau, I should not be sitting here on this wretched little island, because we would not have lost the war."

OLD TIME CRIER CALLS NEWS OF 'TIGER'S' END IN HIS NATIVE VILLAGE

MOUILLERON-EN-PAREDS, Vendée, France, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Here, where Georges Clemenceau was born 88 years ago, a strong contrast of old and new methods spread the news of his death. Radio brought the word from Paris, but the village of 730 persons learned of it when the old town crier gave a long roll on his drum to attract attention, then called out the news of the death of the famous favorite son, and then gave another roll on the drum.

The ringing of church bells was stopped and in silence the word was passed from house to house. Everyone had been expecting the bad news so that a neighbor indicated the fact to another by merely lifting his hat or bowing his head or nodding that the end had come to pass.

Flags tied with crape were put out and the church congregations seemed as if at a funeral, for the women had left off all their usual Sabbath day finery.

Only Handful to View the Burial Today.

horizon blue trench cap, similar to those worn by soldiers in the army, set on his head, gave it a grisly, rakish appearance.

The dead man's sister, Mme. Jacquemaire, and son, Michel, were among the first to appear yesterday morning.

Premier Tardieu, who was Clemenceau's chief lieutenant during the war, was on the scene early, as was George Mandel, who was once the Tiger's private secretary.

Makes Death Mask.

The prefect of police, Jean Chiappe, and Chief Inspector Guichard appeared and an imposing cordon of gendarmes was established outside the residence, forbidding traffic through the narrow street, excepting street cars and automobiles carrying official visitors.

The sculptor, Francois Sicard, made the death mask just before noon and several artists were permitted to make hurried sketches of the lifeless figure on the death bed, but photographers were rigorously barred.

Then the procession of official visitors started, with representatives of embassies, legations and consulates, including Norman D. Armour, U. S. chargé d'affaires, America's representative.

Officials Crowd Tiger's Parlor.

German, Austrian and Hungarian diplomats did not appear, but the Turkish embassy sent a dragoman to sign the book of condolences.

All these officials crowded the little parlor of the concierge of the old flat house, leaving cards and writing their names with appropriate remarks.

President Doumergue appeared early and was led into the death chamber, where he knelt beside the bed for an instant. Then military and naval officers appeared. Marshal Joffre sent an emissary, and Foreign Minister Briand sent his private secretary.

No word came from Raymond Poincaré, who is himself recuperating from a grave operation, but Alexander Millerand called, as well as leaders of political groups and a number of senators.

Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain sent condolences.

Today the president of the chamber of deputies will deliver a eulogy on the man. Eleven years ago the chamber voted unanimously that "he deserves well of his country." Premier Tardieu will make a statement on behalf of the cabinet and the chamber will adjourn.

In the senate, which meets tomorrow, President Doumergue will perform a similar ceremony and a recess will be taken for the day.

Flags Fly at Half Mast.

Flags throughout France were at half mast yesterday, commemorating the Tiger, and, despite the fact that he was an atheist, most Catholic, as well as Protestant, churches mentioned the passing of a great hero and included him in the prayers of services.

When the early twilight fell the last official visits had been made, and only a small group of intimates and relatives, with a knot of newspaper men and camera men remained.

The presence of police on Rue Franklin was scarcely necessary, as only relatively few persons appeared before the house, which was in marked contrast to the long files which paraded on Rue Grenelle during the four days that Marshal Foch's body lay in state.

The newspapers last night devoted three columns, starting on the first page and finishing inside, to the death of the "Father of Victory."

GANG IMPRISONS 6 IN HOME, ROBS OFFICE OF $2,000

Four masked gunmen posing as policemen gained admittance to the apartment of Fergus H. Wallin, 2040 Ellis avenue, yesterday morning and while two of them stood guard over the apartment the other two kidnaped Wallin and forced him to open a safe containing $2,000 in the office of the Burnside Finance company, of which he is the head, at 9255 Cottage Grove avenue.

After obtaining the money the robbers returned Wallin to his home and left him bound with a guest in the kitchen of the apartment.

Because of the similarity in their methods of operating, the police believe the bandits are the same quartet who robbed seven persons of $5,000 in jewelry and $165 in cash on Saturday night at the home of J. A. Benjamin, 7606 Paxton avenue.

Robbers Pose as Police.

Wallin was asleep when the bandits rang his doorbell and awakened him. In response to his query they told him they were detectives from the Burnside police station who wanted him to identify two men they had found loitering near the finance company office. Wallin was hesitant about admitting them, but finally decided to do so. When he opened the door, all four walked in, carrying revolvers. In addition to mufflers wrapped about the lower part of their faces, three of the men wore smoked glasses.

While Wallin was being taken to the kitchen by two men the other pair went into one bedroom and awoke Mrs. Wallin and her 2 year old son and then roused Mr. and Mrs. Ray Richardson, 4901 Sheridan road, and their two children, a boy and a girl, 9 and 11 years old, who were spending the night with the Wallins. The two who had made Wallin prisoner ordered him to dress and took him out to their automobile.

Rob Safe, Take Victim Home.

The two robbers left in the apartment stood guard over their six prisoners with revolvers, but assured them that no harm was intended.

On the way to the office, Wallin's captors took the keys to the door and the combination to the safe. When the safe was opened, the bandits pocketed the money and drove back to Wallin's apartment, tying him up in the kitchen with Richardson. After they left Mrs. Wallin and Mrs. Richardson untied their husbands and called the police.

RESUME QUIZ IN S. F. M'CORMICK HEARING TODAY

Santa Barbara, Cal., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in President Wilson's cabinet and chief of counsel for Mrs. Katherine McCormick in her legal fight to oust Harold McCormick and Anita McCormick Blaine, sister and brother, as guardians of her husband and his $50,000,000 estate, will continue his efforts at resumption of the trial tomorrow to break down the direct testimony of Dr. William A. White, Washington, D. C., psychiatrist.

During a short session yesterday, Baker questioned Dr. White on cross-examination and attempted to draw from the physician a different picture of Stanley McCormick, an incompetent, than he had in his direct testimony.

Dr. White testified on direct examination that since 1926 McCormick has shown marked improvement. He said he visited the Montecito estate of the multimillionaire and found that bars had been removed from his rooms and the patient was being allowed the freedom of the house.

Under Baker's questioning Dr. White said the bars had been replaced with grill work.

Judge William Deby of Mono county, California, who is hearing the suit, told newspaper men he will visit the sick man Thanksgiving day and talk to him for a short time.

CHURCH ROBBED AND DESECRATED BY VANDAL GANG

Strew Cigarets on Altar in Evanston.

When the Rev. J. F. Magner, pastor of St. Mary's church at Lake street and Oak avenue, Evanston, opened the church to celebrate 6 o'clock mass yesterday morning he discovered that vandals had broken in during the night, desecrating the sanctuary and stealing the contents of three alms boxes.

The thieves had entered through an unlocked basement window, afterwards found open. They stopped first in the sacristy, pulled vestments from the wardrobes and altar linens from drawers, strewing them on the floor and trampling them. A hidden safe, containing jeweled chalices, monstrances and other sacred articles had been overlooked.

Make Fire of Books.

From the altar, which they littered with cigaret stubs, the thieves took gold plated candle sticks to illuminate their work of robbery. Evidently finding the candle light insufficient, they collected a stack of prayer books and of these made a fire beside the alms boxes in the vestibule.

They smashed the locks on the alms boxes with a monkey wrench taken from the sexton's room in the basement. That the vandals were several and that their task took considerable time was evidenced by the scores of cigaret stubs found in the sanctuary, the nave of the church, and the vestibule.

It's News to Police.

Lieut. Carl Ekman, chief of the Evanston detective bureau, when asked what clews had developed in the robbery, declared he had not even heard of it and pronounced the priest's complaint "a lot of hooey."

"Surely the man is not questioning my veracity," exclaimed Father Magner when he learned of the lieutenant's remark.

Ekman finally admitted the complaint was correct in all details.

Robber Seized in South to Return Here Without Fight

G. W. Miller, who poses as a physician and who confessed participating in the $12,000 burglary last Sunday in the apartment of William A. Gardner, 1366 Dearborn parkway, when he was arrested last Thursday in Selma, Ala., said yesterday he would return to Chicago without extradition. Miller named two men and two women as his accomplices. The Chicago police are awaiting descriptions of the four from the Selma police.

PITY THE POOR QUEBEC RUM RUNNER! SLEUTHS ALWAYS CHASING HIM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Quebec, Nov. 24.—In addition to boasting of admirably solving the liquor problem, the province of Quebec, father of the government control method of selling wines and spirits, prides itself on its efficiency in apprehending the bootlegger. Many are constantly trying to evade the duty of $10 a gallon collected by the government on all liquor brought into the province.

Life for the bootlegger and rum runner in the province has become hard and hazardous for, during the course of three months from August to October, sleuths of the Quebec liquor commission have seized 35,000 gallons of liquor, on which the excise duty alone is worth $350,000, in addition to the automobiles, yachts and schooners, and various other conveyances used in its illegal transportation.

Unceasing activity on the part of liquor commission operatives has driven all but the smaller rum runners to cover. Last year the Gaspé coast was reported as a haven for rum runners but a strict watch was maintained there this year, and the result is that liquor, except the legitimate Quebec liquor commission stuff, is so hard to get that it is practically nonexistent.

AIR BLAST KILLS WORKMAN.

John Quirk, 27 years old, 5623 South Halsted street, died yesterday at the Garfield Park hospital of injuries received on Saturday when an air tank blew up on a car in the surface lines barn at Springfield avenue and Madison street while he was at work.

SLAYER OF GIRL TO OFFER BOOZE FRENZY DEFENSE

Drunkenness will be the defense of John Preston, 32 year old "model husband," when he goes on trial in the Du Page County Circuit court at Wheaton on Dec. 2 for the murder of Miss Agnes Johnston, 26 years old, 7324 South Carpenter street, Chicago. Preston, a painter, strangled Miss Johnston on Oct. 13, near West Chicago, after he had attacked her in a drunken frenzy.

Edward Elliott of Lombard, Preston's attorney, said yesterday that the slayer's brain was so befogged by bootleg booze on the night of the fatal ride with Miss Johnston and Miss Mathilda Murphy, 7835 South Wood street, that he did not know what he was doing when he committed the murder. Elliott said that the Supreme court in one case had held that because the defendant was crazed by liquor and did not know what he was doing he was not guilty of first degree murder.

Texas Cowboy Breaks Record for Throwing Steer

The world's record for steer throwing was broken last night at the final performance of the rodeo at the Chicago Stadium by Dick Shelton of Tilden, Tex., when he threw a steer in 6.25 seconds. The previous record was 7¼ seconds. Tad Lucas of Fort Worth won the cowgirls' trick riding championship and was awarded the H. Gordon Selfridge trophy as the champion all-around cowgirl.

SLUGGED AND ROBBED.

Reaching for his automatic pistol as two men with drawn revolvers entered his fruit store at 3850 Diversey boulevard, late Saturday night, Nathan Nimroff was subdued by a blow on the head from a revolver butt. The robbers escaped with $200.

STATE TO USE ANOTHER WEEK IN CARROLL CASE

The trial of Lieut. Phil Carroll, three members of his detective bureau squad and two others for the murder of Octavius Granady on primary day, April 10, 1928, will be resumed this morning before Judge Joseph B. David in the Criminal court.

The state is expected to take another week in presenting testimony. The prosecution charges that the defendants pursued Granady, colored opponent of Morris Eller for committeeman of the 20th ward, in a detective bureau squad car and shot him to death. Two defendants were freed last week with the collapse of a woman witness for the state. Another state's witness identified a defense attorney as Lieut. Carroll.

Lieut. Carroll's defense is that he did not arrive on the scene of the shooting until after Granady was killed and that he was present only in his capacity as a policeman.

SAYS STRANGER FORCED HIM TO KILL HIS FATHER

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Joseph Malick, 19, confessed today, according to Wayne county officers, that he shot and killed his father, Frank Malick, in his greenhouse in Nankin township, near here.

Deputy sheriffs went to the Malick home and found the pistol and shotgun with which the florist was slain hidden where Joseph said he had put them.

Joseph confessed, according to the officers, that he killed his father because a stranger whose first name was Adam threatened his life, as well as that of his father, if he did not commit the crime.

The youth admitted he had quarreled with his parent and waited for him in the greenhouse, the officers said. After the slaying, Joseph said, he buried the pistol in the dirt floor of the basement and hid the shotgun in the attic after taking it apart.

CUT COAL COSTS

An amazing new invention makes it possible for home and apartment heat costs to save from ⅓ to ½ on fuel costs. This new device, known as the Van Bunkirk Coal Saver and Smoke Consumer, can be attached to any furnace or boiler and actually burns smoke. This effects a tremendous saving of coal.

BURN SMOKE

Scientific tests prove that smoke is 30% combustible. It can be converted into heat just the same as coal. Ordinary furnaces and boilers cannot burn smoke unless equipped with the Van Bunkirk Coal Saver and Smoke Consumer. Installed in a few minutes. Pays many times its cost in coal that it saves. COUGHS USED TO STICK SAYS BALTIMORE MAN

MR. T. H. KILPATRICK

Now REM checks them speedily

Mr. T. H. Kilpatrick of 3165 Cedar Ave., Baltimore, had lots of trouble with winter coughs up to four winters ago. Then he found out about REM and found the way to quick cough relief at the same time. He likes the prompt way in which REM acts and likes the way it stopped his coughs. Mr. Kilpatrick often recommends REM to his friends, and says "they all tell me they like the results they get from it." REM clings to the throat as it is swallowed, producing a soothing, cooling effect almost immediately. It also "cuts the phlegm," clears the air passages and makes it easier to breathe. On the Frontiers of Sport

Year after year the boundaries encircling our wild life are closing in. Where the old trails led through the virgin forests so few yesterdays ago, there are now laid the magnificent avenues for civilization to speed along.

As sport becomes less common it becomes more precious. The hands that guard the traditions and provide the means for sport grow increasingly careful as they serve, in the spirit and manner of the day, those who love outdoor life and its manifold activities.

Our own shop has changed with the times—and is changing. Equipment for hunting, fishing, camping and playing is no longer the crude though honest and worthy makeshifts of our youth. Genius is shaping it. Modern methods, ideas and skill are eternally perfecting the old or creating the new.

We are pledged to give to Chicago the best in sport that the world can produce. The association of our two Companies has made this not only possible—but also actual. If you have not been in this shop recently we can promise you that a visit now will give you a new conception of a sporting goods store and the service it performs.

For the near-Christmas shopper, we have gathered a world-chosen assortment of gifts. Every outdoor activity is represented. Nowhere else can you see these gifts that speak of rods and guns, horses and dogs and of all known sports and games.

Come and see them. The old warm and friendly welcome awaits you. That is changeless.

THE LEAGUE COURT.

The theory of the Permanent Court of International Justice is that it shall be a tribunal for the impartial and disinterested adjudication of justiciable disputes between nations and the authoritative international agency for the declaration and interpretation of the law of nations. Thus the second article of the statute creating the court provides that the court "shall be composed of a body of independent judges, elected regardless of their nationality from among persons of high moral character who possess the qualifications required in their respective countries for appointment to the highest judicial offices or are jurisconsults of recognized competence in international law."

Upon this theory, although the United States has not adhered to the court, American lawyers have been elected to its bench—namely: Mr. John Bassett Moore, a leading American specialist in international law, and upon his resignation after some years of service, Mr. Charles Evans Hughes, who has taken his seat.

In September a British and a French member were elected to court by the council and assembly of the league of nations, Sir Cecil Hurst and M. Henri Fromageot. A significant objection was made to this selection on the ground that both men are professional diplomats rather than independent jurists and are therefore not within the terms, or at any rate the spirit, of the article quoted above. It was urged that Sir Cecil and M. Fromageot had had an important part in the framing of the treaty of Versailles and for years had been active professional diplomats engaged in the furtherance of their countries' special interests.

The objection did not prevail, for each received a majority vote in the council, while Hurst received 40 and Fromageot 37 of the 52 votes of the assembly.

We think the event has important meaning for the American nation, about to be invited to adhere to the court upon terms of amendment or reservations devised chiefly by Mr. Elihu Root. We are not challenging the personal character or ability of either Sir Cecil Hurst or M. Fromageot, but a lifetime spent in practical diplomacy can hardly produce that disinterested scientific habit of mind which qualifies the jurist and is in fact an essential qualification of all members of such a tribunal as the league court is supposed to be. It is to be noted that Mr. Hughes, as a former secretary of state of the United States, and Mr. Moore, who has been minister of the United States to several countries and assistant secretary of state, are not free from the objections raised against Hurst and Fromageot.

This question is by no means fanciful or negligible. On the contrary, it should be considered with especial thoroughness by the senate when it again takes up the question of adherence to the court. It should also be considered by the press and people of the United States. In our opinion, the invasion of the court by diplomatic experts and representatives of strong national interests is inevitable and constitutes a substantial and, indeed, a decisive objection to our adhesion. In practical effect, whatever the aspirations or ideals of its theoretical advocates may be, the court is becoming and will tend to become more and more an instrument of international politics, finding juridical formulas for the imposition or compromise of national interests. We do not assert that it will not be useful as an aid to international adjustments and the postponement, perhaps in some cases the avoidance, of wars. But in the best guise it will nevertheless be in underlying reality a political agency, which, if we submit to and participate in it, will involve precisely that permanent entanglement in European politics it has been our wise policy to avoid. In other words, if we go into the court on the theory that it is a disinterested and independent instrument of international law, above the pressure of national interests and policies, we shall be deceived and find ourselves committed in contradiction to our national policy of independence.

THE COLE RUMOR.

The rumor is in circulation that the school board is planning to maneuver Ernest E. Cole into the position of assistant superintendent, possibly with the view of preparing him to take Mr. Bogan's place. In fairness to the board of education it may be said that rumors of impending preferment for Mr. Cole have originated on several occasions when the superintendency was vacant, but the former rumors have been negatived. However, the elevation of Mr. Cole will be so deplorable that it is not desirable altogether to dismiss the suspicion.

Mr. Cole, on the record, is not a proper candidate for superintendent. It would be disgraceful to elect him assistant superintendent. He should not be in the school system as a principal or as a teacher. As a crony of Mayor Thompson, as a friend to the indicted school trustees in the Lundin-Severinghaus-Davis scandal, Mr. Cole deserted the principles of conduct which we have a right to expect in our educators. To put Mr. Cole in charge of the school system or to give him even secondary control would be to exalt for our children the contemptible men and practices which have destroyed municipal government in Chicago under Mayor Thompson. Uncharitable critics may say that the people who were taken in by the Thompson swindle deserve to suffer the consequences, but this is a harsh judgment if the children also are to pay the penalty.

What more successful method for perpetuating misgovernment is there than by recognizing servants of malicious politics with rewards in the educational service? The McAndrew incident was vicious, but fortunately Mr. McAndrew's immediate successor is not an agent of corrupt politics. The rare ability of McAndrew was penalized by a miserable conspiracy, but the conspirators were sufficiently restrained not to elect a Thompson song writer to the superintendency. If Cole is elected the depths will have been reached.

LESE MAJESTY OR WHAT?

Fred A. Kent, we assume, is a citizen of the United States. He is by occupation a banker, carrying on his business in the district known as Wall street. Nevertheless, we do not know that the guaranty of the right of free speech is constitutionally inapplicable to bankers, even to bankers doing business in the district known as Wall street. One, at least, of the committee which interrogated him on Friday, Senator Borah, is a constitutional lawyer of eminence in the senate, if not outside, and we assume that all the members of the committee are learned in the fundamental law. Therefore, we may safely assume that their summons to Mr. Kent and what a Washington reporter describes as the "merciless drubbing" administered to him is not a formal and official denial of the right of free speech. Our civil rights are beginning to look the worse for wear in these days of the noble experiment, but we are far from believing that Senator Borah and his distinguished colleagues of the committee are ready to hold that the first amendment has mysteriously lost its validity

Yet the occasion of the inquisition upon Mr. Kent is merely that he publicly expressed the opinion that the senate's failure expeditiously to pass a tariff bill contributed to the recent collapse of the stock market.

We are unable to see any relation this had to the subject matter with which the committee, we have assumed, is dealing—the evil of lobbying. We assume Mr. Kent as an American citizen has still a right to express his opinion on any public official or on any public affairs.

What, then, is the sanction for the proceeding against him? Is any citizen who dares to protest against the conduct of the senate or to criticize a senator for his official action subject to public discipline by that body? Are we witnessing the establishment of an unwritten law of lese majesty? Is every citizen who dares to criticize our conscript fathers to be brought before them for cross-examination and rebuke?

This is a question we are confident a great many American citizens must be asking. The time to reform the senate has come.

Editorial of the Day

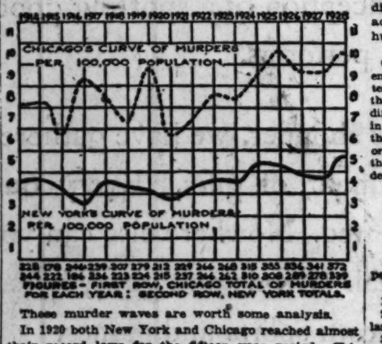
MURDER CURVES AND PROHIBITION.

[New York Daily News.]

Presented here is a graphic chart which reflects the ride of the tide of murder in the two largest cities of the United States: New York and Chicago.

Police records in the two cities furnished the figures from which the chart is made. The period covered is the fifteen year stretch from 1914 to 1928 inclusive.

Yearly murder totals for each city are given at the foot of the chart, Chicago's total in the upper row, New York's in the lower. The curves represent murders per 100,000 of population. This explains why the chart shows Chicago to be about twice as tough as New York. Chicago's murders have not been much the more numerous, but our population is about twice as large as that of Chicago.



These murder waves are worth some analysis.

In 1920 both New York and Chicago reached almost their record lows for the fifteen year period. Chicago's figure dropped to 6.94 per 100,000, New York's to 3.81.

It was in 1920, you will remember, that the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act went into effect after a period of wartime prohibition, and many people settled down to the belief that liquor was gone for good.

What happened next? Bootleggers, beer runners and whisky racketeers began to see that there was money for them in federal prohibition. Maybe that had nothing to do with murders in great cities. But what other cause can you logically assign to the fact that in 1921 Chicago's murder index rose to 7.41 per 100,000 and New York's to 4.17?

The rise continued in both cities in 1922. Murder paused on the new high level in '23. It has been doing well in both New York and Chicago since that time.

The last four years have been record murder years in New York.

Chicago chalked up a fifteen year murder record in 1926, and almost hit it again in '28, while the years between were surpassed only by the freak peak of 1919.

There must be a reason for this increase of murder in the cities since 1920.

Only two important changes of government have affected the entire nation in the fifteen years covered by the chart. One was prohibition; the other, universal woman suffrage. We haven't heard of any murders that could be charged up to the fact that women have the vote—though a writer did complain in a recent Voice of the People column that her husband had stopped speaking to her because she voted for a few Democrats on Nov. 5.

There is known to be much money for some people in the illegal liquor traffic. There will always be men willing to shoot to kill where money is the prize. The logical as well as the easiest conclusion is that prohibition has more than any other one thing to do with the steady increase of murders in the cities.

MAKING THE OYSTER SAFER.

THE chlorination of oysters as a means of making them safe is growing in this country. A British investigator, Dddgson, has just written a book on this subject. He bases his book on their many years experience in chlorinating oysters at Conway, Wales. At that place they put the gathered oysters into tanks and leave them there until their shells are cleaned and the oysters have been cleared of bacteria and other refuse.

As a rule, the oysters are held for three days in these tanks. The largest tank will hold sixteen tons of oysters or eighty thousand gallons of clean chlorinated sea water. The tanks are made of cement with water inlets and outlets and the bottom is a lathed false bottom through which dirt and excretions of the oysters may fall.

The method of washing or purification can be used with clams, mussels and other bivalves.

Oysters are an excellent food. They are needed to supplement our supplies of pork, beef, mutton and chicken. Now that they have been made and are being made safe health experts are anxious to promote their use. They are against the various industrial and commercial customs by which great oyster raising areas are being made unavailable. They would like to see oysters grown far more extensively than they now are.

In a recent discussion of oyster growing methods used in Great Britain, Mr. J. M. Tabor said he was gathering oysters from a bed which has been used by his family for that purpose for over four hundred years. More than four hundred years ago one J. M. Tabor leased a certain oyster bed for nine hundred and ninety-nine years. The lease is nearly half run and the bed is still producing good, safe oysters in good quantities. This proves that we do not need to abandon beds if we will but live and let live in accordance with the laws of health of oysters and man.

In this discussion it developed that oysters picked up copper, arsenic, iron, iodine and other minerals from the water with great alacrity. Most green oysters, but not all, contain copper, but the amount they contain is not unwholesome for human consumers. They are prone to pick up disease bacteria from water, especially during the feeding season. This is now being prevented by inspection and regulation of beds and product and by chlorination.

It is hoped that the general adoption of chlorination may increase the acreage of usable oyster beds. It is also possible that it may eventually make oysters safe for eating during the warm months.

FOOD IN ALUMINUM UTENSILS.

Mrs. E. F. writes:

1. A girl friend had a doctor tell her that food cooked in aluminum became poisoned and that only granite should be used for cooking purposes. Is this true?
2. Are eggs harder to digest than meats?
3. I like baked custards, which are composed chiefly of eggs and milk, but heard they were not healthful.

REPLY.

1. No.
2. No. A few people find eggs hard to digest.
3. The statement is incorrect.

SHOULD DO NO HARM.

Mrs. S. S. writes: My husband, who has kidney trouble, wants to know the difference between orange and lemon acid. Lemon acid does not seem to hurt him.

REPLY.

Chemically, there is no particular difference between the two juices. Both are watery solutions of citric acid containing about the same proportions of benzoic acid. They differ somewhat in concentration in calories, in carbohydrates, and in flavor. Essentially they are the same. There is nothing in orange juice which should harm the kidneys, though the term "kidney trouble" is not definite.

ENLARGED LYMPH GLANDS.

B. H. writes:

1. What is Hodgkin's disease?
2. What causes it?
3. At what age does it usually appear?

REPLY.

1. An enlargement of the lymph glands.
2. Some sort of an infection. The particular kind has not been decided.
3. It can develop at any adult age.

NO RECORD OF ARRIVAL.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—[Friend of the People.]—A friend who has been in this country since 1891 applied for citizen's papers and was informed that no record has been kept since 1896 and that she would have to take it up with the immigration official at a cost of $20 plus the $5 for the application and other expenses. N. T.

The naturalization law effective July 1, 1929, provides that any alien who requires a declaration of intention before he may file a petition for naturalization, must file with his petition a certificate from the immigration service showing the date, place and manner of his arrival in the United States, and if no record exists, there is provision made in the same law to have a registry of arrival made through the immigration service, and the fee fixed by congress for this purpose is $20. The fee for a certificate of arrival after the registry shall have been made is $5. The person about whom the writer speaks was, no doubt, fully advised in this respect. H. L. BOETTER,
Acting District Director of Naturalization.

GOVERNMENT TRUCKS.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Has a government mail truck the right of way at all times? 2. If a person standing on the footboard of a truck going along the street is injured, would the driver be held responsible? W. A.

1. No; but since the government is not liable in the same sense that a private owner would be liable for damages, there seems to be some tendency for them to take greater chances, and hence it might be wise to give them the right of way. 2. Not necessarily. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

COUNTY SEAT FOR LICENSES.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

IF I COULD CHANGE PLACES WITH YOU, LITTLE DOG.

If I could change places with you, little dog,
I could sleep sweet all day as still as a log;
No rude dreams of taxes my rest would assail,
My only real business would be chasing my tail;
So change with me, doggie, I beg on my knees;
Wait, just a minute! Is it true you have fleas?

If I could change places with you, little dog,
I'd feel as though stepping right out of a bog;
For never again would I undergo
That new fangled torture that's called radio.
I'd listen no more to the loud speaker's wheeze;
But wait, little doggie, what about fleas?

If I could change places with you, little dog,
My life would be free of its most dreaded cog;
I'd never put on a dress suit at all,
Or have to go to a dinner or ball;
I'd just snooze around, or sit at my ease,
And be perfectly happy—if it wasn't for fleas.

If I could change places with you, little dog,
I'd be just as gay as an old pollywog;
I never would answer the telephone bell,
And margins and brokers could go plumb to hell.
I'd never be caught in a stock exchange squeeze;
Come on now, let's change; but wait—there's those fleas!

If I could change places with you, little dog,
I'd not have to hike out in fair weather or fog,
And get to the office and work like the deuce,
Just to murmur at night, "Oh, gosh, what's the use!"
So I am determined, this chance I will seize;
Come, doggie; no, darn it—I cannot stand fleas!

If I could change places with you, little dog,
No reformers would grab me with Service agog;
I wouldn't be hectored by the Wet and Dry strife,
And, praise be to Allah, I could live my own life;
So, after all, doggie, don't turn down my pleas,
I'll change places gladly; there's worse things than fleas!

WILLIAM BAILEY, who was told by all the critics he was a grand tenor and who was offered the star singing part in a new opera, turned music down flat and got a job as a fire-fighter on the New York fire department. This is a good example and we hope it will be followed universally. Still, how many fire-fighters does the New York fire department require? Not near enough to take 'em all in. Oh, not near.

I O U'S.

Witnesses at the trial declare that Arnold Rothstein gave I O U's in poker games. But they shouldn't have killed him for that! We've got a lot of mildewed, tattered old I O U's still in the bottom of an old trunk. They were what we won in the years gone by when we sometimes indulged in a little game. No, they shouldn't have shot Arnold for that, but—well, we remember that sometimes when the cold gray dawn came stealing in through the window and we led the ritualistic chant, "Let's Have a Round of Roodles, Then We'll All Go Home," and the game ended with us a big winner. After which we counted up our profits and found they consisted entirely of a large fat assortment of I O U's. We are afraid, had we carried a gun in those dear dead days beyond recall, we might—but, no! You can't shoot a man for that!

A BOX in a newspaper—this is in a box—is most portentous! Ah, and indeed, yes. Ah, Dream On, Dear One, and May Thy Dreams Be Never Shattered.

Sir: When I pointed out a news item to the effect that the duty on Italian cherries was to be raised from one to two hundred per cent, the little lady remarked: "That means the end of Manhattan cocktails. Maybe some day we won't be allowed to have cocktails of any kind." I didn't have the heart to tell her. SCUFFLER.

PROGRESS.

For each lad conceded lost,
I have found a better.
Faiths that failed—what odds, the cost—
Left no chains to fetter.

From loneliness, they say, is torn
Earth-roots of endeavor.
Out of heartbreak have been born
Songs that lived forever.

So, let us hie us to the skies—
Weakling heart that lingers,
Moping over handsome eyes,
Puzzled by scorched fingers.

EVERYBODY'S OPTIMISTIC about the business outlook. That's good. In our mail Saturday was an opportunity to buy bonds in a merger of several undertaking companies who announced proudly that their business was immense in 1929, with a sure prospect of booming and beating all records in 1930. That's good! Or, is it?

FOOTBALL'S OVER, the senate's adjourned, and the stock market is struggling back to normalcy (touch wood, quick), so what are we to do for good, clean fun? Oh, well, Thanksgiving is coming. NEW YORK.—The Franklin syndicate of Brooklyn tumbled into ruins and its promoters were indicted. Louis Miller, brother of Promoter William F. Miller, 23 years old, was arrested. Only a few thousand dollars of the vast sums taken in by the syndicate were found when its quarters were raided. For months this strange "investment" concern has prospered, it being beyond the power of the authorities to prove the fraud that was apparent to all except the customers who were led on by the promise of 10 per cent per week to investors. It is stated the syndicate has taken in $4,000,000.

BELMONT, Cape Colony.—At daybreak yesterday Gen. Methuen's superb force attacked a command of 4,000 Boers in a position which British troops would hold against almost any force. The Boers, shielded by bowlders, held the crest of four rocky hills. With dauntless courage the men of the British commands threw themselves like so many onrushing billows against the hills and poured up and finally overflowed them. Our victory was complete. The Boers were put to flight and their fortified laager destroyed. One estimate of the Boer loss is fifty killed and 150 wounded. We have fifty prisoners, dirty, ignorant, and wretched. The British losses were heavier than the Boers'.

MANILA.—President Bautista of the Filipino congress presented himself to Gen. MacArthur and formally renounced all further connection with the insurrection. His statements confirm the belief that Aguinaldo's forces are hopelessly scattered.

CHICAGO.—James J. McGrath, for years alderman of the 14th ward, former member of the state assembly and senate, and at one time acting mayor of the city, dropped dead at a table in Richter's restaurant, Ashland and Milwaukee avenues. He was 62 years old.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY.

NOVEMBER 25, 1919.

CHICAGO.—Dashing wildly across the state in a taxicab with two detectives pursuing and the county authorities waiting his approach, James M. Miles, absconding former vice president of the Standard Trust and Savings bank, was making a spectacular race for freedom early this morning. At midnight he was speeding south on the 100 mile stretch between Dixon and Peoria. At Princeton and Chillicothe sheriffs had barred the road and were stopping every southbound automobile at guns' points. The bank discovered its loss will total $40,000.

PARIS.—The Jugo-Slavs sent a note to the supreme council demanding that action be taken to curb the activities of Gabriele d'Annunzio and warning the peace conference that if he persists in his present course an armed conflict will follow. They demand that he be warned that if he attempts to cross the frontier and advance toward Spalato hostilities will be unavoidable.

LONDON.—War between Jugo-Slavia and Italy becomes more imminent, in the opinion of the British press, which has lost all patience with Gabriele d'Annunzio, the soldier-poet, whose filibustering forces are occupying Fiume and the Dalmatian coast.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Wilson will dictate the terms of peace between the coal miners and operators tomorrow if his cabinet indorses the program worked out today by Attorney General Palmer, Fuel Administrator Garfield, and Director General Hines of the railway administration. Garfield announced that the final wage scale must not gouge the public.

CHICAGO.—Thousands of Jews marched in protest against the pogroms in Ukrainia and southeastern Europe in which their kin have been slaughtered. They had a battle with the police when 15,000 of them attempted to force their way into Orchestra hall to take part in the protest meeting.

WAR REFERENDUM.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—THE TRIBUNE is sound as usual on international questions in what it editorially says about former Ambassador Alanson D. Houghton's doctrine that the nation should not engage in war unless it has been specifically and directly sanctioned by the people. It is an idealistic doctrine which will not stand the test of practical application.

The state of opinion in the north, as shown by the election returns of 1860, was such that if the question of war in defense of the Union had been submitted to a popular vote, President Lincoln could not have defended Fort Sumter and the Union would have been peaceably dissolved. This would have resulted in breaking the now powerful republic into a half dozen petty states, and a Balkanized America would have been the tool of European powers, with frequent inevitable recurrence of war.

The state of opinion in this country after the blowing up of the Maine would have plunged this country into war in February, 1898. McKinley was being almost unanimously denounced by the American people while he was trying for two months to settle our dispute with Spain by diplomatic means and at the same time preparing for a swift finish of the war should it come.

Wars usually come suddenly and unexpectedly. The nation which in good faith would apply this referendum policy might be invaded and hopelessly hurt by any power which had no scruples about making treaties scraps of paper and depending upon our delay in getting this machinery into operation. Foreign intrigue might conceivably make of this process a means of our own self-destruction.

If conscription were abolished the danger that any nation would go to war without the backing of public sentiment would be diminished to the zero point. But this would require a world-wide agreement which could not be effected at this time.

GEORGE R. MCWILLIAMS.

TRAFFIC IN 1932.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—In an article in yesterday's TRIBUNE it was stated that after the football game at Soldiers' field last Saturday afternoon it took 40 minutes for an automobile to drive from Van Buren street to Lake street, leaving the game. Article also stated there were 120,000 people at the game; also that many people walked quite a distance. It described a wonderful jam leaving the game. Article also stated that many people did not come in their automobiles to the football game.

It is proposed to hold the World's Fair on the lake front, not far from the stadium, in 1932; that is a little more than 3 years hence. At that time there will be more automobiles, and more people, presumably, will be using them. There will be more than 120,000 people daily attending the fair. What are they going to do?

It seems to me that this is a good time to study this matter and figure out what to do with automobiles owned by people who intend to visit the fair. Surely it would not be wise to expect people to drive from other cities, far and near, to Chicago, and then park their cars somewhere and walk to the fair. They certainly could not all be taken there in taxis or buses or street cars, or in any other known means of conveyance. It seems to me this matter should be given a great deal of thought, and the sooner it is properly worked out the better.

WHEN THE REV. MR. LIBBY TURNED QUAKER.

Richmond, Ind., Nov. 20.—My attention has been called to the leading editorial in your issue of Nov. 15 in which you take up the question of Mr. Frederick J. Libby and his relation to the peace movement.

I write to make a correction as a matter of record. You say: "He seems to have become a Quaker later. In fact, he has been quoted as giving the date of his enlightenment as April 6, 1917, just after we entered the war."

I have before me a certified copy of the records of Philadelphia yearly meeting of Friends, showing that Mr. Libby was recorded as a member in September, 1921. The implication of your statement is that he joined Friends in 1917 to evade war service. As a matter of fact, he went to France as a volunteer in reconstruction and relief work in July, 1918, at a time when he was not subject to the draft at all, he being then 43 years old. It was not until the last of August, 1918, that steps were taken to raise the draft age to 45.

WALTER C. WOODWARD.

[The statement objected to is based on the letter written by Gen. Barnett to Congressman Andrews and published in the Boston Traveler, May 9, 1923, in which Gen. Barnett says: "I then asked him [Mr. Libby] when he became a Friend. 'I do not remember the exact date,' he stated, 'but it was after April 6, 1917.'" Our information is also that in March or April of 1918 he applied to the American Friends' Service committee for relief work in Europe. Hostilities ended about six months later. We do not stress the point.—Editor.]

IF I WERE PRESIDENT.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—I would like to reply to that narrow minded idiot who claims if he were President he would put a 2 cent tax on every cigaret smoked. How lucky for the people that such a feather brained person does not occupy the White House. Instead of centering his mind on intelligent jurisdiction over the country, his mind runs on such meager things as a tiny cigaret. There is a place other than the White House for feeble minded. CAROLINE CERO.

CREATING A GALLERY.

Harbert, Mich., Nov. 19.—It was a great pleasure to find the beautiful picture to be framed in last Sunday's paper, "The End of the Trail." I have had these pictures framed and I find by having a good frame they come out magnificently. Here's hoping I will soon find "Appeal to the Spirit," which is another picture that one can be proud of having. MRS. MAURICE GLAVIN.

"END OF THE TRAIL" IN OSHKOSH.

Winnetka, Ill., Nov. 20.—In last Sunday's TRIBUNE was a picture of "End of the Trail" and an article mentioning a replica in Boston. There is another reproduction of this famous piece of sculpture in a cemetary at Oshkosh, Wis. I saw it a few months ago. The writer of the article was evidently unaware of this fact. SEE ESS.

Parole Board Strikes at 'Escrow System.'

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Gov. Emmerson's parole board has devised a plan to curb—if not to stop completely—criminal lawyers in the general practice of "easing" convicts out of the state prisons.

The scheme, which in its operation would deprive criminal lawyers of hundreds of thousands of dollars, is in the process of being worked in favor of more than a third of the 7,800 prison inmates. Briefly, the effect of the "easing" system is to get convicts out of prison in a much shorter time than their crimes merit.

The new plan is credited to W. C. Jones, Streator lawyer, who heads the parole board. He is also said to have originated another plan to break up the "escrow system" of defrauding families of convicts out of thousands of dollars. In this scheme the shyster, for a fat fee, "springs" the convict—gets him out of prison in a hurry—or so the family is tricked into believing.

System Is Profitable.

But the "easing" system is more remunerative and prevalent and does not involve what the lawyers call ethics. It is legal and has been worked successfully for years. The following illustrates the system:

A highwayman holds up a factory messenger at the point of a gun and escapes with a $10,000 pay roll. The gunman is caught and the indictment shows whom he robbed, the amount, when and where it happened and the witnesses to the crime. Robbery armed carries a much heavier penalty than larceny. Before the trial opens the lawyer for the robber, seeing no way to obtain an acquittal of his criminal, suggests that he will plead guilty to plain robbery without a court battle. Plain robbery carries potentially less punishment than robbery armed. Or he may suggest that his armed robber will plead guilty to larceny or to petit larceny, which are still less serious crimes. Petit larceny means the taking of less than $15.

Of course, the uninitiated may think that it would be impossible for a lawyer to get a gunman-robber off with a sentence for petit larceny; but the fact is that there are six such cases in one state prison. Heretofore that has aided the convict in "easing" out of prison sooner than he should have been turned loose.

New Stand Taken.

The parole board has reasoned that the man was sentenced for larceny, not for armed robbery, and therefore his punishment should be less. That is all wrong in the opinion of a majority of the present parole board.

Chairman Jones has insisted that the criminal who goes out with a gun deliberately intending to shoot to get money and protect his own skin is an armed robber, despite the fact that he has pleaded guilty to being a petty thief, and should be treated and punished as an armed robber. It is planned by the board to inflict the penalty for armed robbery on gunmen, even if they have pleaded guilty to the least of felonies. In the cases heard to date penalties have been dealt out on that policy.

"Easing out of Joliet" is a vulgar expression of the crooks. Among lawyers it is politely known by the inoffensive name of "lesser pleas." An investigation of 1,637 prisoners in Pontiac shows that 571 were sentenced on "lesser pleas," and consequently they and their lawyers expect them to get out of prison sooner than if they had been sentenced for the more serious crime committed.

Many from Cook County.

Of the 571, the record shows that 467 are from Cook county and 104 from the remainder of the state.

That indicates how extensively the "lesser plea" or "easing system" is practiced in Chicago and suburbs. But it can be put more vividly. In the period of investigation there were 773 prisoners from Cook county. Of these, 60.4 per cent had been sentenced on "lesser pleas," with the hope and expectation of "easing" out of prison. Downstate was not so bad. Of its 864 prisoners, only 12 per cent went in via the "lesser plea" route. If this test be taken as indicative of the situation in all state prisons, then three out of every five Cook county felons have taken the necessary precaution to "ease" out of prison.

In proportion to prison population, there are five convicts from Cook county to one from downstate who have made the preliminary arrangement to "ease" out of prison.

Prison Officer's Figures.

May it be incidentally injected that these are not the figures of a TRIBUNE reporter. This data was compiled by C. O. Botkin, recorder at Pontiac. His investigation shows that armed robbery was accepted as plain robbery in 188 cases. One hundred and sixty-one other armed robbers pleaded guilty to the minor offense of larceny; and a half a dozen other gunmen were officially sentenced for petit larceny.

The "lesser plea" is utilized for offenses other than armed robbery. Thirteen inmates charged with plain robbery went to Pontiac for larceny, and another plain robber got off with petit larceny. Of the 64 burglars in the prison at the time, 61 had obtained the "lesser plea" of larceny, two of receiving stolen property, and one of petit larceny. In 16 instances murder was changed to manslaughter, in 14 cases larceny was lowered to petit larceny, and four charges of burglary were lessened to attempted burglary.

Penal Commission for It.

It is anticipated that a number of Chicago lawyers will complain bitterly because the effective operation of the new plan will put them in bad with their convict clients. The plan has the backing of the last special penal commission, as well as a number of state's attorneys and judges. This question was sent by the state commission to certain prosecutors:

"Assuming a situation where a lesser plea had been accepted, for example, a manslaughter plea where the facts indicated murder, do you believe it properly within the province of the divisions of pardons and paroles to take these facts into consideration in fixing the prisoner's sentence?"

Of the 22 replies, 17 prosecutors said that the facts should be considered, three said they should not, and two were indefinite. Fourteen judges expressed their view on a like question. Thirteen were emphatic that the board should consider all the facts of a crime, notwithstanding the lesser plea. One was opposed.

Escrow System Used.

The "escrow system" of "springing" convicts out of the prisons is usually operated along this line:

A lawyer goes to the family of several convicts, say four, who are due for parole. He offers to get the prisoner out of the penitentiary at the first or second meeting of the parole board for $1,000, but insists that no money be paid him until he has "sprung" the prisoner. He, however, wants the $1,000 placed in escrow in a bank, to be returned to the family if he fails and to him, if he wins.

Usually the lawyer does not go near the parole board. He knows the parole board's customs and therefore knows that his four prisoners are due for parole. Perhaps he will fall on one. If his trio are turned loose, three families are happy, the fourth is satisfied because its escrow cash has been returned, and the shyster himself is content with his lot.

Trick Usually Works.

His trick works for the reason that the prisoner and his family have heretofore been unable to ascertain when the prisoner will be placed on parole. The new board has decided to hear every case when the prisoner has served his minimum sentence and then and there fix a date when the prisoner will be released. The prisoner and his family can obtain this fixed date. By good behavior he can obtain a good time allowance from that date. That, too, can be established with accuracy. The date is fixed, subject to only two conditions, lack of additional information and the good behavior of the prisoner.

The interest of honest people in these two new policies lies in the probability that they indicate the general intentions of the parole board toward the crime hazard.

YALE'S FAMOUS FENCE IS BACK IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 24.—(AP)—The famous fence, Yale's treasured relic of bygone days, was back in its home city today after being missing since the day of the Yale-Princeton game. The fence was shipped from Cambridge, Mass., after its appearance at a banquet of the Harvard Lampoon Friday night and arrived at the local office of the Railway Express agency early today.

The bulky package containing the three rail fence was consigned to the photographer's studio whence it was stolen.

The shipper of the fence, according to the tag attached to the package, was "Eric Gustafson." A person using several variations of this name flooded the Yale Daily News after the mystifying disappearance of the fence with telegrams containing "clews" as to the whereabouts of the relic.

A value of $4,000 was placed on the fence by its shippers.

FINDS OLD STATE LINE HID UNDER BARK OF TREES

Resurvey Boundary Hewn 80 Years Ago.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Boundary commissions of Wisconsin and Michigan will meet in the spring to agree on a definite division line between the two states expected to end forever the dispute over territory.

In 1847 William A. Burt surveyed the 65 mile stretch between the two states where there are no natural river boundaries. But the line had been forgotten in the last eighty years, with both states laying conflicting claims.

Then the United States Supreme court held that the Burt line was the legitimate boundary.

Finds Old Burt Line.

Wisconsin and Michigan appointed commissions and Earl G. Harrington, engineer with the federal land office, was employed to find the Burt line. For two summers Harrington forced his way through the wilderness, choked with low growth and windfalls, but C. A. Halbert, Wisconsin state engineer, points out that Harrington has located seventy per cent of the points marked by Burt, a highly successful achievement.

The original line was marked with wood stakes, but under the direction of Harrington concrete blocks weighing 110 pounds each were carried through the woods with a stretcher device to mark the rediscovered line. The blocks had to be carried as far as five miles, due to the inaccessibility of the territory.

Marks Hidden on Trees.

With the Burt stakes long since decayed, Harrington centered his efforts on finding blazed markings on trees. This required considerable effort and wielding of an ax because the markings were overgrown with new wood and were six inches below the bark surface. Many of the trees had fallen since Burt marked his trail and one estimated to have lain as a windfall for fifteen years still revealed a well preserved copy of the Burt gouged out lettering.

The two surveys, eighty years apart, showed graphically the changing condition in Wisconsin and Michigan forests. When Burt ran his line he found tall standing timber with no undergrowth and few windfalls. He completed his survey in thirty days.

Half Mile in Day.

Harrington found a wilderness of thick growth covered with windfalls that made progress slow and tiresome. Conditions were such in some places that only a half mile of territory could be surveyed in a single day.

The work of marking the line virtually has been completed.

STUDENT SHOT DEAD AFTER GIRL REFUSES TO WED HIM AT ONCE

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 24.—(AP)—With a revolver clutched in his right hand, Robert Detweiler, 23, son of a prominent Omaha family and junior law student at Creighton university, was found dead early today in his automobile on a road near the western limits of Omaha. He had been shot in the head.

After an investigation, county officers said they believed the youth committed suicide because the girl he loved had refused to marry him until he completed his law course.

The officers questioned Miss Martha Peterson, 24, daughter of a wealthy Council Bluffs, Ia., merchant and socially prominent, with whom Detweiler had been keeping company.

She said that Detweiler left her home about 3 a. m. after they had attended a dance in Omaha. She revealed that they had planned to be married but she insisted the nuptials be postponed until after he finished school.

Sarasota, Fla., Nov. 24.—(AP)—William J. Burns, former head of the United States secret service, was reported much improved at his home here today. His physicians said today that Mr. Burns had been suffering from ptomaine poisoning and that he was not in a serious condition.

5 ARE ARRESTED KILLING MAN, AND ATTACKING GIRL

Mountain View, Ark., Nov. 24.—(AP)—The torture, mutilation, and then burning alive of Connie Franklin, a farm hand, and an attack on his young woman companion on a lonely mountain road 14 miles east of here last March came to light today with the arrest of five indicted by the county grand jury. All were indicted on first degree murder charges and two of them on charges of rape.

The grand jury has been investigating the slaying for months. Fear of reprisals has sealed the lips of the young woman until recently. She was quoted by Prosecutor Hugh Williamson of this district as saying she and Franklin were walking along a road when five men accosted them. The men seized Franklin, she said, and beat and mutilated him. Franklin, overcome by the torture, fainted, and his assailants, thinking him dead, built a fire and put his body on it. The body rolled off and, they replenished the fire and placed the body on it again.

Failing to destroy the body with the fire the men picked up a part of it, placed it in a sack, and took it to a nearby stream.

Williamson said the woman's testimony was substantiated by a written statement of a deaf mute boy, said to have seen the attack from a distance.

STAR WITNESS IN UNION ARSON CASE STABBED

Isaac Levin, 44 years old, 1416 South Springfield avenue, a butcher and former president of the Kosher Chicken Killers' union, was stabbed in the thigh early yesterday by an unidentified man, who, as he wielded the knife, shouted in Hebrew: "Tell the state's attorney about this, too."

Levin, star witness for the state in the arson trial of Joseph Etkin, business agent of the union, followed his assailant's behest and reported the stabbing to Assistant State's Attorney George Lavin. Etkin is scheduled to go to trial on Jan. 7 before Judge William N. Gemmill in Criminal court. Lavin is prosecuting the case.

ADMITS TRYING TO WRECK WIFE'S BEAUTY PARLOR

Thomas Eier, 44 years old, of Riverside, was being held at the Oak Park police station last night on a charge of arson after he confessed an attempt to blow up the beauty parlor owned by his estranged wife, Pauline, 40 years old, at 747 Madison street, Oak Park.

When policemen and firemen arrived at the beauty parlor early yesterday morning Lieut. Harry Wilson found a fire blazing in a closet at the rear and ten gas jets open. Mrs. Eier, who filed suit for divorce several weeks ago, suspected her husband and the police captured him several hours later as he was leaving a saloon in Riverside, carrying two satchels.

The Yellow Cab Driver of Today.

The old-fashioned cab driver was a queer bird. His attitude toward the public was anything but courteous. He was not dependable, the vehicle was slow, uncomfortable, unkempt. "Get the most money for the least service" was his motto. Progress has been made in cab operation since his time.

The entire world is progressing each year and Yellow Cab is progressing with it. New luxurious and immaculately clean vehicles are now at the public's call. Every comfort for the passenger is provided for.

The Yellow Cab driver of today is a man of character who represents the awakened spirit of Chicago, the same spirit that is planning, building and transforming the old Chicago into a city beautiful, alert and practical,—whose building plans, although as yet incomplete, have already caused the world to pause in admiration.

The cab driver of today as typified by Yellow Cab is entirely a new type of man, educated, courteous, honest,—with the interest of the passenger at heart. He is instilled with the idea of the public be pleased—not the public be fooled policy.

The Yellow Cab driver knows his city. Passengers rely upon him to take them to their destination without delay over the most pleasant route.

Our men are the highest paid cab drivers in the world. It is good business for us to employ only the best men obtainable.

With a steady assured income from a financially sound organization, Yellow Cab drivers have no financial worries. Their minds are free to concentrate on the one essential matter—superior, safe service to you.

We suggest that you cut out the following local telephone numbers and carry them with you wherever you go and make note of the number you can call from your residence. Then you can get a Yellow Cab at any time, any where—promptly.

AMERICAN TELLS HOW REDS RULE WITH IRON HEEL

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 24.—Scientific terror applied to all classes of the population is the chief prop of bolshevism according to an American engineer who, after working three years for a firm contracted to a soviet government syndicate, has given up in disgust. He arrived in Riga recently determined to be home by Christmas. He asked to remain unnamed as there was still a possibility his firm would want him to return.

When asked if it was a fact that the communist party, which is beginning its thirteenth year of rule in Russia, is not gaining the support of the population, he replied that all the races and religious classes in Russia hate bolshevism, but that they are powerless because of the present terror.

Soviet Power Limitless.

"In actual governing power the soviet form of government," he said, "is the most powerful ever devised by mankind—other forms of government only have a limited power against individuals whom they fine, imprison, and execute, but in this respect the power of the soviet government is without limit. Through a tremendous bureaucy, which spreads like tentacles to every city and village in Russia, not only can they fine, imprison, and execute but they can also discharge a man from his position, confiscate his bread card, compel him to purchase at the government stores, seize his living quarters, expel his children from the schools, or exile him after confiscating his meager personal property, evicting his wife and children into the street.

"Such cases occur in Moscow and other cities daily and, as under the present system every one is concerned in getting an extra ration of food and better living quarters, everybody is at the mercy of his neighbor. It is enough to ruin a person simply to report to the local communist committee that he was formerly the son of a wealthy father and that he occupied a good position before the revolution.

Peasants Fear Eviction.

"Under the present systematic terror the population is cowed, suspicious, and surly. I found life to be a continuous hell no matter where I lived. The terror is just as strong in the villages as in the cities, as the chairman of the local soviet has unlimited powers and can dispossess any peasant he wishes and compel him and his family to move at least 14 miles from home before he can again settle in some abandoned shack.

"There are no well to do peasants living in Russia today, for each family is living as poorly as possible to escape the endless persecution. In the villages the local drunkard element is in control, as they form the majority of 'the committee of the poor' who support the local communist rule.

"If the better class of the peasants revolt, within a week the cheka or secret political police squad arrives, better armed than a group of Chicago gangsters, and they follow gangster methods of execution.

"In the cities the worst element of the former inhabitants now consider themselves the new aristocracy and a big mouthed worker can get a job managing a factory in which he formerly occupied one of the least important positions.

"These gangsters are destroying everything the American citizens cherish—religious freedom, independent political thought, family life, and the right to amass wealth if we have the ability. These things are not permitted in Russia where pastors, priests, and business men, or any person having political beliefs opposing the present régime can be shot without trial.

"So universal is the terror that not a single person I met could say he had five friends whom he could absolutely trust without the fear that one of them might be a member of the cheka. However, the end of this reign of terror is in sight, for the communist party is no longer able to maintain the unity of former years. The leaders are bitterly quarreling among themselves over present policies. When they begin to kill each other—and this is expected shortly—there is a chance of the population destroying the cheka, that organization of super-gangsters whose power far exceeds that of the commissars."

CLARA BARTON HOME AND OBJECTS OF ART LEFT TO IOWA WOMEN

Anamosa, Ia., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Two local women, Mrs. Park Chamberlain and Miss Rena Hubbell, nieces of Dr. Julian Hubbell, noted Red Cross worker, who died at Glen Echo, Md., last week, have been bequeathed the Clara Barton home, where Dr. Hubbell lived for many years, together with all its treasures.

Miss Barton bequeathed the home to Dr. Hubbell on her death in 1912. In the home are many objects of art given Miss Barton during her long association with the Red Cross, including several gifts from royalty. There also is a solid gold and cloisonne wine set presented to Dr. Hubbell by the late czar of Russia. It is understood that the nieces will dispose of the home, give some of the works of art to the library of congress and the Red Cross, and retain some of the more valuable ones.

Dr. Hubbell was a resident of this city for years and his body will be brought here for burial.

PLAN TO BUILD PLANE TO CARRY 206 PASSENGERS

New York, Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Construction of four giant airplanes, dwarfing any now in existence and comparable only to ocean liners in size, fittings, and accommodations, will be begun soon, Dr. William Whitney Christmas, vice president of the General Development company of Connecticut, announced today.

The new air giants will be capable of carrying a maximum of 206 passengers each, as well as tons of mail and freight. They will have a wing spread of 262 feet and will cost $2,000,000 each. Long distance passenger, mail, and freight transportation competition with the railroads is projected.

The ships are to be monoplanes of the "flying wing" type, and will be powered by eight chemically cooled motors, geared to variable pitch air screws. Cabin accommodations will be provided in the wings which will have transparent material let into the leading edges permitting passengers the same view as that from the pilot's control cabin.

The crew of each plane will consist of a master, a radio operator, two pilots, a purser, two enginemen, two machinists, and eight cooks, with stewards, pantrymen, and waiters. Two outriggers, extending forward to house the motors, and aft to support the tail group also will be used for passenger quarters.

Russia's Four Airmen to Start Home Wednesday

New York, Nov. 24.—[Special.]—The four airmen of Russia, who arrived here in their all-metal monoplane, Land of the Soviets, on Nov. 1, will leave for Europe Wednesday, according to an announcement made today by the American Society for Cultural Relations with Russia. The society announced it would give the flyers a farewell reception Tuesday night at the Town Hall club.

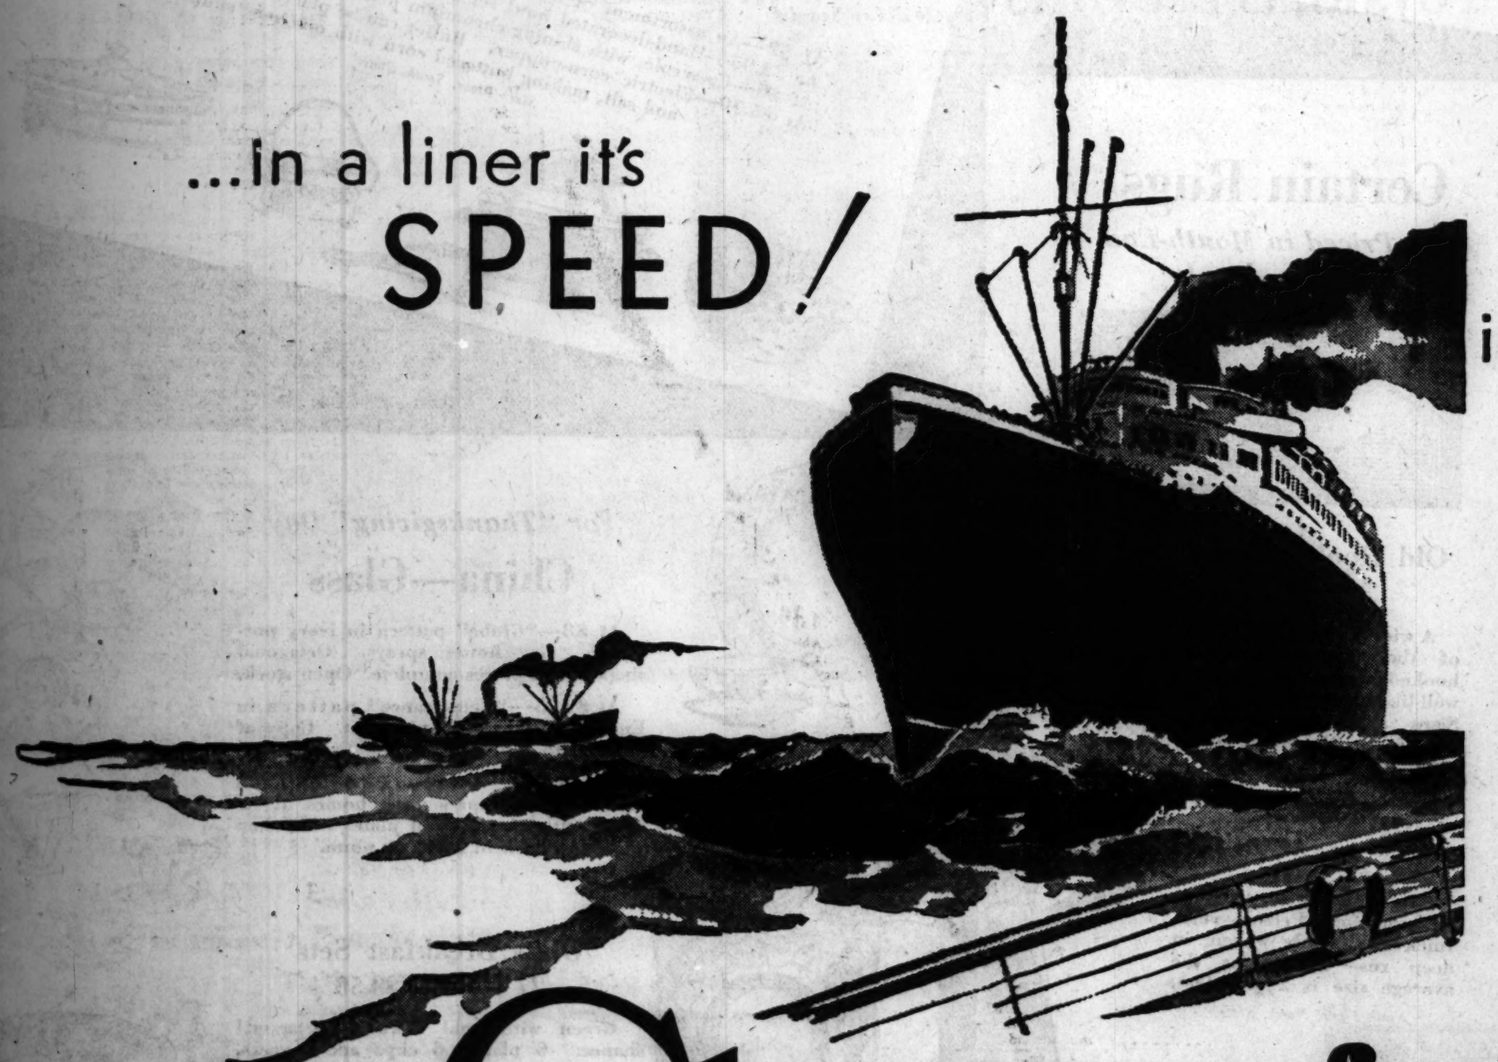
SINCERE PERSONAL SERVICE

...in a liner it's SPEED!



in a cigarette it's TASTE!

IT is a competitive age—and for most things, an age of speed.

But good cigarettes are not made that way. Unhurried ripening of leaf, thorough ageing, painstaking and uniform blending and cross-blending—this is the standard Chesterfield method.

"TASTE above everything"

AUTO ACCIDENTS FATAL TO THREE; FOUR ARE INJURED

Aged Pedestrian Struck, Seriously Hurt.

Three persons died yesterday in traffic accidents. The deaths increased the county motor toll this year to 891. The victims:

Vincent Franecki, 22 years old, 3302 Fisk street. Died in St. Francis hospital, Blue Island, of a skull fracture incurred in a collision at 95th street and Cicero avenue, Oak Lawn. Michael McDonough, 20 years old, 5520 Throop street, driver of the other car, and his companion, Miss Mary Brozik, 19 years old, both suffered skull fractures and are in a critical condition.

Mrs. Frieda Schwartz, 50 years old, 1633 South Homan avenue. Died in Mount Sinai hospital of injuries incurred Saturday night when run down at 18th street and Homan avenue. The driver, I. Sneider, 3268 Ogden avenue, was instructed to appear at the inquest.

Unidentified man, about 45 years old. Died in the Holy Cross hospital of a skull fracture inflicted by a hit and run motorist at Marquette road and Talman avenue. He wore a blue suit, gray sweater and overcoat, brown cap, and black shoes.

Patrick Hairidu, 30 years old, of Hammond, Ind., died last night in St. Catherine's hospital at East Chicago of injuries suffered three hours earlier in a collision at Michigan avenue and Broadway, East Chicago. Hairidu's companion, Joseph Pantkowski of Hammond, and the other driver, Dan Davison of Indiana Harbor, were each held in $5,000 bail.

Jenrile Angelo, 2121 Adams street, Gary, Ind., age 6, died yesterday as the result of injuries received in a collision between automobiles driven by her father and John Pasko. Both the latter suffered fractured skulls and doctors say Pasko may not recover.

Henry Oehm, 72 years old, 3251 Southport avenue, was struck by an automobile and injured probably fatally last night at Southport and Wellington avenues as he was on his way to call on his son, the Rev. Nicholas Oehm, assistant pastor of St. Alphonsus Catholic church. The accident happened directly in front of the church when Oehm stepped into the path of a car driven by Oscar Anderson, 1827 Larchmont avenue. He was taken to the Alexian Brothers hospital suffering from a skull fracture.

FOREST FIRES MENACE CITIZENS OF SEVERAL OREGON SMALL TOWNS

Grants Pass, Ore., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Grave fears for residents in several small towns between Gold Hill and Palmer Butte were expressed tonight, after hundreds of fire fighters failed to stop fires in a brisk wind.

The Palmer Butte fire, which started yesterday and swept toward the Pacific coast line, was incendiary, according to officials. A second fire was burning fiercely in the Jacks Creek district near Brookings. The Hogue river fire was reported spreading. All communications with fire fighters in the district have been cut off.

The California-Oregon boundary line fire has changed its course and is headed toward Crescent City. The shift in the wind probably will save the redwood virgin timber, but will endanger many persons.

Bad Drive at First Tee Causes Fatal Heart Attack

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Nathan Greenberg, Tulsa business man, fell dead on the first tee of the McFarlin Country club here yesterday after a bad drive. Death was attributed to "a heart attack caused by strong emotion."

PLAN PALESTINE INVESTMENT CO. FOR AMERICANS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 24.—(AP)—A decision to form an American business organization for investments to further the economic development of Palestine was reached tonight at a meeting here of American Jewish leaders.

The meeting, called by Felix M. Warburg, New York banker, listened to reports of the agricultural, industrial, oil, and mineral possibilities of Palestine and to an address by Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the United States Supreme court.

Warburg said, referring briefly to the recent massacres in Palestine, that "with the establishment of security of life and property we may hope to pursue the peaceful channels of business and industry."

Describing Palestine as similar in many respects to California, Justice Brandeis said that a visit had convinced him that what was needed to make the land bloom were "men, means, and intelligent effort."

Touching upon the recent massacres, Justice Brandeis said: "Our people can take care of themselves, and our obligation or privilege is to enable not only those who are there to develop but hundreds of thousands of others who are ready to go there, who are eager to work and who, if they do there, will, in my opinion, make Palestine perhaps—all things considered—the safest place in the world."

Dr. Michelson to Leave Hospital for Home Today

Dr. Albert A. Michelson, University of Chicago physicist, who has been ill since September, will leave the Presbyterian hospital today and return to his home at 1220 East 58th street, his physicians said last night. Dr. Michelson has been able to walk about the hospital for a short time each day during the last week. His improvement has been steady since his last operation three weeks ago. After his first operation in September he developed pneumonia and was in a critical condition for several weeks.

WOODS COMBED IN SEARCH FOR BANKER'S WIFE

New York, Nov. 24.—(Special.)—Search for Mrs. Beecher Maynard Crouse, society wife of a millionaire banker, who disappeared on Nov. 11 from her mansion at Utica, N. Y., was intensified today.

Acting Gov. Herbert H. Lehman announced that every state agency would coöperate with the family in the hunt. Cavalrymen of the state militia, an airplane, posses of citizens, and state troopers combed the woodlands and along the waterways surrounding Utica, while a country-wide alarm was broadcast.

In New York City the authorities continued an investigation to determine whether the missing woman's interest in occultism and East Indian necromancy might have lured her into the inner circles of a cult of magic.

Her husband, Beecher Maynard Crouse, bank president and head of a number of corporations, has offered a $5,000 reward for trace of his wife.

Goes to Hospital to Learn Beauty Aid

Doctor laughed when she asked what cleared skin so quickly

This is the story of a little mother whose doctor helped her to make a great discovery.

"The first time I heard of it" writes Mrs. E. Whitney of 35 Parker Street, Bangor, Maine, "was when I was at the Eastern Maine General Hospital. Before I went there I was very nervous and run down and after my baby daughter was born the doctor began giving me something. In about ten days I felt like a new person, and began thinking about going home. Before then, I didn't care whether I lived or died, I was so miserable. My skin was in very bad condition and I could not understand what made it clear up so quickly, as I did not know what the nurse was giving me.

"Before I left I asked the House Doctor what kind of medicine it was that cleared up my skin and made me feel so much better. He said 'My dear girl, didn't you ever hear of Nujol?' I said 'Well, doctor, I've never been to a hospital before.' He said 'Hospitals aren't the only place you can get Nujol. You can buy it most anywhere.'

"I have been using Nujol ever since, and I think it is wonderful. You may publish this letter."

That's the great thing about Nujol. Not a medicine, contains no drugs, can't possibly hurt you, forms no habit—and if you are like most other people its simple natural way of bodily lubrication will do wonders for you, too.

You see, all of us have an excess of body poisons that make our skins sallow, that make us blue, low in the mind, only able to work at half or quarter our real ability. When Nujol absorbs these poisons and carries them off easily, normally, naturally, we just feel like a million dollars.

Your doctor will give you the same advice as this wise physician gave Mrs. Whitney. Try Nujol for two weeks, and see what happens. It costs so little, and it will mean so much to you. In sealed packages at any drug store. Start health, today!

"Make Mine a Mint Julep Shave!"

Once you get a box of BRISK, open the lid and shave with BRISK, you will never "monkey" with anybody's tube, stick or powder.

"After this," writes a 60-year-old shaver from Chicago, "you can make mine a mint julep shave every time. I've been shaving for 40 years, using all kinds of shaving creams and soaps and all types of razors, but never did I have a shave like that I got from BRISK. No wonder you call it the mint julep shave. I'm some judge of refreshments and I'll say BRISK deserves the appellation. I used to have to go over my face two or three times to get a clean shave, but now 'once over' does the job and there's none of that rawness of skin or that dry, tight feeling. After a BRISK shave my skin is as soft as a fine kid glove and as fit as a Stradivarius."

Why Brisk Does It.

First of all, BRISK lathers instantly and freely in hot or cold water and plenty of lather is the first requirement of a good shave. BRISK absorbs two to threeqtimes the amount of water that old fashioned shaving cream does. Hence it makes two or three times the amount of lather—and a lather that stays moist on your face until you finish your shave!

Take the flat, oval box of BRISK in one hand and rub your moist brush over BRISK.

Lubricates The Cutting Stroke.

The rich, moistureful lather quickly "cuts" the beard oil and soaks the hair soft for easy, clean cutting. Moreover, it lubricates the cutting stroke of the razor. You know how a bit of soap on a saw eases its passage through a log—well, that's how BRISK smooths the path of the razor. The razor does not "pull" or bump along over your face, but glides sweetly over the skin, cutting down the hair cleanly and closely and almost without effort.

Work up lather on your face. Start in shaving. Say! How the whiskers go down before your razor when BRISK paves the way.

Every stroke of the razor does a clean job. No need to go over and over the same spot and "butcher" your face to get a close shave.

Even the package that BRISK comes in is different. It's a flat, oval tin box for men only, convenient and businesslike to use. Let your face have just one taste of a BRISK mint julep shave. Get BRISK now at any good drug store or toilet goods counter—fifty cents.

BRISK has four brothers: ZEST, a refreshing after-shaving lotion; TRIM, a hair dressing in cleanly stick form; SMOOTH, a powder that kills shine without showing powder; STIP, a new type "stoptic" that closes cuts pronto!

MIRACLE GRAVE DRAWS 100,000 ON CLOSING DAY

Suffering Pilgrims Brave Cold to Seek Cure.

Dalton, Mass., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Freezing temperature and a leaden sky, together with a biting wind, today failed to daunt the unending line of pain stricken pilgrims seeking relief at the grave of the Rev. Patrick J. Cheever in Holy Cross cemetery here.

This was the last day of the pilgrimages. A rule which will close the cemetery to the afflicted until the church has had an opportunity to investigate the manifold stories of miraculous cures was to become effective at midnight. It was estimated that 100,000 persons have attended the grave during the last twenty-four hours.

Today there was a line of lame, blind and persons otherwise afflicted stretching torturously for more than three-quarters of a mile through the winding paths of the cemetery, the same sort of ghastly suffering at the grave's edge, the same frenzied snatching of damp earth to rub on sightless eyes and on crippled and withered limbs.

Stretchers and Wheel Chairs.

There were the usual number of ambulances and stretcher bearers, rolled forms on wheel chairs and tearful eyes staring out hopefully from the depths of blanket swaths; the usual scraping of canes and crutches and shuffling of crippled feet. Outside the cemetery gates 35 police officers, including two mounted men and two state troopers, maintained orderly lines. Members of the American legion in uniform assisted them outside. On the streets surrounding the cemetery, twenty traffic police were on duty.

DU PONT DE NEMOURS TO SPEND 25 MILLIONS IN BUILDING PROJECT

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Expressing confidence in the soundness of industrial conditions, the E. I. Du Pont De Nemours company announced today it would spend more than $25,000,000 on building projects within the next 12 months. Company officials stated that manufacturing activities showed evidences of exceptional expansion.

Of the amount involved, $16,000,000 will go to complete projects already under way, including rayon plants in the south, a celluophane plant at Old Hickory, Tenn., a plant for the Viscoloid company at Leominster, Mass., and expansions of Belle, W. Va., for the Du Pont Ammonia corporation.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 24.—[Special]—A $44,000,000 construction program for 1930 was announced today by the Bell Telephone company of Pennsylvania. Leonard H. Kinnard, the president, said $12,000,000 would be devoted to expansion of the company's facilities in this city.

"Not only does our new 1930 budget for the state exceed by $10,000,000 the earlier estimate for construction expenditure next year, but our plans call for a $215,000,000 telephone expansion program during the next five years," said Mr. Kinnard.

PARACHUTE DIPS SANTA IN RIVER; CHILDREN WATCH

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 24.—(AP)—The happiest children in America, today at least, reside here, for they have seen Santa Claus escape death or severe injury.

A local store advertised an airplane visit and parachute jump by Santa. Last evening thousands of children were gathered in Kirby park to see him arrive. His parachute opened, but cross winds carried him into the Susquehanna river. Mounted Policeman Joe Jones spurred his horse into the water and effected a rescue.

On thawing out, Santa Claus, alias John Ritterbaugh, of Pottstown, Pa., broadcast to the children that he certainly would arrive for Christmas, but on the usual sled drawn by trusted reindeer.

TELLS HOW GIANT WAVE TORE SHIP AND DROWNED 18

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 24.—(AP)—A description of a giant wave which wrenched off the pilot house and bridge of the small steamer Villa Hermosa off the coast of Tabasco on Nov. 16 was given today by a survivor. It was the first detailed account of the disaster involving 18 lives to be received here. Twenty-four other persons who abandoned the ship after the wave had hit it made shore safely.

The vessel was surprised by a sudden storm. A dozen panic stricken passengers were on the bridge and in the pilot house beseeching the captain to save them when the wave hit the ship with such force it carried away the whole superstructure with the passengers, captain and five seamen. Eighteen other passengers and six other members of the crew were flung to the deck.

WIFE SUING FOR DIVORCE IS SLAIN BY HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Josephine Braun, 37 years old, mother of two children, died yesterday morning in the Belmont hospital of wounds inflicted a few hours earlier by her estranged husband, Max Braun, 37 years old, a caterer, in their home at 5337 Montrose avenue.

Mrs. Braun, who had filed suit for divorce, charging cruelty, attended a party with her husband Saturday night at his urging, although she had obtained an injunction restraining him from entering their dwelling.

Following the party, Braun implored her to drop the divorce action, scheduled for a hearing on Wednesday. When she refused he stabbed her with a butcher knife and slashed his own throat. Braun is in a critical condition, according to surgeons at the Belmont hospital.

NEGRO KILLS WIFE IN HOME.

Mary Walker, colored, 40 years old, was beaten to death with a gin bottle yesterday by her husband, George Walker, also colored, in their home, 2830 South La Salle street.

PRISON FUGITIVE CAUGHT 5 YEARS AFTER ESCAPE

After five years of freedom, during which he patched at least one police station roof, Henry Etchingham, 40 years old, 2935 West Lake street, was captured yesterday by Lieut. Andrew Barry and his squad. Etchingham ran away from the Joliet honor farm in August, 1924, after having served 13 years of a 30 year sentence for the murder of a policeman.

An anonymous call informed the police that Etchingham was attending a party at the Lake street address. When the detectives appeared, Etchingham immediately came forward and surrendered.

"I got drunk and ran away from the farm before I knew what I was doing," he confessed. "I've been working hard ever since as a roofer. I patched the roof of the Shakespeare avenue station. No one ever suspected me and I can't guess who tipped me off."

ITALY INSISTS ON NAVAL PARITY IN NOTE TO FRANCE

Demands Put Paris in an Embarrassing Spot.

PARIS Nov. 24.—(AP)—Although the government today withheld publication of the Italian note for opening of naval negotiations with France, reliable information today indicated it makes clear Italy's insistence upon parity with France.

This insistence, it was pointed out, puts France in an embarrassing position, as seemingly all preliminary conversations with Italy depend on whether France will accept the principle of parity as the basis. A reply to the note is being prepared by the government.

THE PARITY DEBATE

This is a final of a series of three articles on Italy's struggle for naval parity with France and its bearing on the London five power conference to reduce and limit navies.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Nov. 24.—In the Mediterranean naval rivalry, Italy's claims to a parity in all classes of ships have been rejected hitherto by France on the grounds that French naval requirements were greater than Italy's, since France was both a Mediterranean and an Atlantic sea power. French naval strategy, this nation argues, therefore must consider operations in both the Atlantic and the Mediterranean.

The French position is that it is a greater colonial empire, which has 36,018 miles of communication lines connecting its colonies, while Italy has but 4,843 miles. France and its colonies have a coast line of 16,146 miles as compared to Italy's 4,968 miles.

Two Coast Lines to Defend.

"We cannot concentrate our fleet in the Mediterranean," say the French, "because we have our Atlantic coastline to defend as well, and must keep an eye on the ever developing German navy with its powerful Ersatz Preussen. Furthermore we have more colonies to defend than Italy and our black troops from Africa must be assured safe passage across the Mediterranean. On the other hand Italian naval strategy is concerned only with Mediterranean operations."

The Italian reply is that most of these arguments against a parity have no sound military basis and are only advanced to justify a vast naval program.

"It is true that a clash between ourselves and France would have the Mediterranean as the theater of operations," say the Italians, "but our naval strategy is also concerned with all seven seas, for we now have a merchant fleet of 2,500,000 tons, which we must protect, for we are dependent on supplies from all over the world and half our merchant fleet plies in seas beyond the Mediterranean.

Italy Meets French Argument.

"We import 20,000,000 tons of raw materials annually of wheat from Argentine, cotton from the United States, and oil from the Persian gulf. To reach Italy these materials must pass through accesses to the Mediterranean, which are held by other powers. On the other hand France is practically self-sufficient."

Therefore, Italians claim that the French arguments of longer communications do not hold because Italy's communications with neutral countries are equal to or greater than France's between its colonies. The Italians contend that the fleets are not used in any specific sense to protect the colonies, as shown by the last war, pointing to the example of the British colonies. The colonies, they say, are developing their own navies.

A divided coast argument is not applicable to the argument against parity, the Italians assert, because Italy could never blockade French Atlantic ports if parity was attained between the two powers, while, on the other hand, France could easily blockade Italian ports.

French Aided by Jugo-Slavia.

Jugo-Slavia's naval potentialities must also be considered in judging comparative naval strengths because the Slavs are allied with the French and the Dalmatian coast line makes bases for French submarine operations. The Jugo-Slav combination with France would upset a naval parity established solely on the basis of ships belonging to the two respective countries.

This sketch of the Mediterranean situation brings Italian naval experts to the following adamant formula: First, Italy's special maritime situation in a closed sea makes a full parity with France categoric; second, the criteria of naval relativity must be accompanied by the limitation of minor Mediterranean fleets, and, third, any discussion of systems of limitation and of comparison of naval armament is in vain if these two conditions are not first accepted.

FOSDICK FLAYS THEORIES WHICH RATIONALIZE SIN

New York, Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Present day individualism is a psychological cosmetic," under which sin, nastiness and filth are being paraded just as they were in the eighteenth century, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, himself a modernist in Biblical interpretation, asserted today in a sermon at Temple Beth-El.

"One of the most characteristic phenomena of our time is the way we rationalize sin," Dr. Fosdick said. "We take every day, garden varieties of nastiness and personal infidelity, dress them up in a new psychological phraseology, and say 'O, how modern!'

"St. Paul tells us that sin can disguise itself as an angel of light, but Paul never dreamed of our new psychological cosmetics, by means of which any sin from adultery up can walk abroad now as self expression, now as release from an inhibition, now as the new freedom, or now as overcoming a complex. Amid all this looseness, disguised in the paint and apparel of the new phraseology, we all of us need to hear a salutary and challenging summons—'pull yourselves together.'

"This is not by any means a reactionary appeal to old moral codes or taboos. It is primarily an appeal to a knowledge of history. The idea that this looseness is really modern is absurd to any one who knows history. One can find every item of it reduplicated in the eighteenth century."

HAS 3 HUSBANDS IN TEN MONTHS AND ALL LEGAL

Clarion, Ia., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Mrs. Al Aldrich of Rowan, near here, holds the record in this section of Iowa for rapid changes of husbands. She has had three in ten months, and all were legally acquired.

Her first husband, William H. Adams, a Des Moines attorney, died several months ago, and in March she was married to E. C. Nelson of Rowan. She divorced him this month, and last week disappeared from her home, only to return a few days later with a new spouse, Al Aldrich of Grinnell. Her three children are in the hands of juvenile authorities.

CHICAGO CENSUS CONFERENCE TO BE HELD DEC. 5

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Plans for securing the coöperation of the Chicago public and its civic business leaders in the taking of the decennial census in the Chicago district next April will be discussed at a conference in Chicago on Dec. 5, the census bureau announced today.

The Chicago meeting will be one of seventeen regional conferences to be held in the large cities of the country during the next six weeks to pave the way for the census takers. Although the supervisors for the Chicago district have not been announced yet, they are expected to be selected before the conference. These and representatives from the surrounding communities will be invited to attend.

Work to Start Soon.

"These conferences mark the first actual step in the huge task that confronts us," said W. M. Steuart, director of the census. "Immediately after they are completed active work will begin in each of the districts."

Some idea of the enormity of the census job was outlined by Mr. Steuart in a statement giving some figures about the statistics to be gathered.

It will be necessary, he said, to enumerate and to collect data for a population of more than 130,000,000, recording 20 to 30 items as to age, nativity, occupation, and so on; for more than 6,000,000 farms, 200,000 manufacturing establishments, 20,000 mining enterprises, and for approximately 2,500,000 establishments engaged in trade. The census, Mr. Steuart said, will include gathering answers to close to 20,000 different questions.

Approximately 100,000 enumerators will be required, each one to be paid on a per capita basis, their total salaries depending upon the population and number of farms in their districts. The average amount to be received by each will be $100.

More People and More Data.

Comparing the first census with that to be undertaken for 1930, Mr. Steuart pointed out that the 4,000,000 people who lived in the United States in 1790 occupied a territory of 868,000 square miles, there being 4.5 persons for each square mile of territory. The present area of the United States is 3,874,000 square miles and the average population per square mile in 1930 will be more than 40, nearly ten times the first average.

The first census recorded only the name of the head of the family and the number of persons in the family.

Machines to Aid Work.

"The first stage in the process of tabulating the population census is to transfer the information reported for each person to a punched card on which the position of the holes in each section of the card indicates the characteristics reported," the census director said. "The 120 million cards required for this purpose, stacked up in racks 7 feet high, will occupy more than a quarter of an acre of floor space.

"After the cards are punched they will be taken to the electric sorting machines and sorted by sex, color, and nativity. They will be run through the tabulating machines, which count numerous other items, such as age, place of birth, illiteracy, or occupation. These machines will count 60 items or combinations at the same time and print the results on large sheets, from which they will be taken off and rearranged for publication in the census reports."

Liberty will give $25,000 in Cash Prizes

The Three Presidents in Set No. 1 Are Among These

Four years ago, when the circulation of Liberty was less than half its present size, Liberty ran one of the most interesting and worthwhile features ever carried by a magazine. It was called the Patriotic Game of Presidents. Liberty now announces another Game of Presidents.

More than a million new families have been added to the roll of Liberty readers. Many children who were too young to enter this fascinating game before will want to try their skill now, and win one of the lavish cash prizes Liberty is offering.

THE PRIZES

First prize	$5,000	Next 680 prizes ($10 each)	$6,800
Second prize	1,000
Third prize	500	One hundred prizes to Teachers ($100 each)	10,000
Fourth prize	250
Fifth prize	200

Amusing and Instructive

The Patriotic Game of Presidents affords great entertainment for both young and old. As the circus barker says, it is "both amusing and instructive." The game is open to every one—boys, girls, men and women. Incidentally it teaches an outline of American history in the easiest and most enjoyable manner possible, at the same time offering great financial reward to those most adept at playing the game.

Liberty will give away cash prizes totalling $25,000 for the best answers. Every issue of Liberty for ten weeks will contain composite pictures of three presidents. All you have to do is to separate the composite heads, put them together again, identify the presidents and name the years of their administrations. Clues will be furnished to help you.

Where possible, different portraits will be used from those reproduced four years ago, and different combinations of heads will be grouped together.

Can you name the presidents?

Note the first set of pictures above. You can start with these. But you do not have to tear out this page. You may trace the pictures if you prefer. Pictures of the presidents are also reproduced in this week's issue of Liberty. See if you can put them together properly and name the presidents. Prizes will be awarded to the persons who send in nearest correctly named and neatest full sets of pictures.

Set No. 2 will be printed in next week's issue of Liberty—on sale next Friday. If you are a boy or girl in school, state the name of your school, the grade, and the name of your teacher when sending in answers.

Start at once. Remember to save all the pictures until you have ten sets. Then send them to Liberty.

RULES

1—Every week for ten weeks a set of Composite Pictures of Presidents of the United States will be printed in Liberty.

2—Each set of pictures, when cut apart and put together properly, will make complete portraits of American Presidents. The public is invited to assemble the pictures and send them in. Liberty will pay $25,000 in cash prizes to the persons who send in the nearest correctly named and neatest complete sets of pictures.

3—This contest is open to everybody—men, women, boys, and girls—except employees of Liberty and their families. It does not matter where you live.

4—The Composite Pictures may be cut out, assembled, and pasted or pinned together. Below each picture write the name of the President and the years of his administration. (Give only first and last year of administration. For example, Calvin Coolidge, 1923 to 1929.)

5—In all, thirty pictures will be printed—one of each President. Save them until you have the complete set of thirty. Then send them to Presidents, Liberty, Post Office Box 380, Grand Central Station, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write your name and address clearly on your entry. All pictures must be in by midnight, twenty-one days after Set No. 10 is published. We cannot undertake to return any entries.

6—Each entry should be sent by first-class mail—postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department. Contestants may send in as many sets as they wish, but no contestant shall be entitled to more than one prize.

7—Accuracy will count. Neatness will count. No elaborate treatments are necessary. Simplicity is best.

8—You need not purchase Liberty or cut out the pictures to compete. You may copy or trace the pictures from the originals and assemble the pictures from the copies you have made. Liberty may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

9—The Judges will be a committee appointed by Liberty. Their decision will be final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be given each tying contestant.

$10,000 GIVEN TO SCHOOL TEACHERS

One hundred prizes of $100 each will be paid to school teachers whose pupils make the best records in the Patriotic Game of Presidents. This offer is made in order to interest school teachers in using this unusual method of teaching American history.

School teachers: Get as many of your pupils as possible to participate in this instructive game. The offer is open to teachers in public, private and parochial schools. Win one of these generous cash prizes and at the same time help your school children to learn the names and faces of the presidents, and the years of their administrations.

We want especially to interest the children in this educational game. We hope they will consult with their parents and their teachers as to the identities of the presidents. When a child enters the contest he is advised to state the name of the school he attends, the name of his teacher, and the grade.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 24.—The Green Bay Packers, a lot of energetic ex-collegians, this afternoon licked the New York Giants in a violent football game at the Polo grounds and practically decided the national professional football championship. The score was 20 to 6.

VERNE LEWELLEN.

Neither team had been defeated in nine previous games, and the Giants had held four of their opponents to scoreless submission, although they were held to no score and tied in a game with the Orange, N. J., team at the beginning of the season.

While both teams have several games remaining, they do not meet each other again, and the Packers seem assured of the title

Packers Score Early.

Hooks McCrary, formerly of the University of Georgia, got the first touchdown in the first period. Bo Molenda, a huge athlete who used to cooperate with Benny Friedman at the University of Michigan, bent his efforts to thwart Benny, now playing quarter back for the Giants, and scored the second touchdown for his team.

Johnny Blood, formerly of Minnesota, got the third touchdown in a four yard plunge at the burly assembly in the Giants' forward line.

In the third period Friedman threw a pass to Plansky, an arching toss of about 25 yards, for a fifteen yard gain for the Giants' only touchdown. Plansky caught the ball over his shoulder in a manner reminiscent of Tris Speaker in the outfield in the days before the deterioration of his legs cut down his cruising radius, and made the touchdown without going to the soil.

Keeps Uniform Clean.

The Packers distinguished themselves for their concrete construction as much as for the suave surety of their play, for there was only one substitution in the course of a game largely devoted to headlong collisions. Just a minute before the end a figure detached itself from the shivering huddle on the Packers' bench and ran out to replace Bowdoin at right guard for the Packers.

This was a Mr. Mnick. His yellow shirt was so fresh and bright by contrast with the mucky, soggy clothing of his colleagues that he seemed quite fastidious and, fortunately, when the play rolled through with Blood churning the mass in his bolt for the last touchdown, the action took place on the other side of the line some distance from him. He did seem to have a slight smear on one knee when he

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.
[Big Ten records on page 27.]

Although games of championship importance will be played Thursday and Saturday the nation's leading elevens were determined in last Saturday's contests.

TIM MOYNIHAN.

Purdue, Notre Dame, and Pittsburgh are among the forerunners. In the south Tulane and Tennessee rule supreme, and in the southwest Texas Christian and Southern Methodist are leading. Nebraska is about the strongest in the Big Six, while California, Stanford, and Southern California are tied for honors in the Pacific Coast conference. Each has lost one conference game.

Purdue is undisputed champion of the Western conference and one of the undefeated elevens of the country. The team coached by Jimmy Phelan won its five conference struggles and is entitled to consideration for western and national laurels.

The Boilermakers played consistent football all season. They worked as a unit in every game, and there was splendid spirit among the players. Coach Phelan gave his eleven a diversified attack, in which the forwards coördinated perfectly with the ball carriers. The team was strong in every department. The players adapted themselves to conditions as they arose, and they were quick to take advantage of breaks or errors by opponents.

Purdue's accomplishment has met with the approval of virtually every one interested in Western conference football.

Costly Notre Dame Victory.

Illinois, champion of the conference in 1927 and 1928, was runner-up. Coach Zuppke's eleven won three conference games, lost to Northwestern, and was tied by Iowa. Northwestern and Minnesota tied for third place with three victories and two defeats. Iowa was next in line with two victories, two defeats, and as many ties. Other Big Ten elevens lost more games than they won. Last Saturday's contests closed the conference season.

Notre Dame, which has played a hard schedule, climbed another notch in its march to a national title by defeating Northwestern, 26 to 6. It was a costly victory, however, as Tim Moynihan, one of the best centers in the country, suffered a broken bone in his right ankle. This injury is bound to handicap the Rockne eleven for the struggle with Army in New York Saturday.

Moynihan's passes always were accurate. He was ever mindful to make sure of his passes before crashing through to take off the secondary defense. He frequently was down the field under punts and was a good tackler. He knew when to play his position in the line and when to pull out to help break up forward passes.

Notre Dame did not have to show an intricate attack to win from the Purple. For the most part, simple formations were called and the ball carriers drove so hard that ground was made on nearly every play. Northwestern appeared sluggish at times, and the players did not tackle as effectively as they did against Wisconsin, Ohio State, and Illinois. Northwestern, however, had a good season. If Hank Bruder had not been injured early in the season the Wildcats would have had an even more successful year.

Chicago Season Successful.

Although it lost three conference games, Chicago won two intersectional struggles. Princeton was beaten, 15 to 7, and Washington fell, 26 to 6. Chicago's only conference victim was Indiana, which succumbed, 13 to 7.

Detroit was knocked out of the undefeated class by Oregon Aggies, 14 to 7. The western eleven is coached by Paul Schissler, who learned his football at Nebraska and afterward coached at Lombard.

In the east, the Yale-Harvard game attracted major interest. The Crimson was victorious, 10 to 6, and Old Eli's hopes to be considered one of the strongest elevens in the east were shattered. Harvard stopped Albie Booth and flashed an attack which Yale was at a loss to stop. Previously

Bergherm Leads

RUSSELL BERGHERM, Northwestern's full back, has the honor of leading the Western conference in individual scoring during the 1929 season.

Bergherm in seven games scored 52 points. His closest rival was Art Pharmer, Minnesota half back, who scored 49 points. Glen Harmeson, Purdue half back, was third with 34 points.

New York Players Beat Chicagoans for Auction Title

The Knickerbocker Whist club of New York City yesterday won the Cleveland Whist club trophy for the national auction team of four championship after defeating the Chicago Auction Bridge club entries in a close holdover match.

Play to decide which team was the best at auction ended last night, although it was considered part of the American Bridge league tournament which closed Saturday night. The victory of the Knickerbocker players settled a friendly grudge between the respective clubs.

The trophy winners had no easy time winning the national championship. At the end of the 52 deal match, the teams splitting the deals, the result was a tie. A 12 deal playoff match between the Chicago and New York teams gave the latter a three-up victory and entitled them to the trophy.

The cup was offered by Maurice Maschke, Cleveland, an honorary member of the Cleveland Whist club, and was presented by him to the winners. These were P. H. Sims, Derrick Wherner, Commander Winfield Liggett and George Reith. The defeated Chicago team was composed of Robert Halpin, Max Cohen, L. A. Haddad and E. J. Tobin.

CHICAGOAN HURT IN HARVARD GAME GOES UNDER KNIFE

Boston, Mass., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Victor M. Harding of Hubbard Woods, Ill., Harvard's substitute end who was injured in the game against Yale yesterday while winning his first football "H," lay in a critical condition at the Stillman infirmary here today after an emergency operation had been performed at midnight to save his life.

In the third quarter Harding received a bad blow just below the stomach and was taken from the game suffering severe pain. In the evening his injury was diagnosed as rupture of the spleen, an organ on the left side connected with the blood system.

Dr. Thomas Richards, the team's physician, was called from a theater party celebrating Harvard's victory and he and Dr. Irving Walker operated. A blood transfusion was given Harding early this morning after removal of the spleen.

This afternoon Dr. Richards said that Harding was in a critical condition but he believed he would recover.

The youth's mother was at his bedside, having come to Cambridge to see him play against Yale.

De Paul Wins 2d Straight Title, 12 to 6

For the second consecutive year De Paul academy is the champion of the Catholic league. It also was the second year the north siders defeated De La Salle. The score was 12 to 6.

Playing before nearly 10,000 chilled spectators, Coach Wally McGovern's eleven rose to the occasion of defeating a team that was rated a 2 to 1 favorite by the dopesters, who calculated the powerful De La Salle forward wall and its equally strong back field would mow down the lighter De Paul squad.

Excepting the second half, when De La Salle rang up six of its eight first downs, De Paul's line battled the south side forwards to a standstill.

Huppert scored both De Paul touchdowns, the first after a run of 45 yards. Capt. Ed Krause planted the oval behind De Paul's goal on a tackle around play.

De Paul's passes started clicking in the first three minutes of play. McWilliams whipped the ball to Capt. Huppert on the 45 yard line and, with Vin Flood at his side, Huppert raced down the field. McWilliams' kick was wide.

De Paul scored again in the second quarter after McWilliams intercepted Hayes' pass on De La Salle's 32 yard mark. He passed to Ned Kemp, who ran to De La Salle's 8 yard stripe before he was stopped. Kemp smashed off tackle for two yards. McWilliams made four, and on the next play plunged through center for what appeared to be a touchdown. De Paul was offside, however, and set back to the 7 yard line. Kemp took a turn at passing and tossed to Huppert, who had but a yard to go. McWilliams' kick was low.

De La Salle's marker came in the fourth quarter. Furlong, Cassidy, Hayes, and Herron carried the ball to De Paul's 8 yard line. De Paul's line stopped the first three attempts, but Capt. Krause finally drove through center to score. He failed to kick goal. Lineup:

The Chicago Cardinals took their responsibilities lightly yesterday afternoon and defeated the Dayton Triangles, 19 to 0, at Comiskey park. If they had been serious about the game it was apparent they might have run the score higher. A few hundred faithful braved the chilly winds to watch and took the game less seriously even than the players. A few organized a cheering section in the sparsely settled stands to root for the hopelessly outclassed Triangles, who have not won a game this year.

Singleton, former Wabash player who performs without a headgear, was the only threat Dayton had. It was his punting, passing, and tackling that several times made the contest look like a competition. In the fourth quarter, standing on his own 13 yard line, he punted over the Cardinal goal line. The ball landed on about the 30 yard line, and bounced the rest of the distance.

Dayton Pass Intercepted.

Dayton gave evidence of strength in the first few minutes of play when they marched down the field to the ten yard mark. But Larsen intercepted a pass, and on the next play Nevers ran around right end to the 21 yard line. From there the Cards worked the ball to the Dayton 33 yard line. Hill then swung around right end for a 20 yard gain. Four more plays put the oval across the goal, Nevers taking the last three yard responsibility. He missed his attempt from placement.

In the second quarter a gain of 35 yards from midfield on a pass, Nevers to Kassel, showed the way to another touchdown. After a penalty for holding, the Cards lost the ball temporarily on downs. But a moment later Nevers had grabbed Singelton's pass on the 37 yard line to renew the march. Hill, Butts and Nevers ran the ball in successive plays to the three yard line from which Nevers pushed it across. His attempted dropkick struck the piled up players in the line.

Nevers Scores Again.

Nevers also scored the third touchdown in the third quarter after Hogue recovered a Dayton fumble on the enemy 28 yard line. Butts, Rose, and Nevers carried the ball within inches of the goal, and Ernie, toppled across for the counter. His placement, with Rose holding, sailed between the cross bars.

Elmer Wynne and Johnny Niemiec, former Notre Dame stars, did not play with the Triangles. Manager F. M. Redelle said that Wynne was on the bench with injuries, and Niemiec jumped the team three weeks ago to profit from the purported extravagant salaries of the Ashland, Ky., team.

N. U. Coach Rates Notre Dame Best He's Ever Seen

DICK HANLEY.

"Notre Dame is the best football team I've ever seen, and I've seen some good ones."

That was the comment which Coach Hanley of Northwestern made yesterday on the team which defeated his Wildcats Saturday, 26 to 6.

He also had a great deal of praise for his own players, saying that they were a game bunch of kids who faced a hard schedule and preserved their morale in spite of several highly inopportune injuries.

"We reached our peak in the Illinois game and held this momentum through the Ohio State engagement. Thereafter our strength was insufficient and we were unable to do justice to ourselves."

Army Forms Final Barrier for Notre Dame

The Irish are favorites because of their record of eight straight victories, but past scores mean nothing when these two clubs get together.

Both teams played against rather easy competition Saturday and will be able to start strong battle fronts this week. Notre Dame will miss Tim Moynihan, varsity pivot man, but it is believed that Joe Nash and Tom Yarr, reserve centers, will be able to carry on in his place satisfactorily.

Since Rockne started coaching at Notre Dame his teams have won eight games, lost two, and tied one in its series with the Army, a string broken only in 1918 by the world war.

The probability of a post season game between Notre Dame and Pittsburgh, in event they win their remaining games, for the national title is small. It also is doubtful if Notre Dame will appear at the Tournament of Roses. Definite action, however, awaits an official invitation. Authorities state Notre Dame is making no attempt to invite itself to the New Year's game.

The 1,000 tickets available for the annual football banquet Dec. 4 have been sold, according to Bernard Voll, chairman of the affair.

Thirteen prominent sports figures will speak. They include Gov. Harry G. Leslie of Indiana; Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics in the Big Ten; Judge Walter P. Steffen of Carnegie Tech; Pat Page of Indiana; William Ingram of the Navy; Jimmy Phelan of Purdue; George Ade, famous humorist; Capt. Biff Jones of West Point; Ossie Solem of Drake, and Harvey T. Woodruff of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Warren Brown will be toastmaster.

LES CANADIENS BEAT AMERICANS IN OVERTIME, 3-2

New York, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Montreal's speedy Canadiens fought an uphill battle tonight to defeat the downtrodden but still strong New York Americans, 3 to 2, in an overtime National Hockey league game. It was New York's third straight defeat.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

If the Chicago hockey fans were to order a game played to their liking they couldn't do much better than use last night's contest at the Coliseum as a basis for the specifications. The Blackhawks won, 4 to 0, as the home team should. Their play was fast, brilliant and thrills were plentiful. They outplayed Detroit throughout, but suspense wasn't lacking for, until near the end the Cougars were within easy striking distance. The Hawks finished with a flashing burst of speed in the final minutes that shoved enough goals into the net to make the victory emphatic and leave the 6,000 spectators shrieking their joy.

ART SOMERS.

You can tell how fast and furiously the Hawks skated, passed, and shot by the stops of the rival goal tenders. Chuck Gardiner, the Hawks goalie, had to stop only twenty shots during the evening, of which only one really required any brilliancy. Meanwhile, the Hawks fired sixty at Dolly Dolson, of which he stopped 56.

Dolson Stops 56.

The game was as rough as hockey gets without being slowed up by many penalties. While there was a bit more whistle blowing than in the opening game, it wasn't oppressive. Incidentally it was the first time in the 22 games played this year any team has failed to score a tribute to the Hawk defense and back checking.

Perhaps the reputation of the Cougars' defense men of "putting the fear" into opponents in the first minutes had something to do with the result, for the lighter Hawks gave as good as they got. Two Cougars found their headlong drives so effectively body checked by Hawks in the first few minutes they lay on the ice and needed assistance to get back to the players' box.

The first passage at arms came when Harvey Rockburn mixed with Johnny Gottselig in the first minutes. It was a straight legal body check but Rockburn hit the ice so hard he didn't get up and didn't get back into the game until the second period. A bit later Bouncer Taylor blocked Ebbie

Lipton Invited to Attend Yacht Club Ceremony

Sir Thomas Lipton has been invited to attend the groundbreaking ceremonies of the Chicago Yacht club at the foot of Monroe street on Saturday afternoon. He is in New York. Sir Thomas will be the guest of Sheldon Clark, chairman of the C. A. A. athletic committee and a member of the crew which has sailed Lipton's yachts in international competition. George Getz, chairman of the committee in charge of the ceremonies, announced that Lipton will be the chief speaker if he attends the ceremonies.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

Ground will be broken for the clubhouse shortly after noon on Saturday. The dirt will be brought to the surface of the water by an anchor raised by a steam shovel. Piling will be driven at once so that it may settle before work on the construction of the building starts in March.

Chicagoans Score First Shutout, 4-0.

Goodfellow as the Cougar charged in with the puck and dumped him over his shoulder to the ice. He, too, had to be helped back to the bench.

Art Somers Stars.

The game made more certain the Hawks have uncovered a star in Art Somers, the handsome lad who played with Vancouver last year. He scored three goals in his first Chicago appearance against Ottawa in the Hawks' first home game, and last night he got no goals and only one assist. Yet he was a bundle of dynamite last night. Furthermore, when the going got toughest, after he had a cocoon of cotton and tape on his forehead, he went better than ever.

It wouldn't be fair to forget, however, Ty Arbour, Mush Marsh and Vic Ripley, who teamed beautifully in one forward line, nor Lola Couture and Johnny Gottselig, who several times gave exhibitions of an eel on skates. But Duke Dutkowski stood out because he seemed an answer to the Hawks' prayer for another powerful defense man like Taffy Abel.

The Hawks got away to a one goal lead late in the first period, after bombarding Dolson futilely for 16 minutes, but didn't get another until well into the third session. That first one came from the stick of Earl Miller, who swept the puck out of a scramble afound the Cougars' goal to beat Dolson with a short shot.

Neither team counted in the second period, which was the most even of the three in chances to score, though the Hawks kept the play inside the Cougars' blue line most of the time. Once Gardiner had to make a dazzling stop of Goodfellow's angle shot to keep the Cougars from evening the score.

Score Three More Goals.

Then came the third period and the Hawk's final reward for the shots they had missed in the earlier periods. Couture and Gottselig missed easy shots, but the Hawks scored after the period was five minutes old with the most brilliant offensive play of the night. "Mush" Marsh took the puck down the right side of the ice to just inside the Cougar's blue line. He passed across the rink to Arbour near the boards on the other side, who whipped it back to Ripley in the center. With the defense drawn to Mush and Arbour, Ripley got himself nicely set and whipped a high corner shot past Dolson.

Five minutes later Dutkowski, who had started the sally that brought the first goal, got one all by himself. There was a scramble around the Hawks goal and a long pass shot down the ice to Brophy, of the Cougars defense, just back of his own line. He was a bit slow in starting and Dutkowski bore down on him, poke checked the puck from Brophy and continued on with hardly a pause to score unassisted from close in.

That was plenty, as the cheers of the fans testified, but a minute later the Hawks teamed again. Somers started the attack and when nicely inside the Cougars blue line, shot a perfect pass to Johnny Gottselig, who in turn made a perfect short angle shot into the Detroit net.

Dempsey Enters Ring Again, but Just for Exercise

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Jack Dempsey, in planning his all-heavyweight boxing show for tomorrow night, naturally has been giving a lot of thought to heavyweights. And yesterday the matter got so much on his mind that he decided he'd like to see one of the greatest heavyweights of all time box four rounds.

So Mr. Dempsey dug his tights out of the filing cabinet and dashed over to Kid Howard's gymnasium, where he donned the tights and other boxing regalia and boxed four rounds, taking on two gymnasium employés as his sparring partners.

JACK DEMPSEY.

The exhibition, quite unheralded, was said to be apropos of nothing in particular except that Jack wanted to test himself. He even refrained from announcing between rounds that Les Marriner and George Hoffman and a galaxy of other heavyweights will appear at his Coliseum show tomorrow night.

Mr. Dempsey's literary agents were not so reticent, however, and had much to announce relative to the performance, which is to be a Christmas benefit affair. It was pointed out, for instance, that Marriner, who formerly was a University of Illinois football player, has scored 17 knockouts in his last 20 fights and expects to change the ratio to 18 out of 21 when he gets in the ring with Hoffman. Many nice things also are said about Hoffman, who formerly was a National A. A. U. champion.

All the steers, hosses and cowboys were moved out of the Stadium last night and the place otherwise has quieted down to the point where it was felt that a week could be given to artistic concentration on steaming up the Uzcudun-Griffith fight which will be held at the Stadium next Friday night.

Paulino has been established as a 4 to 5 favorite, owing to his more extensive record with the big shots of his profession and a 15 pound weight advantage.

Tuffy and Paulino each boxed six rounds yesterday and expect to perform again today and tomorrow—Tuffy at Kid Howard's and Paulino at Barry's.

Shea, Peleco Top White City Bouts Tonight

Eddie Shea of Chicago and Babe Peleco of Newark, N. J., two punchers of note, will meet in the windup of Promoter James C. Mullen's boxing show at the White City area tonight. They are down for eight rounds to a decision at 128 pounds.

Peleco is recognized as one of the leading 126 pounders in the east. In his last start he flattened Herman Silverberg in five rounds at Indianapolis. A week before Silverberg marked Shea so that Eddie had to cancel his engagement with Chick Suggs. The easterner carries a wallop in his right hand. He uses his left to score points.

Shea, to be considered a contender for featherweight honors, must win tonight. He is second on the list, according to the National Boxing association. She has worked hard for this fight because he realizes he will meet one of the most dangerous boxers in his division. Both are under weight.

Mike Dundee of Rock Island, who stopped Chick Suggs in two rounds last week, and Eddie Anderson of Moline, Ill., will be the principals in the eight round semi-windup.

Johnny Burns, San Francisco light heavyweight, and Joe Packo of Toledo, O., will meet in one of the eight round preliminaries and Harry Fierro of Chicago and Jackie Stewart of South Chicago in another. The other fights on the card will bring together Edgar Norman of Norway and Jack Perdue of Chicago and Pop Justo of Chicago and Billy Taylor of Scotland. The fights start at 8:15 o'clock.

Trio of Teams Stands Out on Unbeaten List

Yale had been whipped by Georgia and was tied by Maryland. Harvard was defeated by Dartmouth, 34 to 7, and by Michigan, 14 to 12. The Crimson and Army played to a 20 to 20 tie.

Stanford Comes Back.

On the Pacific coast, defeat of California by Stanford, 21 to 6, was not entirely unexpected. Coach Warner is noted for bringing his teams back after defeats. Earlier in the season the Cardinal was beaten by Southern California, 7 to 0, and then fell before Santa Clara, 13 to 7, after its victory over Stanford, Southern California was defeated by California, 15 to 7. These results indicated the Golden Bears were headed for the title, but Warner made his players forget defeats with the result his team upset California and went into a triple tie for the coast conference title.

If Nebraska wins from Iowa State at Lincoln Thursday, the Cornhuskers will claim the title of the Big Six, composed of members of the old Missouri Valley conference. Nebraska defeated Kansas Aggies last Saturday, 10 to 6. Nebraska has been held to tie scores by Southern Methodist, Missouri and Oklahoma. Pittsburgh defeated the Cornhuskers, 12 to 7.

South Leaders Do Not Meet.

Undisputed champions of the south probably will not be determined. On Thursday Tennessee and Tulane, unbeaten in the southern conference, have comparatively easy opponents. Tennessee will meet Kentucky at Lexington and Tulane will clash with Louisiana State at Baton Rouge. Tulane and Tennessee will not meet this year. Tennessee will not close its season until Dec. 7 when Southern California will be met at Lexington.

Ultra-Violet Ray Treatment Under The Mercury Quartz Lamp, $1.50

This ULTRA-VIOLET RAY TREATMENT, however, is only a part of our COMPLETE SCIENTIFIC TREATMENT. For cases of "oily hair" it is sometimes used by itself.

For dry, tight scalps, brittle, falling hair, itching or baldness, the ULTRA-VIOLET RAY treatment is followed by vibratory and hand massages to loosen the scalp and increase the circulation; by the gentle application of high-frequency current to clear and tone the muscles and tissues; and whatever is required of ointments, or stimulating and nourishing medicants. These are applied to the scalp (not the hair) and gently warmed into it by rays from the Infra-Red Lamp.

THIS COMPLETE SCIENTIFIC TREATMENT attacks the disorders of the scalp from every angle, and leaves it all aglow with increased circulation, soft, pliable, free from dryness and tightness, and with a wonderful feeling of increased vitality. This complete treatment, INCLUDING ULTRA-VIOLET RAY, is.. $3.00

"You betcha I SPIT on cigars!"

Don't run the risk of the spit-tipped cigars he makes.

Smoke Cremo—it's certified sanitary.

Certified For Your Protection by Alfred W. McCann,
D. Litt. A.B., LL.D.

Noted pure food expert, long active in crusades for pure foods and sanitary factories.

"Most diseases enter the body through the mouth... but I emphatically say that no smoker of Cremo ever runs this risk. Because the method of manufacture aims to give Cremo the same standard of purity that pasteurization gives to milk."

"I certify Cremo sanitary and clean" Alfred W. McCann

How often have you been disgusted with the filthy, germ-breeding places where some cigars are made... dark, stuffy factories... warm, dingy shops and windows... where cigars are rolled by careless, dirty lips and fingers and where the ends of the cigars are spit on!

What a far cry this is from the modern method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

Price alone doesn't make a cigar safe for your mouth. At any price there can be no tastier cigar than Certified Cremo... and, in addition, it's clean.

Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by United States Government approved methods. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the danger of spit. Over $7,000,000 was spent in perfecting the method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

A suggestion, deliberately made with confidence to smokers of imported cigars: Try a Certified Cremo—made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords; all ripe and mellow. Each leaf goes through a slow, expensive maturing process that develops the fullest flavor and mildness. You never realized how good Certified Cremo is—don't let its 5 cent price stand in your way. Your physician will recommend a mild cigar in place of heavy, expensive brands. There isn't a bit of scrap in Certified Cremo... not a trace of floor sweepings. All long filler... all fresh, tender leaves... and topped off with the finest imported wrapper! Crush-proof... immaculate... foil-wrapped... Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly had in mind when he said: "What this country needs most is a good 5-cent cigar."

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Buffalo won its first game of the season by defeating the Chicago Bears yesterday at Wrigley field, 19 to 7. Seven defeats and one tie game was Buffalo's record until yesterday, and by the victory the Bisons abdicated the cellar throne of the pro league in favor of Dayton.

The football game was an exhibit of basketball, both teams using passes rather than plunging and running over the frozen gridiron. Measured by yardage, which never has won a game, the Bears were superior. They brought the ball down the field to the Buffalo one yard line in the second quarter in basketball style and then Red Grange hit inside tackle for the touchdown. Joie Sternaman's kick made it 7 to 0.

Ryan Scores from Kickoff.

Buffalo tied the count on the kickoff. Cassy Ryan received on his 15 yard line, fumbled and recovered on the first bounce. He sprinted down center, found an opening, and kept on to complete his 85 yard dash. Chuck Welmer place kicked the tying point.

The score remained at seven each until the final period. The Bears stuck to their passing but fumbles squandered their possible touchdowns.

In the third quarter Walquist plunged for a first down on Buffalo's 13 yard line only to permit the ball to slide from his numbed fingers when tackled and Buffalo recovered.

It was Walquist's misfortune to fumble again at the start of the fourth period on another plunge two yards from a touchdown. Again Buffalo recovered. Driscoll joined him a bit later when he dropped a pass a few yards out from the goal line. And thus it went.

Welmer Kicks 2 Field Goals.

In the meantime Buffalo showed no offense. Having nope themselves they adopted the Bears' and in ten minutes scored 12 points, all traceable to fumbles and intercepted Bear passes.

This same Welmer capitalized the Bears' loose handling of the ball by kicking two goals from the field. His first effort was booted from the 28 yard mark, a distance of 38 yards, and the next traveled 40 yards to clear the bar. Both opportunities were presented by the Bears, one on a fumble and other on an intercepted pass.

Then, to assure victory, Swede Hagberg intercepted another pass and carried the ball to the Bears' two yard line. On the second plunge Mahan crossed the line. Welmer's kick for the point cleared the north wall, but was wide.

It may have been the Bears' backs had their fumbling increased because they played Saturday down in sunny Tennessee, where they won from Memphis.

Cunningham and Fleckenstein were exceptions to the general rule on fumbling. It was their pass receiving that provided the Bears with their largest gains. Walt Holmer did most of the pitching for the basketball attack.

Just a Dog's Life, It Seems, at Dog Show

It's a boresome business, this competing for cups and prizes on the basis of blue blood, if the attitude of most of the pedigreed canines at the 131st armory yesterday is any indication. Doggy indifference to points and the portentous tabs of colored ribbons was registered from stall after stall at the nineteenth annual show of the Western Specialty Clubs association.

Owners, breeders, trainers, and just plain dog fanciers, however, more than made up for the lack of interest exhibited by the dogs themselves. Spectators were ranged three and four deep about the judging rings, where different breeds were being judged simultaneously. Popular victories were enthusiastically acclaimed as the winners trotted, all unaware, back to their benches.

Thirteen different breeds, representing the class of dogdom in this and foreign countries, occupied stalls at the show. They included bulldogs, collies, Doberman pinschers, Irish terriers, Airedale terriers, Boston terriers, French bulldogs, pointers, English setters, Gordon setters, Irish setters, and smooth and wire haired fox terriers.

The last breed, the fox terriers, proved the major attraction of the event, both in point of entries and of onlookers. Among the alert and frisky competitors that paraded the prize ring were the Champions Wire Sensation, Newmarket Brandy-Snap of Welwire, Holmbury Reverie of Welwire, Confident of Courtwood and Coronach of Caree Canterbury, the last named the property of Dr. and Mrs. L. A. Wehrheim of Chicago, entered for exhibition only. Each of the champions is valued at between $5,000 and $10,000.

Lewis G. Spence of Dallas, Tex., who judged the fox terriers, recently acquired one of the breed for which he paid $6,000. The dog was present at the show but did not compete.

International Champion Racket's Rummey, owned by W. F. Austin of Detroit, lent his reputation and his presence to the English setters' competition. International Champion Claus von Sigalsburg, belonging to E. J. Robinson of Milwaukee, came down to contest with the Doberman pinschers entered for special prizes.

DELAVAN, 6; GENEVA, 0.

Packers Beat Giants, 20-6, to Keep Lead

left the grounds at the close but still he stood out among them like a yellow crocodile.

Lewellen Outpunts Plansky.

Verne Lewellen, a lawyer alumnus of the University of Nebraska, punting for the Packers, soon amassed such an advantage over Plansky of the Giants in the first quarter that presently the Packers took a punt on the Giants' 33 yard line. Molenda and Blood bumped their way along and Lewellen threw a pass to Nash for a first down at the 20 yard line. Molenda got a first down at the ten yard line in two more bucks and carried it to the four yard line in two more. Lewellen then tossed a flat pass to McCrary for the touchdown. Molenda kicked goal.

The Giants started the second half with great spirit and ran the ball 63 yards to a touchdown, covering 53 yards of the way in three passes, including Friedman's throw to Plansky for the touchdown. The Packers lost five yards for offside play in the course of this push, so the Giants apparently gained only five yards of the distance by jostling and other vulgar forms of play. The try for extra point failed and the Packers led, 7 to 6.

In the fourth period, the Packers went 85 yards to score. To get under way, a pass from Lewellen to McCrary and another one vice versa gained 27 yards. Then Molenda and Blood started pushing and the Giants bent back almost 30 yards to their goal without coming to a stand.

The last one was pushed over by power plays from the Giants' 40 yard line where Earpe, Packers' center, intercepted a pass.

EXPORT TRADE IS BIG FACTOR IN WHEAT MARKET

Says Foreign Buying Will Dominate Prices.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

"The volume of export business will prove the dominating market factor for some time to come," says L. L. Winters of Hulburd, Warren & Chandler. "On breaks, we think it reasonable to assume that Europe will buy liberal quantities of wheat, but when the market advances, we think it equally reasonable to assume that Europe will cease buying until another break occurs. For the time being, we can see nothing more than trading fluctuations within a comparatively narrow range."

Foreigners are watching the Argentine and Australian crop situation as well as the action of North American wheat markets, with unusual interest. They are the shrewdest buyers in the grain trade, and usually the best posted.

Future of Prices.

Should they become panicky over prospects of securing supplies for the next six months and buy their requirements all at once, an excited bull market might develop, with prices advanced to materially higher levels and maintained for an indefinite period.

The whole situation as regards future prices depends upon the foreigner, the outcome of the southern hemisphere crop, and weather conditions in the winter wheat sections of the United States. Present unusually low temperatures in the southwest and other states of largest production are creating apprehension as to possible severe injury from freezing especially the late planted grain.

Available Supplies Large.

There was 495,000,000 bu of wheat in the available supply in United States and Canada on Nov. 1 as given by the Daily Trade Bulletin. A year ago supplies were 359,000,000 bu, making present stocks 136,000,000 bu in excess of that period. Export purchases that last week were believed to be larger and the outward movement of the grain would have the effect of creating more confidence amongst holders. Although sentiment at the close of the week was fairly two sided, bullishness predominated, and as one trader put it, a short seller might possibly get a decline of 5c while the buyer who takes hold around present prices has an opportunity to secure an advance of 30c or more, all depending upon developments in the Argentine.

The eastern interests have been active on the buying side on all breaks, and on the bulges they have satisfied buyers by liberal sales. Apparently they are trying to keep the market active and at the same time prevent its running away, until later in the season when supplies have been greatly reduced. In other words, there is the basis for making a good bull market and many traders expressed the belief at the close that it had already started.

Prices are up over 14c from the recent low point with the close Saturday 3⅜@4c above a week ago. December finished at $1.24⅝@1.24¼, March $1.31⅛@1.31⅝, and May $1.35⅝@1.35⅛.

Corn Movement Has Started.

Cold weather has started wha promises to be a liberal movement o corn from the country, as indicate by reports to receiving houses on th Chicago market. Cash prices have declined sharply, there being a break of around 4c on Saturday. Further declines, it is believed, would bring a good absorption from industries and various consumers. A most important factor in the corn situation is the shortage of storage and inability of elevator interests to operate their corn driers at capacity because of the crowded condition of their warehouses. In case there are large profits in buying low grade corn and drying it, it is believed that the elevator people may find a way of handling it.

Speculative interest is largely local, the market meeting sales on bulges and running into buying on declines. The finish was at net losses of ⅛@1¼c lower than a week ago, despite the advance in wheat.

LARD A BUYERS' MARKET

Lard is considered a buyers' market by one of the leading packers and warehousemen. There is good export and domestic demand and a liberal supply of hogs. Export clearances are heavy, yet tired speculators are unloading their December and taking the deferred futures, while packers and exporters are buying December and selling January and May. Futures had a narrow range and closed unchanged to 7½c lower, the latter on December.

Bellies were offered with less freedom and finished 27½@30c higher, with limited trading. Hogs were higher than a week ago and a good run of receipts is expected. Prices follow:

it's the 'ammer 'ammer 'ammer on the 'ard 'ighway"

From merry old England came this rollicking refrain . . . a generation ago. But it might have been written yesterday . . . to describe the hammer-hammer-hammer of noisy typewriters . . . and their effect on office work.

For it's the constant repetition of tiny blows upon the human ear that hurts nerves, hampers thinking, burns up energy!

The clackety-clack of hammer-blow typing . . . nerve-specialists say . . . is the most devastating noise in modern business! It steals 15% from typists' efficiency. It slows down arduous mental work twice as much! But it takes its worst toll after office doors are locked . . . sending tired nerves, jaded minds, irritable tempers . . . home from work!

There's no 'ammer-'ammer in the silken, silent action of Noiseless Typewriters. They cut out noise . . . at its source.

There's another story in the silent mechanism of this modern typewriter . . . a story of mechanical efficiency. For where noise is cut out . . . wear and tear are cut down! Repairs are fewer. Typewriter life is increased. An investment in Noiseless Typewriters pays dividends a dozen ways.

INSULL SCORES 'BUGABOOS' IN RADIO ADDRESS

Favors Regulation of Utilities.

Samuel Insull stated last night in an address to a nation-wide audience of radio listeners that he is no enemy of government regulation of the utility industry but sees in such control the logical complement of private ownership and operation.

Speaking during the Collier hour through the National Broadcasting system, Mr. Insull cited previous public utterances of his to prove that he has always advocated such control.

"Long before necessity compelled the industry to accept government regulation, I was for it," he asserted. "I was a consistent and persistent advocate of both the right and the duty of the state to regulate the quality and the rates of service and to control the capitalization of public utilities.

Is Logical Complement.

"Government regulation is the logical complement of private ownership and operation; it is essential to the welfare of the three parties in interest —users, employés and owners. But government regulation can be either expansive or restrictive.

"By 'expansive' I mean such laws and administration of the law as will tend to the establishment of confidence among the three parties in interest; regulation which will convince users that the service is reliable, the rates reasonable; which will convince employés that their employment will be continuous, their wages good, their working conditions favorable; which will assure owners that their investments will be sound and the return fair and dependable."

Mr. Insull defined "restrictive" regulation as those that tend to spread distrust among the three parties. Such laws, he said, are predicated on the theory that the entire utility business is founded on "special privilege" when as a matter of fact "its basis is one of obligations."

Criticism Is Inevitable.

Mr. Insull admitted that because of the rapid growth of the utility industry it is inevitable and perhaps advisable that some persons should advocate restrictive measures. He compared the opposition of such persons with that of the devil's advocate which is appointed by the Roman Catholic hierarchy, as a public critic, to oppose the canonization of a saint.

"The trouble is," he said, "there are in every country those who are peculiarly suited, for various reasons or disposition, to be volunteer devil's advocates; whose especial business seems to be to set up bugaboos or straw men to arouse public resentment.

"One of the bugaboos in the utility business is the 'power trust.' Of course, no such thing exists and, unless complete ownership of power production and distribution is brought about, none can exist."

Advocates State Control.

The claim that utilities are always seeking higher rates is another one of the bugaboos, Mr. Insull asserted. His answer to the claim was: "Every utility executive who is worth his salt is bending every energy toward lower rates, because lower rates mean greater consumption, and greater consumption is our hope of progress."

To the charge that "watered capital" is used as a basis for higher rates, Mr. Insull said: "Every school boy ought to know that there is no connection between capitalization and rates. Rates are based upon 'the fair value of the property used and useful in the service.'"

Between state and federal control, Mr. Insull chose the present system of state regulation.

"The law in regard to state control is becoming settled. Generally speaking, the utility business is a local business. The convenience of all concerned is best served by state control. Confusion and conflicts of jurisdiction will be avoided by maintaining the status quo.

"I believe that adherence to an expansive policy of state control will enable the industry to encourage invention, foster improved methods, and promote economies in production which will maintain a continuing downward trend in rates, and thereby make available the benefits of the utility services to the most remote in distance and the poorest in purse throughout the land."

SCRAMBLE TO BUY U. S. GOV'T ISSUES; PRICES AT PEAK

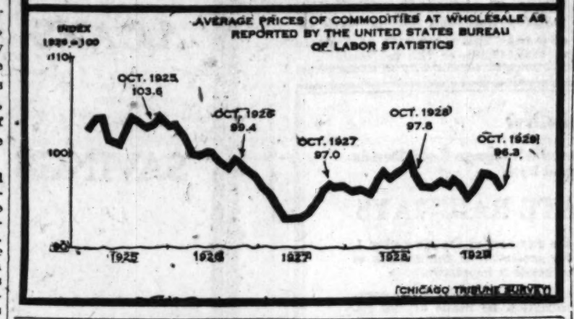
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 24.—The scramble to buy United States government bonds last week resulted in a general buying movement which carried virtually every active issue in this group, with the exception of the Liberty 3½s, to new highs for the year. The history of the market last week was one daily succession of new highs, although only a small percentage of the actual buying was done on the stock exchange.

Over the counter dealers reported many orders of $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 chiefly from corporations unable to find lucrative employment for surplus funds in the call money market. The bonds are being taken out of the market to build up reserves, and with the end of the year close at hand it is expected that the 1929 annual statements will probably show corporations holding much larger amounts of government issues than at any time in recent years.

Cognizance should be taken, however, of the fact that the floating supply of Liberty bonds has been greatly lessened through the sinking fund operations of the United States treasury.

WHOLESALE PRICES OF COMMODITIES ARE NOT INFLATED



RADIO INDUSTRY IS ENTRENCHED FOR THE FUTURE

In spite of disturbances on the stock market, the radio industry promises to establish a satisfactory record for the current year and to have well entrenched itself for the future, according to the Index, published by the New York Trust company.

Sales for 1929 as estimated at the beginning of the last quarter year range between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 sets, conservatively valued at $650,000,000, as compared with last year's sales of 2,500,000 sets, valued at $306,000,000, the review states. Due to the stock market slump, however, these estimates may be subject to some revision downward.

"Radio manufacturing has remained intensely competitive and has continuously faced the danger of overproduction, a condition particularly acute at the beginning of 1929. For the time being it has been mitigated by expansion in the market and development of the screen grid tube. As a more permanent method of avoiding excess output, the industry has adopted a policy of consolidations, gradually eliminating some of the numerous small companies."

Moon Motor Car Acquires Ruxton Auto Properties

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 24.—The Moon Motor Car company of St. Louis has acquired the Ruxton front drive automobile developed by New Era Motors, Inc., it was announced today on behalf of C. W. Burst, president of the Moon concern and of the Windsor corporation. The transaction also involves acquisition through exchange of stock of all plant equipment of New Era Motors. RAISE COLGATE PALMOLIVE CO. DIVIDEND RATE

Colgate Palmolive Peet company has placed the common stock of the company on a $2.50 annual dividend basis compared with $2 formerly, according to announcement made last night by President Charles S. Pearce. A quarterly payment of 62½ cents, based on the new rate was declared payable Jan. 7 to stockholders of record Dec. 18.

It was stated that the directors took the position in increasing the rate that the satisfactory progress of the firm since the merger of Palmolive Peet company with Colgate & Co. justified the action.

"The increase in the rate is the best evidence of our faith in the business for the coming year," Mr. Pearce said. Sales of the company will show an increase in all leading brands in 1929 over last year, he said.

Inventive Spirit Still Alive, U. S. Patent Records Show

BY SCRUTATOR.

Inventive genius is still at work in America. So many applications for patents are received in the patent office at Washington that at the current rate of passing on them each must be delayed about a year.

Commissioner of Patents Thomas E. Robertson reports that in the last fiscal year 114,688 applications were received, of which 92,234 were in connection with patents and the remainder for trade marks, labels, and prints. The comparative simplicity of trade marks and designs has made it possible to act on them within a month.

The other side of the picture is that 103,236 patents were still awaiting action at the end of the fiscal year. Although a large force of examiners was added during the period, they had been able to cut down the accumulated deferred applications by only 8,618.

Need More Examiners.

To make the work current, or to get it to a point where an applicant will have official sanction for his device within two months, would require six years at this rate. Another hundred examiners are needed at once, and this addition would make it possible to clear away the piled up work in a year and a half, the commissioner asserts.

Patents are important to American industry. Some of the largest corporations in the country have been formed to do little more than collect the royalties on patents they hold. No longer is the long-haired man in the garret the typical inventor. Probably a large majority of the really workable ideas come out of the laboratories of corporations. Of the others, possibly nine-tenths are of no commercial value and the devices never get into salable form.

Even if this be true, the individuals and the corporate inventors deserve quicker action on their patent protection. The patent office received last year in fees $3,783,000 and is said to be one of the few governmental departments which care for their own expenses from their revenues and have a surplus. The inventors' plight is not because of their failure to pay their way.

The future outlook is for a continued flood of applications. As a classic example of a mistaken belief in the future may be quoted the remark of an examiner who retired from the patent office about the time of the civil war. There was no future for the office, he decided, and it would have to be closed because "everything possible had already been patented."

Furnishes Incentive.

Since his day have come the steam turbine, the Diesel engine, the electric light, the automobile, the airplane, and radio. Constant refinements have been made even in the things of which he knew. Rather strangely, the low spots in business cycles seem to have been those which were most prolific of patent applications. This is explained by experts as due to the using of slack time by corporations to clean up their work that is not under productive pressure and of otherwise idle time for independents being turned to inventive effort.

If this view be correct, the business depression is not an unmixed detriment. Only through bettered mechanical devices can humanity prosper to the highest degree. The patent system furnishes the incentive to the work that must be done on them.

An Edison is worth more to the race than a Napoleon or a Cæsar. A movement for the relief of inventors by speeding up the consideration of their applications is worthy of consideration, especially when it will cost the government no deficit.

PLAN FINANCING FOR FEDERAL NEON SYSTEM

Organization of the Federal Neon System, Inc., with an authorized capital of 1,000,000 shares of class A stock and 3,000,000 shares of no par common stock was announced yesterday. A financing program of $10,000,000 has been arranged through a banking group, proceeds of which will be used to acquire the assets of the Federal Electric company which pertain to the electrical advertising division and the neon tubing business.

Of the stock, 400,000 class A shares and 2,400,000 common shares will be outstanding. Through an exchange of stock the company will acquire the Rainbow Luminous Products, Inc., and the National Neon Agency. The sale of these companies to the Federal Neon System has been approved by directors of both organizations.

ROCK ISLAND LINES TO SPEND 50 MILLIONS ON IMPROVEMENTS

J. E. Gorman, president of the Rock Island lines, stated last night that the proposed improvement budget of the road for 1930 calls for an expenditure of about $50,000,000.

This figure represents an increase of more than $10,000,000 over the current year's budget and is the largest in the history of the company. Approximately $20,000,000 of the total will be used to purchase new equipment, consisting of 41 locomotives, 5,000 freight train cars, 24 passenger train cars, and 62 work cars.

Allowances for other improvements and betterments will approximate $26,000,000, of which about $6,000,000 will be charged to operation and balance to capital account.

This sum will be further increased if the interstate commerce commission grants the petition of the Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf, a part of the Rock Island lines, for permission to build a new line of railroad from Shamrock to Quanah, Tex., and from Quanah to Beaver Creek, Tex., a distance of 110 miles. The estimated cost, in round figures, is $5,500,000, Mr. Gorman said.

Exclusive of the proposed Texas lines, the 1930 expenditures for new lines, second main tracks and roadway improvements will be about $15,000,000. This includes $2,000,000 covering continuation of the St. Paul and Kansas City short line from Trenton to Birmingham, Mo., and a new line from Dalhart to Morse, Tex. The Trenton-Birmingham program calls for an ultimate expenditure of $11,000,000.

HOOVER'S MOVE QUIETS FEARS OF DEPRESSION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 24.—The last week was, happily, distinguished by abatement in the deluge of liquidating sales which had marked the preceding week on the stock exchange, by evident arresting of "bear sales," and by signs that real investors were less resolved to hold off for the expected further break in prices.

In the main this change for the better must be ascribed to increasing comprehension of how complete and thorough the four weeks' downward readjustment had already been in the speculative market.

No doubt the action taken by the President and the White House conference had its influence. It amounted to a powerful protest, from the highest quarters, against the counsel of despair seemingly adopted, even on Wall street, a fortnight ago. Whatever are to be the actual results to the business ship, the Washington announcements at least gave the inspir-

BRANCHES IN PRINCIPAL CITIES

TREND TOWARD DIVERSIFICATION GAINS IMPETUS

Large Firms Branch Out in Many Directions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 24.—Fresh impetus is being given the movement toward greater diversification in industry, as a result of the strides that have been made in that direction by some of the country's largest corporations, notably the General Motors corporation and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

The movement has been gathering momentum for two or three years, but lately it has spread to such an extent that it is being discussed in Wall street much the same way that crop diversification was being emphasized six or eight years ago as the solution of the problems of agriculture.

There is under way at the present time a well defined trend toward diversification in all branches of industry, so much so that many large enterprises are undergoing an evolution that is gradually altering their character. Companies which once confined themselves to production and distribution in circumscribed fields, such as petroleum or automobiles, have expanded the scope of their interests until their names have become misnomers.

G. M. C. Branches Out.

The companies cited in Wall street as the most striking illustrations of what is taking place in the way of diversification are the General Motors corporation, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. General Motors has done more probably than any other company, with the possible exception of the Du Pont company.

Originally devoted to the manufacture and sale of automobiles, trucks and automotive accessories and supplies, General Motors is now an important factor in electric refrigeration, aviation, radio, electrical products, ethyl gasoline and a few other less important lines.

The Standard of New Jersey, long regarded as the outstanding factor in the petroleum industry in the United States, has come to be known more recently as a three cornered enterprise, although petroleum is still its principal product.

Through its affiliation with I. G. Farbenindustrie, known as the German dye trust, Standard of New Jersey occupies an important place in the chemical industry and its interest in this business is being expanded rapidly. The company has also made a large investment in the natural gas industry, in which it is now one of the most important factors in the country.

The Standard of New Jersey is pioneering in a number of fields, particularly in the development of a hydrogenation process by which increased percentages of gasoline and other white products will be obtained from crude oils of high asphalt and sulphur content now forming a large proportion of refinery supplies. The company has established a separate agency to assist in the development of aeronautics, mainly through the preparation of formulas for airplane fuel and lubricants.

Has Wide Interests.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. is best known as the country's largest powder and explosives enterprise, but it is much more than that, having carried its diversification farther probably than any other organization in the country. It is interested heavily in dyestuffs, paint, lacquer, rayon, coated textiles, industrial alcohol, fire extinguishers, motion picture film, chemicals of various kinds, and other products, which it manufactures directly or through subsidiaries.

Besides its own manufacturing interests the Du Pont company is one of the largest investors in the country. Through its investments it is the most influential group in the General Motors corporation, while the Du Pont interests are also credited with controlling the United States Rubber company and with a dominant position in other companies.

At present the name of Colts is identified with adding machines, dish washers, molded specialty products of various kinds, compacts and other products entirely unrelated to the business which the original founders established.

EXPECT 2,500 TO VISIT MARKET IN SHOW WEEK

Plan Selling Event for Early December.

BY HOWARD J. CARSWELL.

About 2,500 merchants from all parts of the country are expected to attend the selling event sponsored annually by Chicago merchandise wholesalers and manufacturers beginning Dec. 2 and lasting three days.

Each year this event is staged concurrently with the International Live Stock exposition, allowing reduced railroad rates to Chicago for merchants doing their buying of merchandise for January sale and of fill-in purchases of holiday and winter goods before the Christmas shopping rush.

The launching of the winter amusement season and the live stock exposition is said to greatly enhance Chicago's attraction as the great central market for those buyers who yearly attend this market event.

Cite Advantages.

The preholiday season market was publicized by the Association of Commerce in a circular mailed a week ago to thousands of merchants. Supplementary circulars, supplying descriptions of their offerings, have been sent out by several larger wholesale houses.

One of the concluding features of the three day market will be a luncheon on Dec. 4 at the Hotel La Salle. Ernest I. Lewis, chairman of the interstate commerce commission, will be the speaker.

The numerous advance requests for hotel reservations and theater tickets on the part of customers of Marshall Field & Co., wholesale, indicates a larger attendance this year, according to D. J. O'Grady, advertising manager. One such request has already been received from Mexico.

So popular is Chicago as an amusement center to supplement the buying activities that the wholesale division of Marshall Field & Co. maintains a specialized personal service bureau.

Peps Up Market.

According to W. A. Starkey, its manager, 550 applications for tickets to one world series baseball game were received last fall. The firm spent $400 in telegraph tolls on this single occasion in answering customers' requests.

The demand for winter merchandise inspired by the temperature drop pepped up the Chicago market last week, according to trade observers of the Association of Commerce.

Value of 50 Active Stocks Is Higher Than Year Ago

The fifty most active stocks traded in on the Chicago Stock Exchange during the week ended Nov. 22 had a market value of $2,247,230,601 at the close of business Friday, as compared with $2,096,233,230 at the close of the previous week, according to a compilation by Lage & Co., members of the New York and Chicago stock exchanges. This represents an increase of $151,047,581, or 7.20 per cent.

To the Holders of

Fifty Year First Consolidated Mortgage Gold Bonds (Series A and B) of

NEW YORK STATE RAILWAYS

Default having been made in the payment of the November 1, 1929 coupon, united action for the protection of the interests of the holders of the above described bonds is imperative.

The undersigned Committee deems it essential that a comprehensive and unbiased examination be made of the operation of the New York State Railways, its earning capacity, the value, condition and character of the properties covered by the mortgage securing the bonds, the inter-relationship of such properties and generally of the affairs and management of the system, and the Committee has therefore retained Messrs. Coverdale & Colpitts of New York to undertake such examination.

Associated Gas and Electric Company interests—which own and control the stock of the Railways—made an offer on October 25, 1929 to acquire the bonds. It was stated this offer was made "reluctantly" and "from the standpoint of public good-will" pending the solution of what the Associated Gas and Electric Company interests referred to as "a distressing problem." But, following the announcement of the formation of the undersigned Committee, a better offer was substituted.

An analysis of the publicly available facts with regard to the situation (even without the thorough investigation planned by the undersigned Committee) will show that what is now offered is in no way commensurate with the real value of the bonds.

The desire thus evidenced by Associated Gas and Electric Company interests to acquire the bonds upon their own terms makes it all the more urgent that the rights of the bondholders should be protected by a committee having no affiliations with the Associated Gas and Electric Company interests, and bondholders can well be assured that they can rely on the undersigned Committee for independent action in behalf of those who deposit their holdings with it.

Bonds with the November 1, 1929 and subsequent coupons attached, or in negotiable form if registered, should be deposited on or before December 10, 1929, with The Equitable Trust Company of New York (11 Broad Street, New York City) as Depositary under a Deposit Agreement dated as of November 4, 1929. Copies of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained from the Depositary or the Secretary of the Committee, upon request.

Certificates of Deposit in negotiable form (with notation of the series represented thereby) will be delivered in exchange for the bonds deposited and in due course application will be made to list the certificates on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Committee undertakes to represent only those bonds which are deposited with it and the unusual situation confronting the bondholders requires that the deposit of bonds with the Committee should not be delayed.

Dated: November 22, 1929.

Ford's Proclamation.

Mr. Ford's personal proclamation was seen as containing something of that amateur economist's economic eccentricities. He laid unexpected and not at all unwarranted stress on the return to sober industry by the host of business men who had spent the last two years in chairs before their brokers' blackboards, engaged in getting rich on the Monte Carlo plan. Traders believe he spoke from impulsive inference rather than fact when he told the press that we had not only been "on the threshold of a necessary change" but that "a year ago the country was expecting something to happen."

Unfortunately, a year ago was the very time when the country at large was in complete illusion about both stocks and business, nowhere more than in the motor car trade. Nevertheless it is a valuable contribution to historical knowledge when the largest manufacturer owns up frankly that before the Wall street crash "American production had come to equal and surpass" the people's "power to purchase." This is held as an admission that the much discussed "saturation point" had actually been reached.

But the rest of Mr. Ford's philosophy is likely to perplex and not enlighten. A program under which wages must go up in a period of reaction while prices come down, solely to increase purchasing power, has doubtless a cheerful sound.

Yet it may possibly be suggested by a puzzled audience that not every American citizen is a "mass producer"; that further advancing of an already notoriously high general wage scale, at a time of heavy individual losses, would mean for many trades the alternative between higher prices, which the public would not pay, and lower prices, which might shatter business earnings.

Problem of Results.

The problem of the results on trade of the Wall street crash will differ necessarily from the problem of its results on the stock exchange. If the stock market during the 140 per cent rise of the "averages" in the last three years had been foreshadowing similar inflation of the period's business activities (as it did in 1919), then reason might exist for expecting now a trade reaction similar in scope to the Wall street readjustment.

But the record testifies clearly to the contrary.

There was even a half-year's more or less serious trade reaction during 1927 at the very moment when the stock market was rolling its ball of speculation. It was not until 1929 that the overstimulation of certain trades occurred which Mr. Ford discerns retrospectively; even then it had only faint resemblance in scope of expansion and none at all in rise of prices or speculative use of credit to the stock market's performances.

If results in trade expansion were so imperfectly foreshadowed by the stock exchange's great speculation, it would certainly not be reasonable to regard the Wall street collapse of the last three weeks as a forecast and measure of the approaching trade reaction.

Western Pacific Railroad Orders 15,000 Tons of Rails

New York, Nov. 24.—(AP)—The Western Pacific railroad has ordered 15,000 tons of rails from the Colorado Fuel and Iron company. Kansas City Southern is purchasing 3,000 tons from Illinois Steel company, 3,000 from Bethlehem Steel, and 2,000 from Inland Steel. Railway employment inquiries, as reported by Railway Age, include ten locomotives for Denver and Rio Grande and 500 gondola cars from Missouri, Kansas and Texas.

URGE GRIFFIN TO SEEK BOARD OF TRADE OFFICE

Selection of a president and a board of directors to manage the affairs of the Board of Trade during the coming year is attracting more attention than usual, owing to the necessity of developing the stock department as well as complications of various kinds which may arise due to operation of the federal farm board.

Friends of Joseph P. Griffin, who occupied the presidency in 1916 and 1917 and refused a third term, are urging him to run for the position of chairman of the board of directors.

Intimate friends of Mr. Griffin say that he is as well known in Wall street as he is in the grain trade in Chicago and throughout the west, understanding stock trading as well as grain. He is a resident partner of J. S. Bache & Co.

Housebroken

By PAUL HERVEY FOX

SYNOPSIS.

Tom Davies, football star of a small eastern college, plays brilliantly in his last game. After the battle Bruce Stevens, his roommate, asks him to go to the dance that night to escort a girl who'd been asked down to the college for him. Bruce explains that he wishes to avoid meeting one of the chaperons. Tom agrees to substitute for him. The girl, Suzanne Branch, makes an instantaneous appeal to him. She tells Tom that she is engaged to marry a friend of her father's. After she leaves, Tom writes to her. Before the Christmas holidays Tom meets Suzanne in New York. Suzanne breaks her engagement to the other man when she and Tom realize they love each other, and Suzanne invites Tom to her home to meet her family. Suzanne goes down to the college for commencement.

After graduation Tom's father gives him a small house in Stamford as a wedding present. Suzanne and Tom are married in November, and for the first few months are perfectly happy. One day Tom stays in town to have dinner with some college friends and on his return Suzanne upbraids him. The storm blows over, and a few weeks later he promises to attend a prize fight with some of the boys. Suzanne creates such a scene that Tom gives up the idea.

About a year after their marriage Bruce Stevens returns from a trip to the orient. Tom is delighted to see him. He asks Bruce to occupy the guest room at their house. Suzanne and Tom quarrel over Bruce's visit. When Bruce tells Tom he will have to stay in town, Tom asks him as a special favor to stay on at Stamford. Then Suzanne becomes cordial to Bruce and later starts a flirtation with him. Bruce realizes that it is all pretense and is done to get rid of him and his influence by making Tom jealous. Bruce confides this to Tom and offers to help him, and together they arrange a plan.

Tom comes home one evening to find Suzanne in Bruce's arms. Tom storms around the house, and then Bruce tells him that he and Suzanne love each other and he is going to take her away with him to his camp in Maine. Tom agrees to let her go, and Suzanne is heartbroken at his willingness to be rid of her. She calls up her friend, Kathleen Murray, and asks her to go to Maine with them.

INSTALLMENT XIX.

THE DEPARTURE.

Kathleen was amazed at Suzanne's revelation that she was going away with Bruce Stevens.

"Well, I—of course, there's nothing that I——"

"Please! You don't know what this means to me. I—I can't begin to tell you. But you've got to come with me! You've got to be with me all the time. He'll—he'll just be near us."

"O."

"You'll come, Kathleen. Please—I do need help so terribly."

"Well, I don't understand very well yet, but——"

"How soon could you be ready?"

"O, you know how I am. It never takes me any time at all."

"Put some things in a bag. Come over right away. Come right up to my room. I'll wait here. And thank you—you'll never know how grateful I am for this."

She put down the receiver with shaking fingers. Then she began to pack, hurriedly, scarcely knowing what it was she was throwing pell-mell into Tom's big telescope bag.

. . . . . .

The instant that Suzanne had run up the cellar stairs Bruce had sprung forward, caught Tom by the shoulders, and looked at him admiringly.

"Boy! I didn't know you had it in you! You were perfect—perfect! I was afraid you'd let me down, and, holy smoke! you were better than I was! You were great!"

Tom was frowning. "Look here, I can't go through with this. I feel rotten about it. I tell you I never thought I could play a dirty trick like that. I—I've got to see her."

His forehead was moist. Bruce's hand tightened around his arm.

"Are you going to be a fool? Are you going to let her beat you after all, because she cries? Why, women are always crying! It's the way they enjoy themselves. What's the matter with you, anyway?"

"I've made her miserable. I feel pretty rotten about it."

"So you want to give in and let her make you miserable the rest of your life! Why, I wouldn't put it beyond you to confess the whole thing to her. What a price she'd make you pay! But you seem to like it—perhaps you deserve to be housebroken."

"O, don't worry," Tom muttered. "I'll go through with it, now I've gone this far. What do I have to do now?"

"I'll go up and tell her you've ordered me out of the house and I'm going to a hotel in town, where she can pick me up. All you have to do after that is sit tight and keep from forgiving her too quickly."

A worried scowl crossed Tom's face. "Look here, Bruce, you don't suppose, you don't think there's any possible chance that she'll really go off?"

Bruce howled. "Don't be foolish! Wild horses couldn't drag her away with me! Only don't weaken, don't give in, don't get scared if she comes down with a hat on. Don't call her back if she starts for the gate. And then—insist on your rights. Get an evening a week to yourself. However, you're married to her—I can't live your life."

"You've made a pretty good attempt at it!"

"So long! Look me up at the club tomorrow and tell me how the battle fared!"

Bruce went up the stairs feeling very pleased with himself and his cleverness. He reflected it was a pity that he was so devoid of ambition.

In less than four minutes he came down from Suzanne's room with an altered air. He came upon Tom in the kitchen, leaning against the window sill, with folded arms.

Tom took one look at his face. "What's happened?" he demanded, hoarsely.

"She's going away—she's got that dam' girl to come along!"

"What girl—what are you talking about?"

"That blonde friend of yours—you know—Kathleen something. She's got her to agree to go along. She's called our bluff!"

Tom looked horrified. "Well, listen, did you tell her it was all a fake; did you explain——"

"Of course I didn't. I told her I'd go!"

"What!"

"It was the only thing to do. You can't back out now. She'll be safe enough. Maybe that shack is still standing on the island, and——"

"Are you crazy?"

"Tom, if you give in, I tell you you'll never have a day of peace as long as you live! She's only going in the hope that you'll come after her. If you sit tight she'll come running back. She's just trying to put off the inevitable moment as long as she can. But I wouldn't be surprised if she jumped out of the car before we made ten miles."

"What car?"

"Yours, of course. What other car is there?"

"How will I get to the station?"

"Walk, of course."

"Bruce, I don't like this thing."

"You'll have to like it."

"And, see here; I'm not going to have any scandal."

"There won't be any. That's why she's taking that girl along."

Tom hesitated for a moment. Then his resolution hardened. He felt less ready to forgive Suzanne than he had a moment ago. She was doing this only to hurt him. Bruce saw the change come over his face.

"Don't worry," he whispered now. "Leave it all to me. I said I'd see you through, and I'm going to."

The ring of the doorbell made them both jump.

Bruce turned expectantly. "There's that girl. I'm not supposed to be speaking to you. Besides I've got to get my grip. So long! You're a free man and you can do what you please tonight."

"But you're not going right now? You can't go now! It's almost dark."

"The sooner we start the sooner I'll send her back."

"But what are you going to do?"

"Stick close to her until she gets sick of the sight of me. It's the only way."

Tom frowned. "Look here, you want to be careful not to overdo things. Of course, I know you and I are all right with each other. Don't think I don't trust you absolutely, because I do. But——"

"O, shut up. You don't deserve to be a bachelor—even for a week! But I'll save you in spite of yourself!"

Some ten minutes later Tom Davies, crouching low, stared behind the corner of a shade. The big touring car with Bruce at the wheel, Suzanne at his side, and Kathleen in the rear seat, slowly lumbered off.

To me who am so fond of both Jack Oakie and Nancy Carroll, this picture came in the nature of a blow.

"Sweetie" is an inane and childish offering that no time lifts itself out of the slough of mediocrity. It's neither fish, flesh, nor fowl, for, starting out to be a satire, it degenerated into a poor burlesque that often forgets and takes itself seriously.

Nancy Carroll is seen as a dancer who inherits the Pelham school where studies and footballs the man she loves. He had planned to leave the hall of learning and marry her instanter, but college spirit and the pleadings of the coach cause him to change his mind. Barbara [Nancy] feels terribly and cries it out on old Jack Oakie's brotherly shoulder. Jack is a hoofer.

Then—Barbara inherits Pelham! When she goes to take over her inheritance, Tap-Tap [Jack] ambles along. He joins the student body to which he brings much needed pep, making over the college song into a Jolsonian affair called "Alma Mammy." Barbara thinks only of revenge. Just before the big game she gives an English examination to the football players, declaring that those who fail to pass shall not play. Biff, doesn't pass—and-a-lot-of-rubbish until—he does play and there's a victory for dear old Pelham and a lovin' finish for Barbara and Biff.

Helen Kane percolates through the action with a popgun, talking and singing constantly in her piccolo voice, which may be well enough over the radio in baby songs, but is awful to have wished on one through eight reels of film. I can't see where Miss Kane has a thing, but there are plenty to disagree with me. I understand she was so popular in New York that she got her salary raised.

Nancy Carroll, Jack Oakie, et al. gallantly do their best, but show signs of strain. The cast on the whole is an excellent one, to be pitied, not censured, for the general dumbness of lines and situations that do beset it.

Item: Following are some resolutions adopted by the Lezar Literary society of North Carolina re objectionable features found in so-called "college" films:

"That athletics are usually falsely made to occupy about 80 per cent of the students' time.

"2. That most of the athletic contests shown are ridiculously inaccurate, since the football captain is rarely if ever kidnaped on the night before the game; since most touchdowns are not made in the last minute of play; and since most universities have an elaborate coaching staff in addition to the sole coach shown in most motion pictures.

"3. That almost invariably students are falsely shown to have an excessive interest in members of the opposite sex, and that their conduct as pictured would normally lead to expulsion from school.

"4. That the wideawake and mentally vigorous college leader, whether man or woman, is rarely the type portrayed by our leading motion picture stars.

"5. That many brilliant thinkers and teachers found on the faculties of American colleges are often grossly misrepresented by the comic 'college professor.'

"7. The many vital and dramatic situations in college life have been almost completely neglected as picture making material. We recommend that college pictures be written and directed by college men."

Too Much Petticoat Rule of British Labor Brings on a Ruction

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 24.—That there is too much feminine influence in the present government is the view of the Sunday Express, which today suggests that there is some discontent among the male members of the Labor party as a result of the prominence of women in its councils. The paper even suggests that the present difficulty the party is having in controlling its own insurgents arises partly from the resentment the left wingers feel at seeing two posts accorded to women.

The Labor party's two women officials are Miss Margaret Bondfield, minister of labor, and Miss Susan Lawrence, parliamentary secretary of the health ministry, of which Arthur Greenwood is chief.

Of the two women, Miss Bondfield is the least criticized. The anti-feminists admit that her department is well conducted, but they find her debating triumphs smack too much of the feminine "last word," leaving her opponents exasperated but uncrushed.

Miss Lawrence comes in for harsher treatment, the claim being made that it was only Mr. Greenwood's tact and discretion which has prevented placing the ministry in embarrassing situations.

The complaint against the women is that they rely too much on the finality of logic and are unable to make allowances for human limitations and the obstinacy of circumstances. They do not understand the parliamentary give and take which permits the bitter opponents of the house to meet as friends outside. But despite these criticisms, Prime Minister MacDonald remains a strong feminist supporter.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send your name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Charles E. Becker, 851 North State Street, [Apt. 2], was awarded $5.

The Question.

Would you favor a law prohibiting tipping, as prevailes in the State of Mississippi?

The Answers.

Stanley Gainer, 2013 Cortland street, bookbinder—I'd forbid tipping. It makes the recipient of the tip look cheap. The patron of a hotel, restaurant, taxi-cab, railroad, and so on, should have the satisfaction of knowing that the employés are given a proper wage.

Dr. H. Lucile Long, 819 Sheridan road, teacher—I certainly would, if it is understood that employés who now derive an income through tips are to be adequately paid. That's why we so often eat in the sandwich shops, that forbid tipping. Tipping is one of the abominable things. One has to figure on tips, even though not really able to afford it.

C. Wyant, 8 South Dearborn street, general contractor—You couldn't find anyone who would be more in favor of such a law throughout the country. Those dependent upon tips should be given a dependable living wage. Tipping is bad for the receiver and the giver.

Miss Rose Goldberg, 1836 South Clifton Park avenue, stenographer—There are times when tipping is a nuisance. Oftentimes the expense of a thing is high enough, to say nothing of tips on top of that. If there has been a special service, then it is proper to give some reward; no law could stop us from doing that.

A. J. Abrahmson, 4214 Wilcox street, salesman—Yes. If the proprietor would pay a living wage there would be better service on the part of the employé and the proprietor would also profit accordingly in the long run.

'Mme. Butterfly' Hears Husband Died in Japan

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Seven years ago Mme. Tamaki Miura, most famous of Japanese sopranos, decided definitely that she preferred being "Mme. Butterfly" on the stage in America to being Mme. Miura at home in Tokio.

Confronted with the necessity of choosing between her husband and her art, she violated the centuries of Japanese traditions by defying her husband and sailing away to sing, against his stern orders that she remain at home. Last night she was sorry. She had just learned of his death.

In her room at the Auditorium hotel the tiny Nipponese prima donna, who on arrival in America became a member of the Chicago Civic Opera company, sat, dismayed and sad, telling of the life and character of the husband who divorced her for her disobedience, a year after she had left Tokio. She has not heard from him since their separation, she said, but had never ceased to respect and admire him.

Dr. Masataro Miura, whose entire clan joined in the family council held in Tokio when Tamaki first displayed rebellion against husbandly authority, was one of Japan's noted physicians. He had done post-graduate work at Yale, was holder of a professorship in Tokio university, and was internationally famous for his experiments with vitamins.

It was in July of 1922 that Tamaki Miura sailed on the Tenyo Maru for the occident, after defeating the attempts of her husband to have the Japanese authorities refuse her a passport. Dr. Miura had charged that the friendship of his wife for her Italian accompanist, Sig. Franchetti, was deeper than the platonic nature which Mme. Miura alleged. Eighteen months later, while on a concert tour in Iowa, the petite singer was advised that her husband had obtained a divorce from her in Tokio.

"He was a veree fine man," the disconsolate little figure in the richly flowered kimono declared last night, sitting in reflective mood in her suite at the Auditorium. "I have never cease' to esteem him for his goodness."

THEATER

FISKE, most celebrated of all the O'Haras who serve the Drama, is in the Cort in something by William A. Grew named "Jerry for Short." Mrs. O'Hara,—who is Miss Patricia Quinn to theater-goers,—is with him; and it is her chore to be a girl named Geraldine who is translated from domestic servitude for hire to riches and a title. Mr. O'Hara, himself, is in the play an owner of gold-mines and silver-mines and a rough past and a home in Westchester, which is in New-York State. And whatever is wrong comes out all right in the end, it is fair to suppose: you see, Mr. O'Hara is to be but this week in the Cort; so, I didn't tarry. After all, Mr. O'Hara has wangled through the years since he was George Fiske, of the song-and-dance shows, without having to care much about play-reporters.

And next Sunday night the Cort will house another new play, "Queen-Bee," by Louise Fox Connell and Ruth Hawthorne, with Allan Dinehart at the head of the cast and Miss Gertrude Bryan in the principal feminine rôle. Mr. Dinehart, who directed the staging of the play, takes over the chief masculine part from Ian Keith.

Jack Benny, who has been there ere this, will be in next week's bill in the Palace.

"Recapture" is the title of a new piece by Preston Sturges, whose "Strictly Dishonorable" seems to be the most successful of the tuneless plays current in New-York.

"Whoopee" after running from December 4 of last year, reached the end of its New-York run Saturday night. 'Tis not known if Eddie Cantor's itinerary will bring him to Chicago in the piece.

Frank Morgan, here last season with Miss Marilyn Miller in "Rosalie," is to be in Ernest Pascal's "The Amorous Antic," a piece about artists and their carryings-on in love.

In case you occasionally wonder what is become of Ben Greet, it is explained that, after absence since 1914, he is back in the United States and booked to give Shakspere in the universities and colleges from coast to coast. So far as I know, the booking which will bring him nearest to Chicago is in February at the University of Illinois. But he is no longer Ben Greet: King George V did his stuff last June, and made the actor into Sir Philip Ben Greet, which is the style in which he is billing himself.

Miss Wilette Kershaw, who may or may not be remembered in Chicago as the heroine in the war-play named "The Crowded Hour," is said to be preparing to act in a dramatization of "The Well of Loneliness" in New-York.

Spanish Music Delights Critic on Chilly Day

Then Horowitz Recital Adds Its Measures.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

In digging back into past centuries for their music, the Aguilar Lute quartet of Madrid have performed a deed much more important than archeological. They have revived some entrancing music, so much so that they forthwith become one of the charming organizations of the world.

These three brothers and one sister from Spain made their first Chicago appearance at the Playhouse yesterday afternoon with lutes made from ancient models and music of the old and modern times. It was a delightful experience. In quality, the nearest approach to the lute is the mandolin, but the lute is considerably richer, fuller, and more varied. It was all delicate; the notes were as though pricked out by needle points, and always graceful and charming. And what they can do to recent Spanish music like that by Isaac Albeniz, with its bowings and swayings and bendings can only be equaled by La Argentina with her castanets. At that her deeds are merely rhythm, and their star tunes.

Vladimir Horowitz was back at Orchestra hall in a recital program, the same incredible young colossus of the piano keyboard that he was a year and two years ago. Here was another experience, this time an exciting one. He is an angelic player of Chopin; when he gets into Liszt he is an army with banners. It is doubtful whether Liszt's "Funerailles" serves any further purpose in the present field of music than to be something for Horowitz to play, but he made it all cathedral bells and batteries of huge drums. As for the transcription of Saint-Saëns' "Danse Macabre," it is one of those unbelievable things that would puzzle a mechanical inside player to produce all the notes. But it did not puzzle Horowitz. With both hands he scattered fireworks all over the place and ended as calm and as collected as he had begun. Encores continued until a late hour.

There was an opinion last year when Andre Skalski conducted his first orchestral concert here that he knew his way around the scores, and it was confirmed yesterday at the Studebaker. He is a greatly talented conductor who knows what he wants in his music and transmits his desires to his players. Meanwhile he keeps them together as a mellow, suave, and throughly enjoyable ensemble. His orchestral numbers were the Rimsky-Korsakoff "Scheherazade" and Strauss' "Rosenkavalier" waltzes. Attendance upon his future concerts is recommended. There were two soloists, Mary Thomas Duffield, soprano, and Helen Burnett, pianist, but other events made it impossible to hear them.

Sonia Sharnova's song recital at the Great Northern disclosed her as a mezzo-soprano whose English is excellent and dramatic gifts considerable. With all the color and power of her voice, however—by the way, they have been earnestly and accurately developed—she can turn to a pure lyric piece like Max Reger's "Cradle Song" and make it utterly charming.

The Civic Opera house took its second large audience of the twenty-four hours last evening, this time to hear a Swedish music festival given under the auspices of the American Daughters of Sweden and the Chicago Swedish Glee club, Congressman Carl R. Chindblom made the opening address; the glee club, a well trained and vigorous organization of men singers, sang under the direction of H. William Nordin, and was loudly applauded and encored for its performances. Two soloists assisted. Folke Andersson, a tenor of operatic capabilities in quality, power, and range of voice, was heard in an aria from Mozart's "The Magic Flute," and Ebba Sundstrom, conductor of the Woman's Symphony orchestra, played several violin groups.

Virginian Opposes Sale of Any Old House for Ford's Americana

Alexandria, Va., Nov. 24.—[U. P.]—Any effort on the part of Henry Ford to buy one of this historic city's old colonial homes and transport it to his Dearborn museum for reërection, would be "an affront to the citizenry of the entire state of Virginia," John B. Gordon, a leader of the Washington society of Alexandria, declared tonight.

Mr. Ford recently paid a visit to Alexandria with a view to acquiring a house representative of early American life and instructed Richard B. English, Washington division manager for the Ford plant, to select one in Alexandria or some other town.

Children's Dental Clinic to Celebrate Its 7th Year

The Cook County Children's Dental clinic will celebrate its sixth anniversary today, beginning the seventh year of its service as a part of the county hospital organization with a record of having performed 328,467 operations since its establishment. The value of the free dental work done during the six years was estimated at $1,000,000.

A report by Dr. J. L. Ubl, supervisor, showed that 20,989 visits to the clinic have been made by children during the last year and 55,774 operations were performed. During the year 1,125 girls applied to the clinic for the first time, while 1,041 boys were admitted as newcomers. The girls, ranging from 3 to 16 years, had an average of 9.5 dental cavities each. The boys' average was 8.8 cavities. Approximately 45 per cent of the children treated had teeth that do not meet properly.

Officials of the clinic are seeking a gift of 250 oranges a week to give to patients, the orange being the best single food for keeping teeth free from decay.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Four year old Edward was fond of undertaking jobs beyond his strength, so one day when he wanted to move some heavy boxes, I said: "Don't try to do that. That job is too big for you."

"O, this job's just my size," he answered. "It fits me like a glove."

T. J. B.

The small boy at our house was talking about the animals he knew. Among them he named the kangaroo.

He was asked: "Do you know a kangaroo when you see one?" "O, yes," he said. "That is the animal that has the rumble seat." K. H. D.

Peabodys' Home at Hinsdale Is to Be Sold

BY THALIA

When the Stuyvesant Peabodys bought the residence of the late John Sumner Runnells at 1525 State parkway and moved into town from Hinsdale, a few weeks ago, it looked as though they merely were following the example of many of their Lake Forest friends who take temporary dwellings near the arena of social activities for the cold months. Such, it seems, is not the case at all.

The Hinsdale estate, Balleymooney Farms, which has been the Peabody homestead for so long, is on the market, and its owners are planning to be city folk in earnest. When the outdoor urge proves too strong the Peabodys will repair to the farm at Lemont, Ill. There are kennels and stables for their favorite steeds and canines, and there they will have a small house for week-end use. Just now they are down east for the week-end seeing young Stuyvesant Jr., who is at school for his first year away from home, if I'm not mistaken.

It would most certainly be bad policy for me to disparage the omniscience of society columnists, but I must admit that once in a while an interesting item or story ALMOST slips by without receiving due mention. The Potter Palmers have been having as their house guest for the week-end an interesting visitor, of whose presence in town we become aware only as she is about to depart.

Mrs. John Elliott of Boston, the former Maude Howe and daughter of the late Julia Ward Howe, is the person in question, and she returns east today. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer entertained at dinner for her on Friday evening, and there was other rather quiet going-about during her brief stay. She and her late husband resided in Chicago for several years about 40 years ago.

The luncheon to have been given today at the Chicago Woman's club under the auspices of the education and philosophy department for Mrs. Cecil Barnes and Miss Katherine Cornell has been canceled, and instead Mrs. Samuel Dauchy is to give a small luncheon for the two.

One romance is following closely on the heels of another in the Harold N. Scott household. Mrs. Scott's daughter, Miss Patricia O'Gorman, only recently became the bride of Louis E. Hart Jr., and now her brother, John, has become engaged. Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Ellis of Milwaukee, Wis., announced the engagement of their daughter, Charlotte, to John at a dinner party on Saturday night, which was attended by the Scotts and Mr. and Mrs. Hart. Miss Ellis was a classmate of Mrs. Hart's at Wellesley, and Mr. O'Gorman was graduated from Yale just last June.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenath T. Sponsel of 5401 East View Park are to give one of the largest dinner parties preceding the Kenwood Social Service club benefit performance of "The Age of Innocence" this evening. They are to entertain at the University club. Mrs. John A. Logan, president of the club; Mrs. Percival G. Hart, Mrs. Lyle Harper, Mrs. Jay Beidler Camp, and Mrs. William S. Hubbard are among the south side women who have been in charge of the affair. Altruistically, they have taken seats in the balcony for the performance.

Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman has returned from her long summer at Santa Barbara. She seems to be recuperating rapidly from her lengthy and serious illness. She has recovered sufficiently to walk four or five blocks each day.

Mrs. John V. Senior informs us that the St. James bazaar to take place tomorrow is to be a much more elaborate affair than ever before. Besides the sale, there is to be:

There is to be turkey on the $2 dinner instead of just plain old ham, as in former years, and there will be Russian dancers and singers from the Petruska club offering entertainment during the dinner hour, supervised by Mrs. Billy Mitchell Blair.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Owsley of Lake Forest have been in Gulfport, Miss., for a brief stay.

The Charles H. Morses sailed last week on the Berengaria to travel in England and France.

Colonial Guild Show.

The Colonial Guild of America, in coöperation with the Chicago Historical society, is sponsoring an exhibition of hand woven coverlets, quilts, counterpanes and spreads which will be on display from Tuesday until Saturday of this week in the assembly hall of the Chicago Historical society.

Marshall and Muzio Share Opera Honors at Matinee of "Otello"

BY HAZEL MOORE.

The Chicago Civic Opera company's Sunday matinée of "Otello" was noteworthy for two reasons, the extraordinary beauty of the singing, and the extreme length of the intermissions. Though an opera of a full four acts, "Otello" is so beautifully proportioned a work that it should be easily sung in less than the three hours and ten or more minutes required yesterday. Fortunately the real excellence of the performance replaces in memory the undue waits.

The names of Charles Marshall and "Otello" have become inextricably interwoven hereabouts, and yesterday as always he gave convincing proof of the reason. In no other opera does his clarion voice so express the text, or his dramatic conception so fit the character. "Otello" without Marshall is almost unthinkable.

The fine, vigorous Iago sung by Cesare Formichi has also become familiar. His gorgeous voice and studied characterization of the crafty Iago were particularly good yesterday.

It remained, however, for Claudia Muzio to add the final, the perfect touch that this performance has lacked in the past few years, a Desdemona of such exquisite beauty that one is almost tempted to say that it was the most perfect singing of her career. Certainly it was the most lovely singing of the current opera season.

As in all of her characterizations as Desdemona was loving, tender, playful, aghast, despondent and terrified, always with the complete accompaniment of voice color. Nothing in memory is so exquisite as the delicate, shaded pianissimo singing of Desdenoma's scene in the last act, that ending with the tragic prayer. This was a marvel of operatic singing and acting.

There were other high spots in the performance, the chorus in the first act, the drinking song by Iago, the duet between Otello and Desdemona that closes the act. Then there was Iago's Credó of the second act, splendid bits of singing by Baromeo as Rodorigo, and the ever sure and satisfying performance of Maria Claessens.

Roberto Moranzoni conducted with the poetic instinct uppermost, which was excellent for the love duet of the first act, and ideal for Desdemona's pitiful soliloquy of the last, but as other points made one long for a bit more orchestral tone to support the full voiced song of the biggest men's voices of the company.

A large audience numbering many distinguished guests remained in rapt attention until the end. Among them were the Visconte and Madame di Modrone, guests of Joseph Castruccio, Italian consul of this city. The visconte is the head of the La Scala corporation in Milan, which owns and operates the La Scala opera.

Mary McCormic slipped easily from the operatic robes of Juliet and the environs of the Civic Opera house, to an entirely French white satin gown and the stage of the Civic theater next door.

In doing so she accumulated a large audience for her recital yesterday, which was almost crushing in its entrance, and applause that lasted throughout her program. The program was short in the extreme, late comers entering as Miss Mary Garden and others made their exit.

Of the usual arrangement, her program began with old Italian songs and ended with modern English. In between were French songs interspersed with arias. Of the former three by Ravel were particularly applauded. The latter included, besides the scheduled "Depuis le Jour," so recently sung in the other theater by the other Mary, that of "Herodiade," and the waltz from Romeo and Juliet.

Freebooters in Love Are Growing Peril to Women

BY DORIS BLAKE.

What doth it profit woman to win her independence in love if the woods are full of love freebooters?

What good doth it do the modern one with the right to choose a mate to suit herself—if the mart is glutted with men more eager to play than assume the responsibilities of married life? Or, being now in the position of having to be won, where is the kick if the stag line is peopled with playboys looking only for excitement and diversion?

"Freebooting in love has for the first time in history become an institution," says Dr. Heinrich F. Wolf, psychologist of New York and Vienna.

Smart as the modern woman is, to be able to go, do, and choose as she pleases, her way is sadly obstructed by this Don Juan weed of society. Standing on her own merits, economically free, she challenges man from her hilltop and he will have to prove his worthiness before she'll take him. He will have to win her on the strength of his high virtues, but the psychologist reports, hints rather, that with all her fine independence, woman is still not free from the machinations of this new figure on the horizon—the freebooter in love.

By his methods, his true character cannot be detected in the beginning. Not until it is too late, frequently, is the girl aware that his course is to trade on the modern tendency to rise above social prejudices, then flutter off to new victims. His easy sophistry is his stock in trade, and woman's inclination to believe that she is wiser than men is her weakness. Together they equal the modern woman's most discouraging problem.

NATION TO HONOR 75 WHO DIED IN FAR OFF RUSSIA

Bodies of War Veterans Arrive Wednesday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Impressive tributes will be paid to the memory of 75 members of the 339th infantry—Polar Bear division—when their bodies, reclaimed from the north Russian wastes, where they died eleven years ago, reach Hoboken, N. J., Wednesday.

The steamship President Roosevelt, bearing the bodies, will be met off New York harbor Wednesday morning by a cruiser and a squadron of army planes and escorted to Hoboken, N. J., where the flag-draped caskets will be placed in state on the pier reserved for the memorial services which are to be held, it was announced by the war department today, on Friday.

Governor Will Attend.

A battalion of the 16th infantry from Fort Jay, N. Y., will meet the ship at the pier and appropriate guard of honor will be established and maintained until the bodies are turned over to the escorts which are to accompany them to their final resting place. The special services will be attended by an official delegation appointed by Gov. Fred W. Green of Michigan, and Maj. Gen. B. Ely, commanding the First corps area, and his staff will attend.

Bodies Go to Michigan.

Three of the bodies will be interred in the National cemetery at Arlington, Va., and most of the others will be taken to Michigan on a special train. The bodies are being accompanied to New York by Edwin S. Bettelheim, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Walter Dunden, representing the Polar Bear association.

INDIAN SERVICE ASKS FUNDS FOR ECONOMY'S SAKE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Five months' study of the Indian problem has led Commissioner Rhoads of the Indian service to the belief that enlarged appropriations for the service at present will result in great savings in the future.

In his annual report to the secretary of the interior, made public today, the former Philadelphia banker reveals that appropriations for the Indian service for food, clothing, and vocational training have never been adjusted to post-war costs. This has resulted, he said, in improperly fed, improperly clothed, and improperly trained Indians, who continue to be a drain on the public treasury instead of taking a self-respecting and self-supporting place in the life of the country.

Prior administrations, Rhoads reported, have stressed this situation, but data now in hand indicates that as a mere economic problem it will save the taxpayers money to grant at once larger appropriations for a better trained personnel and better schools, so that Indians may be trained for citizenship instead of wardship.

Rhoads reported that closer coöperation among federal, state, county, and municipal health organizations had resulted in improved sanitary conditions and better health among the Indians. New hospitals have been established at Tacoma, Wash.; Chin Lee, Havasupai Canyon, and Kayenta, Ariz.; Keshena, Wis.; at Taos and Tohatchi, N. M., and other places.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Anvil Chorus

Elmer Tunes in Comics and Lots of Music

Varied Program of Day Is Found Interesting.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

For a change I decided yesterday to give the once over to Quin Ryan as he read THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE comics, 12 to 1 o'clock. Uncle Quin in front of the microphone is master of entertainment for children. The old vexing problem of parents as to how to entertain the children is being solved by letting Uncle Quin do it.

One of the most popular and easiest of programs to listen to is that given by Tom, Dick, and Harry, W-G-N, 5:30 to 5:45. They are winsome troubadours, with one guitar among them, and heard in songs that are as pretty as they are sensible.

Frederick Stock's introductory remarks to the concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, through W-G-N, 2 to 3, contained the following thought: Some music is beautiful but not great. some music is great but not beautiful, and some music is both beautiful and great; however, I hope you will find great enjoyment in listening to today's concert.

Interestingly a similar turn of thought was uttered by Pat Barnes during W-G-N's Alice in Musicland program, 5:45 to 6:30. For in introducing a cello solo he said to Alice: "Music is what it means to you. This cello solo will be coffee to me and milk to you. How's that?"

Yes, Mr. Barnes, that's absolutely true. That's why an announcer cannot in advance picture for the radio audience the selection that is to follow. We all interpret every thing we hear on the air in a different way. What interests one listener may be of no interest to another listener.

In addition to the concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, the New York concert through W-G-N, 8:15 to 9:15, featured three artists of distinction: Mme. Louise Homer, contralto; Fritz Reiner, conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, and Lester Donahue, pianist. The recently invented "tonal pedal" piano used by Mr. Donahue is of interest. A fourth pedal on this piano controls sound reflectors on top and below the strings and is designed so that they increase the volume of the tone after the note has been struck.

The spontaneous applause greeting the Negro spirituals sung by the Hampton Institute quartet at the Sunday Evening club, WMAQ, at 7 o'clock, gives assurance that they were enjoyed.

GREEN INSISTS HE WOULD NOT ACCEPT GOOD JOB

Shingleton, Mich., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Gov. Fred W. Green announced today that he would not accept the post of secretary of war made vacant by the death of James W. Good, if it were offered him by President Hoover.

The governor, who has been in upper Michigan on a deer hunting expedition for the last week, sent a telegram to Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, who suggested his name to the President, stating that he appreciated indorsements given him, but felt it his duty to remain governor of Michigan. The telegram said:

"Newspapers are saying that you contemplate suggesting me as secretary of war. While deeply appreciating the honor intended, I could not accept. It would not be fair to the people who elected me or to the legislature who placed in my hands Michigan's greatest building program, for me to accept."

Death Takes Teresa O'Neill, Public School Art Teacher

Miss Teresa O'Neill, 3822 Gladys avenue, for many years an art teacher in the Gregory school, died yesterday morning in St. Luke's hospital. She is survived by three sisters, the Misses Mary, Kathryn and Agnes O'Neill. Her funeral will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in St. Mel's church, Washington boulevard and Kildare avenue. Burial will be in All Saints' cemetery.

E. M. Lee, Former G. O. P. Chief in Indiana, Dies

Miami Beach, Fla., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Edwin M. Lee, 61, chairman of the Indiana Republican state committee in 1910, and one of a small group of prominent Republicans who induced Theodore Roosevelt to run for President in 1912, died here today at his home. Apparently in robust health, he suffered a heart attack from which he died before medical attention could be obtained.

11 NOW ARE DEAD IN DIXIE COLD; WARMER TODAY

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Two deaths today—one in Virginia and one in North Carolina—brought to eleven the total chargeable to last week's unseasonable foretaste of winter in the south. Rising temperatures gave general relief today.

The much welcomed moderating weather, however, has brought with it gloomy skies and in most sections rain, while melting snow over portions of eight southern states made heavy going for persons whose week-end business took them over country roads.

18 Autos Hit Trains; 14 Trains Hit Autos

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 24.—[Special.]—Engineers on the Racine and southwestern Wisconsin division of the Milwaukee road complain that motorists are too careless at intersections between Milwaukee and Savanna, Ill. During the first eight months of the year 18 automobiles ran into trains, as against 14 automobiles being struck by trains. Four persons were killed and fifteen hurt.

ADVERTISE! URGES KLEIN IN RADIO TALK; HELPS CONFIDENCE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 24.—[U.P.]—Business men should keep up their advertising now to insure against curtailment of business, Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, said in a radio address tonight.

"Advertising should go ahead with all of its characteristic force," he said. "This is not to say that it should be extravagant—and there may be some scrutiny, at least, to determine whether wasteful practices have crept into that field.

"But advertising, considered as a whole, is one of the most potent of business accelerations. It keeps goods moving. And it inspires confidence At this time any appreciable letup in advertising would be unquestionably injurious.

"Good will is worth millions. Possessing it, businesses flourish; without it, they may wilt. But it is a fragile quality. It may sway and droop under the veering winds of public opinion. Advertising can keep it sturdy and upstanding."

BORDEN'S SELECTED MILK

If your children like it better

You'll do a wonderful thing for them to let them have it

The milk your children drink has an important bearing on the kind of men or women they will be.

Milk contains mineral salts to make sound teeth and sturdy bones—protein to build and repair tissues and muscles—fat for heat and energy—and the all-important vitamins.

"Selected" milk makes milk drinking more enjoyable because of its "Sweet Natural Taste." It owes its taste to the special care and vigilance taken in its production.

For Thanksgiving

You'll be needing extra milk, butter, eggs, soured cream, etc. Order them of your Borden's milkman. Every food he carries is guaranteed for quality.

We pay a liberal premium to the owners of 105 picked dairy farms with fine, healthy herds, using modern equipment and methods, and who produce "Selected" under our rigid regulations that cover feeding, stabling, milking, cooling, handling.

Gunmen Hold Up Couple and Escape with $2,072

Isadore Striesel, 4856 North Drake avenue, and his wife, Lena, were robbed of $2,000 in jewelry and $72 in cash early yesterday as they were returning from a neighborhood store. They told the Albany Park police that two gunmen stopped them in Ainslie street near Drake avenue and took the money, a $50 watch, and a ring worth $600 from Striesel and a diamond wrist watch valued at $350 and two rings valued at $1,000 from Mrs. Striesel. The bandits then fled into an alley.

Christmas Isn't Such an Ordeal if You Plan Ahead

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bowans

"What's the date, John?" she asked as she made out a check for the electric light bill.

"The twenty-fifth," he answered and then added in his carefree, masculine way, "A month from today is Christmas!"

The busy wife, mother, housewife, seamstress, laundress, tutor, baby's nurse, cook, etc., groaned.

"Don't take all the joy out of life this nice November morning," she said.

By which of course she only meant, "Christmas is such a grand and glorious time and I love all the sparkle and festivity of it. But when I think of all I have to do between now and then, with the shopping and the crowded stores and those awful headaches I get from the long waits at the counters, I feel desperate."

If you're a good little manager, and love shopping, and can easily leave your children, and are just generally adept at tossing things off, you probably don't feel overcome at all by Christmas preparations.

But if you're not, you do. And that terrible rush, that getting over-tired, do tend to make you regard Christmas as a chore rather than a delight.

Of course, no matter how well you manage there'll be last minute doings. In a way those last stitches, tacking some fur you've found on the doll's coat, the midnight festooning of the doorway with greens, the wrapping of last packages on the breadboard in the kitchen on Christmas morning—are part of the fun. But not too much of it—not too much of it—or you'll be ragged.

Also, you may deceive yourself by saying, "Well, I'm simply not going to do much this Christmas, so I don't need to plan much." Don't deceive yourself—you will. As the day draws near, Christmas "gets" you. So you might as well realize it, and plan accordingly.

I don't want to sound like a holiday placard, but do do your shopping early. If you're shopping for children, the things you want are quite apt to run out and not be reordered. The crowded counters are hard to reach and the waits are long.

Also, if it is humanly possible, don't take your children shopping with you. Even if you have to clip the necessary money off your expenditures, hire some one to stay with the children while you shop. Or combine forces with another shopping mother and take turns, one caring for both sets of children while the other shops—and vice versa.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

Many thousand dollars which Illinois farmers are wasting every year in clover seed and limestone could be saved by using a simple, cheap method of testing whether a soil is acid and needs limestone, according to a new circular just issued by the Illinois College of Agriculture called "Test Your Soil for Acidity."

It describes the Comber, or potassium thiocyanate, test for determining whether or not limestone will be needed on a soil before it will grow clovers successfully. Authors of the new circular are C. M. Linsley and F. C. Bauer.

The Comber test is a simple and practical means of saving many tons of limestone and many bushels of clover seed. The material used in making the test is a solution of potassium thiocyanate in alcohol or some other suitable solvent. A satisfactory solution ready for use may now be bought commercially under a trade name.

In making the test, 23 surface samples, 5 subsurface and 5 subsoil samples of soil are collected from definite points in a 40 acre field. A small amount of soil from each sample is placed in a test tube or small glass vial and some of the testing solution added. The soil and the testing solution are then thoroughly mixed by shaking. After the soil has settled, the color of the solution indicates whether or not the soil is acid.

If the solution remains colorless, the soil is "sweet;" in other words, it already contains plenty of limestone. If the solution turns red, the soil is acid and the degree of acidity is indicated approximately by the degree of redness.

The results for the different samples are recorded on a map sheet. When completed the map shows just where in the 40 acre field limestone is needed and approximately how much should be applied to the acre. Materials, equipment and complete directions for making the test are listed in the circular. It may be secured free by writing the college.

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Raised Dough Cake.

One of the numerous letters received lately in reference to fruit cake recipes is one asking for the cake made with the bread sponge. The writer of the letter said that her mother often baked them and they were fine, but now her mother is no longer living and the recipe cannot be found. She wanted to bake this cake for this Thanksgiving. It is one of the fruit cakes that is good almost as soon as it is baked. You see, it is more or less on the coffee cake order.

There have been famous varieties of it. Perhaps the most famous among us has been "king cake," the bread cake used in Mardi Gras time in New Orleans. The old American electric cake was also made this way. It does keep moist well, and it is a good afternoon tea cake when cut in thin slices.

A simple recipe is: One cup bread sponge, one-fourth cup butter, one cup sugar, two eggs, one cup flour, one-half teaspoon soda dissolved in one tablespoon milk, one-half cup raisins or other dried fruit, and spices or nut, as you choose. It is a little finer, perhaps, without them.

Cream the butter, work in the sugar, combine these and all the other ingredients, then separate the egg whites and flavor with the sponge. The egg whites should be added last, and it is perhaps best to add the raisins just before that. The mixing and folding of these ingredients should be exceptionally complete. Put the batter into the cake pan and let it rise about half an hour before baking it in a moderate oven. The time will depend on the size and depth of the tin used, but a cake or bread tin size would require an hour's baking. A plain icing may be used.

A bread sponge is commonly made with just about half the flour that we would use in finishing yeast bread, and it is easy to see that the thinner the sponge is within reason the better this cake will be because it is thickened with the cup of flour.

Accessories Prefer to Contrast with Costume

BY LOLITA.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The ensemble of today is more than a match for its wearer. It is most fashionably a contrast. Indeed, on every hand we find evidences that women are tiring of the slavish repetitions of one color throughout a costume. No longer is the tree frog's idea of an ensemble an influential one. Instead of appearing in these monotonous harmonies of beige and brown in which hat, bag, blouse and all other accessories repeat the same tone, when we looked for all the world like some drab tree frog matching his drab environment, we have now gone in for strong accents of color.

Nothing indicates this fact more than does the hat. Go down to meet one of the steamers just setting free a flock of smartly dressed Americans, and you will see how millinery ideals have changed. A woman dressed in black is likely to enliven her suit or ensemble with a hat of jeweled blue or of purple. Another garbed in brown or beige may elect a felt of vivid red. These women returning in their Paris clothes have brought with them the new theory that a note of millinery color is far more becoming and more really modish than the old neutral tinted bonnet matching coat or suit.

Another indication of our departure from the matching theory is the blouse. Today the fashionable blouse worn with the fashionable suit is likely to be white, no matter what the color preference of the accompanying garment. These blouses reach their climax of smartness in satin and often they are cut on waistcoat lines. Similarly, as we have so often noted, the frock worn with our dress ensemble may be of vivid tone such as red to contrast with a black coat.

We see today the ensemble worked out with this new liberality of thought. For with a coat of tobacco brown tweed trimmed in brown astrakhan and a one piece frock in beige tint—this is of light woven material—the wearer has elected a hat of brilliant red felt. Yes, it's much more effective.

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Here is a dress of real distinction that will appeal to well dressed women. The becoming neckline that is both comfortable and smart looking is finished with a small collar of a contrasting color. The diagonal line of the bodice is chic, trimmed with tiny buttons, and the sleeves are fitted with darts, helping to make the arms look slender. The wrapped treatment of the skirt that ends in a drapery at the right side front is quite unusual and is designed so as to affect a hip yoke. Black satin, with an eggshell shade for the collar, black sheer velvet, and midnight blue crêpe de Chine with a white silk crêpe collar are pleasing suggestions.

The pattern, 2988, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 27 inch contrasting.

Antoinette Stresses Plenty of Exercise in Reducing Regime

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

One of our health emporium heads is quoted as saying that the only way to lose weight sensibly is by exercise and moderate self-denial in eating. And we shall let the quotation stand —"Moderate self-denial in eating, and exercise."

Moderate exercises and less than half of that is what most women believe to be their duty on the muscular score, but rigid self-denial in eating is what they can arise to en masse once they get a clew to a diet that is said to have reduced some person of note.

It is interesting, or would be interesting, to know why women can rise to a diet with such a superb display of will power, yet when it comes to a three or four mile hike or a ten or fifteen minute morning muscular workout they just seem to wilt. Think of it! It doesn't take as much planning nor as much actual inroad on one's time to get the exercise in as it does to work out a reducing menu or go three times a day where it is prepared for you.

As a result of the immoderate fasting and little or no exercise what should be a fine specimen of a woman often looks as if it were something drawn through the proverbial knothole and so highstrung as to nerves that the old agreeable companion is lost. Women must have a natural born taste against exercise! Or perhaps in older days, when they got so much of it around the house it was one of those things that a girl never heard about. But now that women are holding down office chairs from early morning till late p. m., and other girls, with the help of electrical appliances and small living quarters, have well nigh succeeded in eliminating all natural muscle toning effort—they ought to begin to wake up to the value of exercise. Not sporadic exercise, that does but little good. A week-end devoted to golf, tennis, skating, or something of the kind is better than nothing, but it does not help in weight reduction. What happens with persons who refuse to take exercise is that the circulation becomes sluggish. Impaired tissue oxidation, faulty elimination, and a resulting fatty degeneration occur.

The Wrong Room.

The most embarrassing moment of my life occurred some time ago.

In our vocational department there are quite a few sewing forms. My instructor asked me to carry them to the storeroom. I was holding a form in front of me and had to feel my way there. I walked into a room that I thought was the storeroom, set the form down, and looked around. Instead here I was in a big shorthand class.

The students all took it as a joke, but, believe me, I didn't. Embarrassed? I should say. R. P. S.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

She's Right.

"Dear Miss Blake: I go with two fellows and my parents object. I am only 17 and I think I'm too young to keep steady company. Am I right?

"TRUE BLONDE."

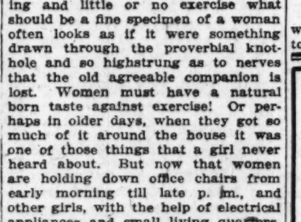
TICKLING IN THROAT KEEPS DORIS AWAKE



DORIS GROVER

REM brings relief with usual speed

Little Doris Grover of 200a Q St., Washington, D. C., was kept awake one night with a bad cough, the result of an awful tickling in her throat. In the morning her mother fortunately noticed a REM advertisement in the paper. She bought a bottle of REM at a drug store on Pennsylvania Ave., and now she reports "REM relieved Doris' cough right away." The reason for this quick action isn't hard to explain. REM contains a special ingredient that clings to the throat, soothing and relieving the irritation very quickly. And that's true for grown-ups as well as children, for REM is a most effective cough remedy for young and old. Ask your druggist for REM—every druggist has it.

REM is quicker. Clings to the throat. Starts relief immediately
